Victoria schoolteacher Dave Cutler gave Winnipeg Blue Bombers a kicking lesson Sunday. Cutler's kicks accounted for all the Edmonton points as the Eskimos clipped the Bombers 14-12 and advanced into the Western Football Conference final. Page 12.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, scorned earlier this season in the Eastern Football Conference, were brutal on defence as they charged into their conference final with a 23-0 pounding of Montreal Alouettes. Page 12.

Victoria Cougars climaxed a big week in the Western Canada Hockey League by sweeping a weekend series with Kamloops Chiefs and bolstering their division lead. They notched a 3-1 victory in Kamloops after topping the Chiefs 8-4 at home Saturday. Page 12.

The second annual thoroughbred racing meet of the Capital City Turf Club ended at Sandown Park Saturday on a record note. There was a new daily high mutuel handle of $337,304 and a record total of $3,436,401 for the 16-day meet. George Harknett's three-year-old filly Major Hike won the closing day feature. Page 13.

For Bill Goldsworthy of New York Rangers, the commercial break isn't the pause that refreshes. Awarded a penalty shot, Goldsworthy had "too much time to think" when the referee delayed play for television's benefit. He missed the shot and the Rangers dropped a 6-2 National Hockey League decision to Buffalo Sabres. Page 12.

Pittsburgh Steelers made it five straight National Football League games without yielding a touchdown as they whipped Miami Dolphins.

Peking Shaken

HONG KONG (UPI) — An earthquake seismologists termed "big enough for certain damage" rocked Peking tonight in the heaviest shock since the tremors that devastated parts of northeast China July 27.

The Royal Hong Kong Observatory here recorded the earthquake at 9:57 p.m. (6:57 a.m. EST) but was unable to give any further details. Kyodo news service in Tokyo said in a dispatch from China the earthquake was strong but its epicentre was not immediately known.

Marcus Barth of the Uppsala Institute said the tremor was "big enough for certain damage."

The U.S. geological survey's earthquake centre at Golden, Colo., said the quake registered 6.5 on the Richter scale. The centre said the quake was in the same general area as the July 27 quake.

Heavy Turnout At Quebec Polls

MONTREAL (CP) — Polling stations reported a generally heavy turnout today for the Quebec provincial election.

The compaigning ended with neither of the two strongest parties — the ruling Liberals and the separatist-favoring Parti Quebecois — predicting victory.

Polls close today at 4 p.m., PST.

Undecided voters and rebellious Liberals were being told Sunday that their future and that of Canada depends on the way they vote today.

Those doing the warning ranged from millionaire distiller Charles Bronfman, who said it would be suicide for voters to turn their backs on the Liberals, to Union Nationale leader Rodrigue Biron, who predicted "moral and physical violence" if the Liberals are re-elected on a fear vote.

The PQ, which Bronfman called "a bunch of bastards trying to kill us," continued to play down independence as an issue and avoided predictions of victory. It aimed its attack at the Liberal record.

A hushed audience of about 400 Jews was told by Bronfman, owner of Montreal Expos, that he would move Seagrams Co. Ltd., a family holding of which he is president, out of Quebec if the PQ wins.

"If we turn our backs on the Liberals, it will be suicide.

Premier Robert Bourassa, described by one of his own candidates as "the most despised man in Quebec," has tried to staunch a flow of non-French votes to the resurgent Union Nationale and newly formed Democratic Alliance. There are about one million non-French voters.

PQ leader Rene Levesque, playing down his party's pledge that it would work to make Quebec a republic separate from Canada, avoided predictions that might scare away French voters angry with the 6½-year-old Bourassa government.

Polls have indicated that many PQ supporters are opposed to independence for Quebec. As a result the PQ has aimed its attack at the Liberal record, while the Liberals have warned that a PQ victory would devalue property and money.

Polls indicated that 40 per cent of voters were undecided in mid-campaign. Full-paged Liberal ads in Saturday newspapers urged voters to "stop separatism." An ad placed by the Council of Canadian Unity urged everyone to vote, saying it was important "for every citizen of Quebec, and of Canada."

In Quebec City, UN leader Biron, 42, said a Liberal victory today would create protest movements which would return "moral and physical violence" to the province.

"If Quebecers vote for the Liberals under the sole pretext of fear, we will see strong protests in the streets," he told about 500 supporters. "There will be moral and physical violence.

ANNUAL SPAWNING of chum salmon in the Goldstream River draws a gallery of Greater Victorians every weekend. More than 800 chums were sighted Oct. 28 and between 3,000 and 4,000 are expected to return and spawn by the end of the year. A few of the salmon have been gaffed for food by native Indians, issued with Indian food fishing permits by the federal fisheries department.

TEACHERS CUT

MISSION (CP) — The Federal Anti-Inflation Board has ordered wage increases for 220 Mission teachers rolled back to 9.2 per cent from 11.8. per cent teachers' spokesman George Connelly said. He said teachers have 30 days to show cause why the order shouldn't be implemented. If implemented, the rollback could cost Mission teachers about $400 each.

Apartments Eyed For Ten Mile Point

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Apartments are being considered for the first time in Saanich's exclusive single-family Ten Mile Point area.

The apartments are part of a mixed housing complex proposed by Broadmead Farms Ltd.

The mix of single-family homes, townhouses and apartments would be constructed on 70 acres owned by the company, lying between Telegraph Bay Road and Bedford-Phyllis Avenues.

Broadmead has applied to have the development built under a land-use contract with the municipality.

At today's council meeting council was to consider making the acreage into a development area as a prelude to drawing up the land-use contract.

Managing director Gordon Rolston said today a total of 210 units will be built on the 70 acres. Of these, 66 will be apartments.

Rolston declined to give details of the proposed height of the apartment buildings, saying only they would be sited in such a way as to preserve the trees and natural amenities of the area.

He said the Broadmead development will help Saanich solve the water and sewage problems in the Ten Mile Point area.

"We will provide the main to service our own area," Rolston said. "It will be easy to link up and service the rest of the area with a loop system."

Rolston said he has held consultations with executive members of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association and offered to provide bikeway systems through the property.

He conceded that now that Saanich has agreed to widen Tudor Avenue the problem of providing safety for cyclists and pedestrians may have been solved.

Dr. Gerhart Friedmann, acting chairman for the ratepayers' association, said that while his executive is sympathetic to Rolston's proposal, it has not given approval because Rolston has failed to show them the final plans.

"We did not give any approval because we didn't have any details," Friedmann said. "He promised to put up balloons to indicate the height (of the apartment buildings) but he didn't do that. While we are sympathetic, that's a long way from giving approval."

WORLD-WIDE HUNT FOR GIBSONS KILLER

VANCOUVER (CP) — The manhunt for the slayer of William Graham Black, of Gibsons has spread internationally, according to RCMP Superintendent Bruce Northrop.

The suspect is using four aliases but Supt. Northrop said one of the false identities was taken from a Vancouver resident and police don't know the true identity of the suspect.

The man was charged with murder as Shawn Erskine Doyle McCord but Supt. Northrop said that McCord had been found to be a Vancouver resident and had no connection with the killing or any knowledge of the accused.

The other aliases used by the man police are seeking are Shaun Shannon, Sean McShane and Shaun Turney.

Supt. Northrop said a picture of the suspect has been circulated and police have made inquiries to Malaysia, Singapore, Australia, South America and the United States west coast in attempts to track him down and find out more about him.

Oberle Named B.C. Tory Head

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

B.C. Conservative party members acclaimed federal MP Frank Oberle as their president Sunday at the annual Tory convention in the Empress Hotel.

Oberle, from Prince George-Peace River, spent much of his time at the three-day convention denying a rumor that he was part of a conspiracy to take over the party and trying to explain a remark he had made earlier on television that there are no differences between provincial Tories and the Social Credit Party.

His explanations must have been convincing. There was no opposition to his bid for the party presidency and his acceptance speech was met with loud applause.

Oberle, first elected to Parliament in 1972, told the 456 delegates he saw his role as that of "co-ordinator in the greater scheme of things."

Rumors have persisted for several months in both Ottawa and B.C. that Oberle and fellow MP John Reynolds (Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) were plotting to wrest the party leadership from Scott Wallace.

Both Oberle and Reynolds blamed the media for the rumor, although both also admitted hearing about the suggestion long before any stories had been written about it.

Reynolds, in a question-and-answer period during Saturday's convention session, dismissed the reports as "lies, absolute lies."

"I got into this business to defeat Trudeau and that's what I'm going to do," he said.

Oberle said the media was obsessed with writing stories about what might happen rather than covering events that actually did happen.

LOCAL EGGS TO DROP BY 1 CENT A DOZEN

Local egg prices are expected to come down by one cent a dozen before the end of the week as retailers catch up with an adjustment Friday by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency.

Payments to producers dropped today by two cents for grade A large, reflecting a decline in feed prices worked out on a monthly cost formula.

As of last week, producers were getting two cents a dozen for A grade eggs over the price one year ago.

Militant Action Urged By B.C. Labor Leaders

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor is meeting this week to make key decisions on its future relations with government and business.

The federation's executive council said in a report today that the 235,000-member labor body should continue "through militant industrial action and an improved program of political action to fight for working people in this province against the powerful employers and their allies in government."

The executive council report, presented at the opening session of the five-day convention, said the B.C. labor movement "is facing continued attacks from a federal government which is committed to serving the interests of the giant corporations in this country and facing the continuing threat posed by an anti-labor Socred government in Victoria."

The labor movement's ties with political parties, particularly the NDP, are a prime area of concern.

Len Guy, facing a tough challenge in his battle for re-election to the crucial post of secretary-treasurer, has been accused by some opponents of contributing to the downfall of the NDP in last year's B.C. election by heavily criticizing NDP labor policies.

Art Kube, a Canadian Labor Congress staff worker seeking to unseat Guy, has described his opponent as ham-fisted.

"The ham-fisted approach means trying to bludgeon people into certain positions," Kube said in an interview.

"My approach is that you talk to people, air the options and try to convince them what options to take."

Guy, a high-profile labor leader in B.C., is a former typesetter. Kube moved to B.C. 1½ years ago as regional education director for the CLC.

Man Hangs Himself In City Jail Cell

A 45-year-old man hanged himself with his jacket in a Victoria police jail cell on the weekend.

Dead is Douglas Earl White, of 271 Cadillac.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said today the inquest would start later this week — probably Thursday.

City police patrol inspector Walter Calwell, on duty Saturday, said White had been picked up on a downtown street at about 2 a.m. on a warrant for failing to appear in court in October on a shoplifting charge.

He was placed in a holding cell to await a court appearance Saturday morning.

But at 3:08 a.m., White was found dead with his jacket tied around his neck and to a horizontal bar near the top of the cell door.

Inspector Calwell said White's belt and shoelaces had been taken away as a routine precaution; but not his jacket as "we don't usually take their clothes."

There are no closed circuit television monitors used in city police cells. Checks are not scheduled but are carried out about every half hour, the inspector said.

Parts of the cell where White was can be seen from certain positions from the jailer's area. There was one jailer on duty at that time, the inspector said.

Pat Bay . . . Not a Place to Put an Airport

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Pat Bay, it turns out, was not such a great place to put an airport.

"The problem is the hills immediately north and south of the airport," says ministry of transport regional director Larry Le Gros.

"They limit what the pilots can do."

When the fog comes in, the airport shuts down, with or without radar, with or without sophisticated landing systems.

Victoria International Airport does not have radar. Radar would be nice but it is not essential, Le Gros said.

In fact it is not even helpful in a thick fog at Pat Bay.

Le Gros explained in an interview that a pilot coming down at Pat Bay must be able to see the runway or the landing lights when he reaches the 300-foot level or he must abort the landing.

"This would be the case even with radar," Le Gros said.

Because of the hills, coming into the airport is like entering a narrow valley. No pilot could afford to go below 300 feet without being 100 per cent sure of his location. And that means visual contact with the ground.

"The situation is different in Vancouver or out on the bald prairies," Le Gros said.

The Vancouver airport on Sea Island is far enough away from the North Shore mountains to make landing a relatively easy task even in thick fog. For this reason, some planes will go lower than 300 feet and come in for a landing, aided by radar, at Vancouver.

"The important difference is that there are no hills or other obstructions around the airport in Vancouver," Le Gros said. "It is not the radar that makes the difference, it is the physical location of the airport."

There are improvements coming to the Victoria airport, however, that might help.

A sophisticated Visual Approach Slope Indicator landing lights system will soon be installed on a second runway, identical to the system on the primary landing strip.

This may assist some planes to get down during cer-

Eight Cons Still at Large

By The Canadian Press

Eight of 11 prisoners who escaped from jails across Canada during the weekend were still at large today.

In British Columbia, three of four men who escaped Saturday from the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) have been recaptured.

Nathaniel Terrace Sommerton, 25, was arrested Sunday in Swift Current, Sask., while Robert William Jaenicke, 17, and Stephen Albert Hall, 26, were arrested as they walked along a street in Vancouver.

Still at large was Ivan James Schrebot, 27, charged with robbery in connection with a 1974 holdup at a credit union.

Jaenicke was awaiting trial on a charge of theft. Hall is charged with armed robbery and attempted murder in connection with a bungled bank robbery in Burnaby earlier this year.

Sommerton was serving a sentence for breaking and entering.

At Brampton, Ont., two men escaped early Sunday from the city jail by cutting through bars, police said.

Frederick Cadeddu, 26, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Richard Jary, 22, of Toronto were noticed missing at an early morning bed count.

Police said Cadeddu is charged with second-degree murder in the Aug. 21 poker-game slaying of Murray Anthony Durrer in Brampton.

Jary is charged with two counts of armed robbery in connection with holdups in Mississauga, Ont., in April.

Tories Gather with Prayers —And They'll Need Them

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. Tory convention in the Empress Hotel last weekend opened with a plethora of prayers.

Canon Robert Eagles intoned for about 10 minutes, prayer after prayer after prayer — one for the Queen, one for the country, one for confederation, one for the Tories and, finally, the Lord's Prayer.

There is probably no other party in B.C. which needs it more.

The Socreds are on top of it all; the NDP is struggling but alive; the Liberals appear to have given up; but the Tories are about to come out fighting.

Watching 450 true-blue Tories spending a weekend trying to paste together the remnants of their provincial party is like observing a large group of sculptors all working on the same statue, all chipping away to create the same masterpiece, but each in his own image.

The end result of all these creators may have a few jagged edges and the image may be somewhat blurred, but at least they will have created a product that can be sold to the voters of B.C.

There were at least two distinct images evident during the Conservative convention.

The one best known in British Columbia, at least for the past few years, is Scott Wallace, the doctor-politician whose humanist philosophies flavor even his most political statements.

Wallace's humor and humanism capture the respect of the convention delegates, but some of the heavier politicos in the party must wonder whether he's vicious enough to play the sort of throat-cutting politics which seem necessary in this province to get any sort of power.

The other image in the Tory party is vicious enough.

Represented perhaps best by militant, right-wing MP John Reynolds of Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, that other image could steamroll right over Wallace in its power-getting efforts.

The new president of the B.C. Tories, Frank Oberle, MP from Prince George-Peace River, seems a little short in the image line, but he has Reynolds solidly behind him, pushing and pulling all the way.

As Oberle was acclaimed president Sunday morning in the packed convention ballroom, Reynolds, sitting on his right, ordered Oberle to "stand up, stand up" in a loud stage whisper.

And Oberly stook up and gave a wooden, Queen-like wave to the delegates.

Despite the two distinct ideas of exactly what the Conservative party in B.C. is and what it should be, the internal differences so common to B.C. Tory conventions were submerged for the weekend.

All speeches stressed untiy and the party's dilemma of having its members vote Tory federally and Socred provincially has been solved for awhile anyway by a constitutional amendment which forbids any card-carrying Socred from holding office in the Tory riding associations.

Delegates posed a few tough questions to the 13 B.C. federal MPs during a bear-pit session Saturday afternoon but no one seemed to question the usually vague and sometimes unintelligible answers.

The loudest cheers for the MP's answers came from the other MPs who shouted "Hear, hear" and banged the table with their hands in the best Parliamentary tradition.

It must have seemed strange for delegates unaware of the tradition, to see grown men hammering the table with their palms when a simple round of applause would have sufficed.

One issue which pops up at every political convention and which is always popular is the idiocy, stupidity and downright vindictiveness of the press.

At Socred conventions, reporters are seen as card-carrying Communists; at NDP gatherings, they're all hacks of the Capitalist establishment and at Liberal and Tory conventions, they're simply wrong.

The Tories wrapped up their convention on a high note.

If the delegates can keep it up for another couple of years, the offering of a party which lies in between the polarized spectrum of Social Credit and NDP may be seen as a boon to the voters of B.C.

But sometime before the next election, the party will have to bring into focus its two images or the reflection offered to the voters will be too fuzzy to be credible.

OBERLE CHOSEN

and said there were no differences between the Tories and the Socreds.

Asked at the convention to explain his remark, he said he had been misinterpreted.

What he really meant, he said, was that there was no difference "in the way we both respond to the free enterprise principle," but the differences lay in the "people, programs and policies."

He said his remark was a "political mistake."

Oberle's theme and the theme of the whole convention was unity within the party and the efforts to make it work provincially as well as federally.

The provincial seats the party hopes to win in the next election will come from the NDP, Oberle said, and then the Tories will start working on the Socred strength.

"There is room for two free-enterprise parties in B.C., but I'm afraid the Social Credit will no longer be one of them," he said.

Oberle stressed his support of Wallace, saying he was behind the provincial leader "1,000 per cent."

He pledged to work to get the Tories elected federally and provincially.

POTATO GIVE-AWAY

DOUGLAS (CP) — About 2,000 five-pound bags of potatoes were given away at the Douglas border south of Vancouver Saturday in a bid to convince United States-bound shopper that the real bargains in vegetables are in Canada.

"We were out to get a simple message across to the shopper and we kept it on a good-humored level," said Allan Barker, manager of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Co-Operative.

"The most amazing part of the day was that we didn't find a single Canadian who admitted he was going across to the U.S. to shop," said Barker.

He said lettuce, cauliflower, potatoes, cabbage, rutabagas, carrots, cooking onions and celery cost about one-third less in Canada.

tain wind and fog conditions.

Studies are also continuing on other methods of keeping the airport open when the fog rolls in.

A number of experiments have been carried out at various Canadian airports with mixed success.

Flare pots have been tried and even driving a plane up and down the runway to create air currents.

In eastern Canada an airport administration decided to try seeding the fog with chemicals to scatter the mist. Unfortunately, the fog that prevented jets from taking off also kept the small plane from getting into the sky to do the seeding.

The experiment was abandoned when the tiny plane, after endlessly taxiing up and down the runway, ran into a truck. There were no injuries but at that point everyone decided that the best thing to do was just wait.

Which is what most airports have decided when the fog comes.

Princely Views Raise MPs' Ire

LONDON (Reuter) — Prince Philip has caused a row by criticizing the British welfare state and calling for more rewards for hard work and enterprise.

The comments, in a foreword to a special 120th anniversary edition of the professional magazine Engineer, brought immediate protests from left-wing members of the governing Labor Party.

Prince Philip, who as the husband of Queen Elizabeth is supposed to abstain from political comment, wrote: "The welfare state is a protection against failure and exploitation but a national recovery can take place only if innovators and men of enterprise and hard work can prosper."

The remarks came at a special controversial time as the opposition Conservatives are blaming creeping socialism and big government spending programs for Britian's economic difficulties.

Right-wing politicians often attack the level of state payments made to the unemployed.

Left-wing Labor MP Dennis Skinner said Saturday night Prince Philip, who collects an annual state grant equivalent to $100,000, should be ashamed of himself.

"Any old-age pensioner gets only 15 pound sterling ($25 a week), but he lives off the state," the MP said. "He (the prince) has damn cheek."

Another Labor MP, Arthur Latham, commented: "The state has provided for him very well."

But the opposition Conservative spokesman on the social services, Patrick Jenkin, supported the prince, saying that he had hit the nail squarely on the head.

In his piece, Prince Philip argued that "the successful technological innovators must become heroes again. They must be allowed to gain and keep their rewards for success."

Captured U.S. Weapons Turns Vietnam Into Power

WASHINGTON (WP) — The fall of Saigon last year gave the Communist victors enough U.S. planes, ships, armor and artillery to make Vietnam one of the foremost military powers in Asia, according to the Pentagon's final tally of what was lost.

The North Vietnamese captured nine times as many Cessna A-37 light attack planes as neighboring Thailand has in its air force; gained enough American ships to make Vietnam's navy second only to China's numerically, and got more armored cars than India has for its army.

In light arms, according to the Pentagon figures, Vietnam captured 1.6 million rifles, including 791,000 modern M-16s, and a mountain of ammunition weighing 130,000 tons. The ammunition works out to more than four pounds for every person in what was North and South Vietnam.

Also, the Communists captured giant U.S. cannons — including 80 175-mm. self-propelled guns which can shoot 20 miles. They obtained as well 1,000 105-mm. and 250 155mm. howitzers which American troops used in Vietnam for holding hilltop positions, blasting enemy infantry and protecting friendly patrols. The captured American equipment was worth about $5 billion.

Vietnamese military leaders are expected to keep a large portion of the American arms lode however, to give their infantry more firepower. U.S. military leaders have freely acknowledged that even without such modern weaponry the North Vietnamese infantry demonstrated during the Indo-China war that it was one of the best in the world.

What Vietnam's leaders do with their captured American helicopters — 430 UH-1 Hueys and 36 CH-47 Chinooks — will indicate how far the military intends to go to modernize its army.

The North Vietnamese did not have helicopters when they defeated the South Vietnamese, who did. Former South Vietnam president Nguyen Van Thieu once complained that getting U.S. helicopters was the worst thing that ever happened to his infantry because his troops became reluctant to walk long patrols.

If the new leadership of Vietnam does decide against melding the captured American helicopters into its army, the country's light infantry will still be a lot harder-hitting in the future than during the war because of other captured arms.

Captured U.S. weaponry ideally suited to a fast-moving light infantry includes 50,000 M-60 machine guns; 47,000 M-79 grenade launchers and 12,000 mortars.

For heavier thrusts, the Vietnamese have gained this American armor: 300 M-41 light and 250 M-48 medium tanks; 1,200 M-113 armored personnel carriers. Vietnam's defences against another nation's tanks and other armor received a big boost from the capture of 63,000 U.S. light anti-tank weapons.

Also captured were 58,000 U.S. military radios and 42,000 trucks, according to the tally the Pentagon released in response to a request made under the Freedom of Information Act.

The Pentagon disclosed that 940 ships and small naval craft were lost but did not give a breakdown. China, in comparison, is credited by the International Institute for Strategic Studies with having 1,018 large and small surface combat vessels, 30 minesweepers and 400 support ships. (China is also believed to have 56 old submarines.)

In addition to the A-37 aircraft and helicopters captured by the Vietnamese, the Pentagon said the Communists also took 73 F5 jet fighters; 36 A-1 light bombers; 10 C-130A, 40 C-119 and 40 C-7 transports; 159 0-1 and 0-2 observation planes; 36 modified C-47 transports and 22 T-41 trainers.

Other light weapons captured include 90,000 .45-calibre pistols and 857,580 rifles in addition to the M-16s.

U.S. officials have expressed surprise that the Vietnamese have not sold captured arms even though they have received offers for them. Much of the armament has been spotted moving into North Vietnam, perhaps to be integrated with forces near the China border.

Poison Antidotes Dangerous

DENVER (UPI) — Antidotes suggested on the labels of some household products may cause more harm to a child who has ingested toxic material, according to the director of the Rocky Mountain Poison Centre.

Dr. Barry Rumack, clinical toxicologist and director of the poison centre, also said the Red Cross handbook on first aid is wrong in some recommended antidotes. The handbook is distributed by the American Medical Association and the Reader's Digest "Guide to First Aid."

Rumack said a two-year-old boy who swallowed drano spent two years in the hospital because his mother followed the directions on the label and gave him vinegar as an antidote.

Drano has lye in it," Rumack said. "It is wrong to use vinegar, lemon or grapefruit juice with any product containing lye, because it sets up a chemical reaction causing heat. Our lab tests show it produces a heat almost as great as boiling."

Carter's Church Votes To Drop Race Barriers

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said Sunday that when his small Baptist church decided at an emotional meeting to drop racial barriers "I was just one of the church members."

Carter, said his fellow Baptists, exerted no pressure during the 2¾-hour meeting. Nonetheless, the congregation voted to do what he has advocated since 1965.

It opened the church doors to all who want to worship, regardless of race. And it voted to retain Rev. Bruce Edwards, the pastor who agreed with Carter's pro-integration stand.

The chuch also set up a screeing committee consisting of the pastor and four deacons which Carter said would question prospective members about whether their intent is sincere. He said "the understanding is that this will not be based on racial considerations."

The church controversy was started by Rev. Clennon King, a non-denominational minister from Albany, Ga., onetime Republican gubernatorial candidate and civil rights activist. Just before the Nov. 2 election, he tried unsuccessfully to join the church in a move many saw as an effort to embarrass Carter.

Sunday, he waited in the rain and said after the votes were announced: "I think it's wonderful. It vindicates the church. It vindicates the people of Plains."

King did not avail himself of the opportunity to attend the evening service later Sunday.

Carter attended the service with about 65 other persons. Midway through it, a black man from Selma, N.C., Roger Sessoms, entered the church and sat in the pew in front of Carter. The president-elect later shook his hand an told him, "I'm glad you came tonight."

At the meeting, the congregation first voted 107 to 84 against a resolution calling for the immediate dismissal of Edwards, who publicly disagreed with the deacons' initial decision to uphold the 1975 policy.

Then the congregation voted 120 to 66 that "the doors of the Plains Baptist Church be open to all people that want to come in and worship Jesus Christ."

Mao's Widow Led 'Decadent Life'

HONG KONG (UPI) — Mao Tse-tung's widow and three fellow radicals "spent money like dirt" and "led a decadent life," the Communist party newspaper said today in one of the sharpest attacks yet on the purged leaders.

The authoraitative People's Daily also said in a lengthy front page article that Chiang Ching and her colleagues incited violence, disrupted production and "brought insolent accusations against people."

The article, transmitted in part by the official New, China News Agency, was one of the newspaper's sharpest personal attacks on Chiang Ching and her three associates — Chang Chunchao, Wang Hung-wen and Yao Wen-yuan.

The four were purged in early October after an abortive attempt to seize power, official reports said. Since then, China's official media have sought to portray them as "capitalist roaders" pretending to be radicals.

"They appropriated at will the fruits of labor of the people, spent money like dirt with an unsparing hand and led a decadent life, indulging in eating, drinking, pleasure-seeking, hunting, finding and watching old operas and vulgar films. They are out-and-out bourgeois elements sucking the blood of the workers," the People's Daily said.

The Gorilla's Embrace

Canadian-United States relations are generally good despite natural and inevitable irritations on both sides of the border. Current problems focus around Canadian export controls and pricing on oil and gas, deletion of U.S. commercials on cable outlets here from border television stations broadcasting into Canadian markets, and bilateral fishing rights after the declaration of a 200-mile limit. Small things in the total overview of our historic relationship.

But increasingly U.S. politicians and businessmen are showing a public impatience with Canadian policies which they perceive as being presumptious on the part of the mouse they so thoroughly control. From a Canadian point of view this U.S. arrogance is surprising considering successive Liberal administrations have handed the country to U.S. economic interests on a silver platter. Only the Tories under John Diefenbaker showed the slightest interest in bucking the trend. Now the Tory leader, Joe Clark, has all the appearances of a continentalist. His unprecedented Washington welcome earlier this year was another indication that the U.S. would like to see a change in Canada.

The question is why? Our Foreign Investment Review Act is a joke in terms of its legislative mandate, to protect native industry from further foreign incursion. Ottawa's attempts to lessen our trade dependence on the U.S. (currently more than 70 per cent of all Canadian trade is with the U.S.) have not publicly worried the Americans.

Yet even the Trudeau administration seems to have noticed the recent shirtiness about Canadian policies in the U.S. Talking to the American Petroleum Institute in San Francisco last week, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald defended the government-owned oil company Petrocan by saying that some Americans see it as part of the "red menace." It is demeaning that we still must explain ourselves to the U.S. in this manner. Mexico nationalized its oil industry in the 1930s and the U.S. had to accept it. Britain owns almost half of its developing oil industry, not because of a socialist policy, but to guarantee supplies for the Royal Navy. Yet Canada continues to cringe in the face of Uncle Sam.

To go back to the original question of why the U.S. wants an even more malleable Canadian administration, the Americans seem to perceive us as a client state. Any presumption of political independence is viewed as a stab in the back. If that sounds too strong, remember the violently anti-Canadian criticism in the U.S. over Canada barring Taiwan athletes from participating in the Olympic Games. Then the U.S. justice department attempted to make its uranium antitrust case cover the Canadian industry, even naming a late Canadian premier, Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan. As a U.S. investment banker recently bluntly told a Canadian-U.S. conference on joint relations, Canada is no exception to the rule that unless you are financially self-sufficient you better be nice to your banker. The U.S. is Canada's banker and we are in debt to them up to our maple leaves, unquestionably.

The same banker warned that by pursuing our current economic policies Canada is "jumping on the toes of the gorilla." So what are we to do? The gorilla is strangling us and it has the temerity to wonder why we are jumping on its toes. Not only should we allow our country to be raped, the Americans are now insisting that we enjoy it! At the same time it is difficult to criticize U.S. complacency towards Canada, because we are the author of our own misfortunes.

Even now secret talks between Canada and the U.S. regarding bilateral trade under the General Agreement on Trades and Tariffs are being held. Yes, secret talks, the same secrecy that is employed by the Foreign Investment Review Agency investigating U.S. takeovers. The U.S. has abandoned the word continental in favor of co-operative enterprise in such areas as gas transmission and defence equipment. It still amounts to the same thing. It would be nice to thunder that Canadians must decide about economic integration with the U.S. Unfortunately Canadians aren't given the choice as our governments proceed independently, rationalizing short term economic benefits against our national sovereignty.

The newest argument supporting the sellout is that Canada needs massive amounts of foreign capital to develop our country. Put another way, the Canadian economic system will collapse unless we continue to import vast amounts of capital to support our lavish spending habits. Modifying our wasteful economic system or learning to live within our means are considered heretical alternatives. Neither of our major political parties has the guts to stem the flow of national lifeblood. As the gorilla's embrace tightens, our only thought is to feed him faster and increase his strength.

Revolt of Quebec Anglos

MONTREAL—"It's freedom, that's what it's all about," says Barry Oxford, a young, grade two operator with Canadian National Railways, as he plunks his groceries on the cashier's tray at Steinberg's supermarket on Sherbrooke Street West. He's voting Union Nationale.

"I just can't stand the sight of him. I'm sick to death of him," says Kim Brewster, a student of Loyola college. By "him" she means Quebec's Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa. She's voting for the reformist, Democratic Alliance.

"To see him I've got to go to Toronto now," says Joe Bremer, pointing at the colored snapshot of his grandson clipped to the dashboard of his taxi.

"My son, he's a chartered accountant, packed it in a couple of years ago and moved — there just wasn't the business here any more." He's voting Union Nationale.

Children Leave Que.

To listen to English-speaking Montrealers is to realize that the Liberal candidate, who described Bourassa as "the most despised man in this province," was guilty, if anything of a polite understatement. Of 20 English-speaking voters that I talked to, not one intended to vote Liberal.

Long the most docile and the most compacent community in the province because they were confident that they wielded power where it counted, not the ballot box but in the boardrooms, English Quebecers have suddenly become rebels with a cause.

Bill 22, it doesn't need to be said, has sent them to the barricades. In fact, the legislation has little direct effect upon English Quebecers, except that their sons and daughters, to practise as doctors or lawyers or as other professionals will have to be fluent in French and that their schools, because of reduced enrolment by the children of ethnic parents who have to pass a language test to qualify will slowly dwindle in size.

Bill 22 instead has become a focus, and a symbol, for grievances and fears that go far beyond the specific issues of language in the schools, or in corporate offices. It has made the English community realize at last as former federal cabinet minister Bryce Mackasey puts it, "That they really are a minority." It has made them come to terms with injustices committed against themselves on the basis of racial discrimination in exactly the same way that French-Canadians have for so long suffered discrimination. It has convinced them, lastly, that they are dealing with a government that is morally bankrupt.

Some are scared. Many are plainly and simply angry. By rejecting the Liberals, English Quebecers are running the risk of helping elect a separatist Parti Quebecois government. Most no longer care. "No matter what happens," says pensioner James Flannery, "what could be worse than what we have now?"

This outrage, no matter the result of the election on Monday night, has already changed the character of Quebec politics. The English-speaking minority has found its voice. That voice, in a change that is as decisive, has not in turn been shouted down by French-speaking Quebecers.

In a way that is very curious, and is expressive of the way political change really happens, English-Quebecers, just by fighting for their rights within Quebec, have begun to win for themselves the right to be treated as Quebecers. "I never believed they had it in them. I never believed they cared," commented a senior Parti Quebecois organizer. Suddenly the French language press has found space for articles about the English community and has discovered that it includes, not just culture-consuming matrons in Westmount and grey-suited stockbrokers, but also taxi drivers and barbers and small store owners, as scared for their jobs and their property values as counterparts in Montreal's poor east end.

As the target for the rebellion, Bourassa would be its first casualty. In fact, his "politics of fear" — Bourassa's threats that a Parti Quebecois win would lose the province investments and jobs — will, as likely as not, bring him victory. If it happens, this would be a victory by default, power retained but a mandate withheld.

The real casualty, in a sad and ironic way, would be Mackasey. He knows it. Sometimes, perhaps only because of exhaustion, he seems to be preparing himself for defeat. "There are times," he told an audience in Chateauguay, "when, if you don't elect us politicians, you'd be doing us a favor."

In one sense, Mackasey came home too late. English Quebecers first began to return to the provincial mainstream two years ago when a new generation of English-speaking political leaders, such as college teacher Bob Keaton and Journalist Nick Aufder Maur, ran for the Montreal city council. Once elected, they provided Mayor Jean Drapeau with the first effective opposition he has known. Both now are running as provincial candidates for the Democratic Alliance.

In another sense, Mackasey is talking to a community that has moved beyond him. Rather than depending upon leaders to speak for them, English Quebecers are speaking out for themselves. It was their defection from the Liberals, as much as Mackasey's arrival, that convinced Bourassa, in mid-campaign, to promise to modify the Bill 22 language tests.

PQ Win Small Price?

The price to be paid for this English rebellion could be a Parti Quebecois government, and therefore the realization of the threat to Confederation that Mackasey came here to fight.

Confederation, though, will not necessarily be damaged more by a Parti Quebecois victory caused in part by English-speaking defections from the Liberals than by its alternative, a Parti Quebecois defeat caused by English Quebec's allegiance, out of fear not out of conviction, to the Liberals.

This is the least expected, and most encouraging, consequence of the whole tangled affair. Just at the time when across Canada, relations between French and English have never been worse, they are beginning to improve within Quebec. If the price to be paid for this achievement is a Parti Quebecois government committed to a referendum on separation that quite certainly, will fail, then maybe that's a cost, even if a steep one, that Confederation can afford.

Still, No One Heeds Alarm

OTTAWA — The average Canadian probably knows very well that this country's fuel position has become much less favorable than it seemed only two or three years ago.

It is unlikely that some of the implications have sunk home. Possibly there is a vague awareness of some need to conserve fuel. Yet, if this average Canadian happened to be in Ottawa, he could not be left with any impression except that the government itself is spendthrift in its use of fuel.

He just might make some connection between the controversy over Transport Minister Otto Lang's three-year bill of $740,000 for the use of executive aircraft and the government's spendthrift attitude towards fuel consumption but it is more likely that, if he had any doubts about the appropriateness of the minister's course, that he would relate it to taxes and the uses to which the individual's money is put.

If he were actually living in Ottawa, he would probably think the transport minister's executive flying very small potatoes in relation to the government's over-all happy-go-lucky attitude towards the public funds in the last decade. But if his mind were on fuel matters he might, possibly, drive along the expressway known as the Queensway in Ottawa and note the wild lavishness with which not just Ottawa's railway station is illuminated but the equally Lord Bountiful approach with which a whole surrounding area is lighted. The state railway, CN, is a major participant in the station operation.

Cut Out Lights

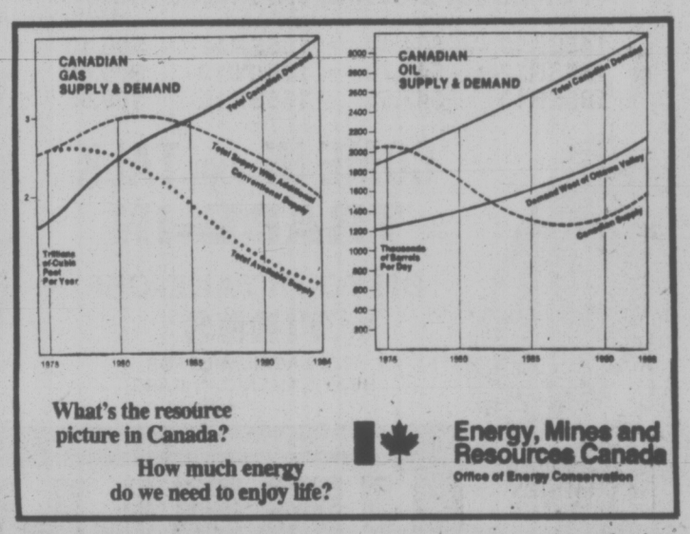
It is probable that illumination in government areas of the capital could be cut by two-thirds without interfering in any way with a pedestrian's ability to find his way around and without risk of producing an unwelcome increase in such crimes as muggings and purse-snatchings which seem to be often associated with poorly illuminated areas. And at that, the government's open-handed expenditure of electricity has been significantly cut back in the last two years. Any middle of the night check will show far fewer floors in government buildings are fully illuminated than two years ago but equally they will never show that the government has stopped illuminating entire floors when it needs light on part of one.

There have been some federal thrusts in the direction of fuel conservation — quite a lot of propaganda in favor of insulation, for instance. The most successful action, although in implementation beyond federal scope, has been in some lowering of speed limits, which produces quite marginal fuel savings. At the same time, however, the consumption of gasoline by the most fuel-guzzling cars goes on being subsidized by the federal government.

There have been some sound reasons in support of part of the government's oil subsidization policies since the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries quadrupled the price in 1973. These have involved the need for anti-inflationary measures. Few would deny that the case was strong in such fields as home heating and, in all probability, electric power generation at thermal plants. But it has always been impossible to defend, in terms of logic, subsidies that encouraged the use of gasoline in all sorts of cars, regardless of their fuel economy.



It is not a provable point, but it is certainly arguable that the steep rise in gasoline prices that has actually taken place has been a greater deterrent to unnecessary fuel consumption than the very partially observed reductions in speed limits which some provinces have adopted. A shift in routine driving from a large and powerful car to a smallish one will save a lot more fuel than a reduction in speed limits from 60 miles per hour to 50. I have made this particular change myself, with a savings in both money and gasoline that is no less than spectacular.

Against this sort of background, a speech that Finance Minister Donald Macdonald made recently to the American Petroleum Society in San Francisco is significant. Part of the speech dealt with the relatively gloomy state of Canada's petroleum reserves. He estimated that currently 65 per cent of Canada's energy consumption is met through gas and oil and that by 1985, even with "diligent conservation efforts" these two hydrocarbon fuels will meet half the nation's energy needs.

Diligent conservation efforts do not now exist, certainly not on the part of the government to which Macdonald belongs, so the 1985 picture may be less promising than he suggests. Macdonald then came to the supply picture and it should be remembered in reading what he said that the difference between "proven" reserves and "potential" ones is vast. One is known to exist and it is surmised that the other might exist.

He gives the figure of proven petroleum reserves at "perhaps" nine billion barrels of oil and about 50 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Drilling results in the Mackenzie delta have been disappointing and the proven reserves of natural gas there seem to be somewhere between four and six trillion cubic feet. The potential — not proven —reserves of oil in frontier regions have been trimmed from 79 billion barrels to 28 billion since 1973, and that still remains to be found, delineated and proven by costly drilling.

For natural gas, the figure for potential — again not proven — reserves has been cut from 680 trillion cubic feet to 290 trillion. Again, the proving (if it ever takes place) lies in the future. And finally, Macdonald conceded that further development of the Alberta tar sands is questionable even at today's oil prices. The conclusion is that in less than 10 years we will be importing oil at the rate of about one million barrels a day, perhaps 50,000 fewer, perhaps 200,000 more.

We are now, of course, a net importer of oil, buying abroad more than we sell to the United States.

Potential Only

This country has, at the present time, a very serious balance of payments problem, an adverse balance running to the neighborhood of $5 billion annually. There are, to be sure, two views of it. One is that we will experience such a surge of exports — for reasons that no one makes quite clear — that the problem will take care of itself. All forecasts of this sort depend upon American economic recovery and the proponents of the view retain an optimism that does not seem to be related to actual economic developments in the United States, where recovery is proving to be as uncertain and unsteady as in this country.

The opposite view is that the problem is acutely serious, is being neglected and that the current practice of financing it through huge foreign borrowings is not sustainable for much longer. That latter view is, of course, the one I have argued repeatedly in this column and there are some very serious people who share it although, in fairness, one must say that some of the most powerful figures in the government of Canada believe it is alarmist and wrong. Yet one must also say that it is a remarkable thing when a minister of finance can make such gloomily realistic assessment of fuel supplies with no reference to current or future balance of payments problems. After all, most people can multiply today's oil prices by one million by 365 days in the year and see that the sum would burden even a much healthier balance of payments situation than we enjoy.

Police Reply

Although I am reluctant to reply to inaccurate comments anonymously made in the letters to the editor column of newspapers—even when those comments are dressed up in Latin in an attempt to dignify them—I make an exception in this case. I refer to the anonymous letter of Oct. 16 signed by Pro Bono Publico, a clear example of faeces taurorum.

Pro Bono Publico purported to give the public facts regarding the wages paid to Saanich police constables. In order to clear up any confusion which may have been caused, the real facts are as follows:

In 1975 Victoria constables were paid $16,320 but Saanich police constables were paid $16,200—a difference of $120. Regina police, far from making only $14,220 as suggested by Pro Bono Publico, in fact made $15,804.

Both Saanich and Victoria police constables receive an additional two per cent with 10 years of service. Both these departments received this benefit in 1975 and it has not been increased.

Pro Bono Publico states that local constables were paid more than every other police department in Canada other than Vancouver. The truth is that Saanich first class rates were the lowest in all of B.C. except for Nelson and below those in Montreal, Hamilton and Toronto — not above as suggested.

At this time the rates in Regina are as follows:

(a) a first class constable with 4 years' service in 1976 receives $17,905.82; (b) a first class constable with 8 years' experience receives $18,394.00; (c) A first class constable with 12 years' experience receives $19,092.

The comparable figures for Saanich are:

(a) $16,200; (b) $16,200; (c) $16,524.

The 1976 offer made by the Saanich police board would have made the Saanich police department one of the lowest paid forces west of the Maritimes. To make matters worse, the latest figures from Statistics Canada indicate that the cost of living in B.C. has increased far more than the cost of living in all other areas of Canada.

To conclude, the reference that Pro Bono Publico made to the Saanich police having "guns out" and "sticking up the citizens" is reminiscent of the Starbuck, starstruck comments of the erstwhile mayor of Victoria in an inflamatory statement made during last year's Victoria and Saanich negotiations for police wages. Rather than relying on Latin pseudo-intellectual pomposity, Pro Bono Publico should refer to Benjamin Franklin: "Mankind are very odd creatures; one half censure what they practise, and the other half practise what they censure."—J. Phillip Jamieson, President, Saanich Police Association.

Industry Paradox

I should like to reassure your correspondent G. H. Splatt that I am in no way opposed to the tourist or in fact any industry which creates employment and leaves the province with a fair return.

The point I tried to make in my letter was that so-called free enterprise gets most indignant when government on any level intervenes during good times but the minute an industry is in trouble, appeals are made for assistance. This statement does not in any way apply solely to the tourist industry which experienced a bad year in 1976 due in part to various causes such as the U.S. bicentennial, increases in ferry rates and the sales tax. An appeal was made to the provincial government for a minister of tourism and assistance in a promotion campaign.

I am not in any way opposed to these requests as the tourist brings to the province large revenues and creates employment for many. However, I do reiterate my view that intervention from any level of government in good times is resented and yet this attitude changes in bad periods. We hear so much of too much intervention of government and yet assistance is well received when times are not so good.

Your correspondent classifies me as the perennial correspondent and I accept this with satisfaction as I have always taken a keen interest in public affairs on all three levels of government. I feel it is the duty of every citizen to involve himself or herself in public affairs. Perhaps if this were carried out we would have better government and the voting turnouts, especially in municipal election would not be pitiful as at present. Freedom to express an opinion is still a very valuable asset.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

A Pitiful Report

THE SUN
An Editorial

If ever there was an orphan in the borning, it is the Bawlf report on shortages in housing submitted to the British Columbia government and made public this month by Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis. No one, other than Recreation Minister and, in private life, developer Sam Bawlf, wants to pat it fondly on the head and say, That's our boy. Indeed, the judgment of any government which used it as the basis for long-term housing policy would be seriously questioned.

In fact, where was the political intelligence in releasing it at all?

Its proclaimed joint parentage of municipal and provincial government representatives has been denied by the official municipal side. The Union of B.C. Municipalities disowns it and calls it nothing more than the personal views of Mr. Bawlf, chairman of the B.C. government-established provincial-municipal committee.

For its part, the Social Credit government has shown restrained acceptance of the document. Every faction in the housing industry other than the private industry developers has looked askance at it, and the private developers have remained silent.

The silence is not surprising because the Bawlf report makes recommendations that the private industry is too sophisticated to advocate openly.

The thesis of Mr. Bawlf's report is that all will be made right in the housing game, and affordable housing placed in reach of all decent citizens, if government controls on private developers and land use are virtually removed, if publicly-held land is turned over to developers in a rush, if rent controls are lifted, if the existing mechanism whereby municipal governments and developers negotiate the final shape of housing developments through land use contracts is removed, and if senior government grants for construction of municipal services — sewers, schools, roads and so on — are beefed up so that developers will not have to pay for them themselves.

Pitifully unrealistic. So unrealistic, for example, that the report overlooks the fact that most reputable private developers accept the land-use contract, or comprehensive development concept, because it allows them, through trade-offs with the municipal government, to create better developments — and therefore more economically attractive developments — than strict adherence to zoning rules would allow.

And beyond that, no attempt is made in the report to examine the record of the private housing development industry or the partnership between government and private sector in developing housing housing that suits the whole community. No attempt is made to examine government housing, co-operative housing, building societies. And no attempt is made to weigh the values of essential public concerns for the environment, for urban esthetics.

If the provincial government had wanted only the private developers' viewpoint on housing, it could have gone to the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada or, more to the point, to the Real Estate Association of B.C., which commissioned through the University of B.C.'s urban land economics division and released last weekend a much more thoughtful and intelligent document than the Bawlf report — examining, for example, whether more desirable housing ends could not be achieved by subsidizing home buyers rather than home builders.

There is an issue for intelligent debate. But so discredited is the Bawlf report that even its worthwhile recommendations — smaller lots, zero-lot-line designs, public education on the alternatives to single family detached housing, the pruning of municipal red tape, and clearly specified housing standards and regulations — are in danger of being ignored.

The problem merits more serious attention from Victoria.

The Beer-Barrel Sub That Began It All

By ANDREW WILSON
London Observer

The Royal Navy, celebrating 75 years of its submarine service this month, is also honoring the bicentenary of underwater warfare. Two hundred years ago Ezra Lee, a sergeant in the American Revolutionary Army, set off in a strange craft to make the first submarine attack in history — 29 years before the battle of Trafalgar.

In a graciously-worded retrospect the Admiralty recalls that Lee's target was HMS Eagle, the flagship of the British fleet blockading New York harbor.

His submarine, the Turtle, resembled a wooden beer-barrel, was powered by two foot-operated propellers, and contained enough air to remain submerged for only 30 minutes.

After pedalling hard Lee reached the Eagle and dived. His plan was to bore a screw device into Eagle's hull, leaving it to support a package of explosives triggered by a clockwork mechanism. But he found the Eagle had a copper-bottomed hull which he could not penetrate with his screw.

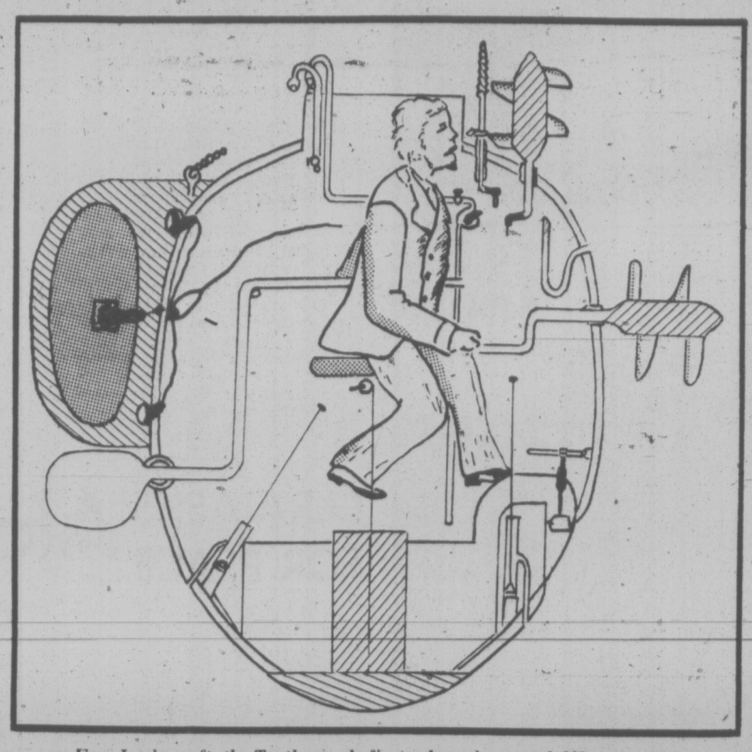
The effects of carbon dioxide poisoning probably prevented him from trying further. He surfaced and began to make his own way back to shore, As Lee made his escape he was pursued by a British patrol boat, which was almost blown out of the water when he jettisoned his explosives.

The incident so worried the commander of the British fleet that he ordered the blockading ships to move to the comparative safety of the outer harbor, where, says the Royal Navy, their effectiveness was undoubtedly far less.

It was another American, Robert Fulton, who set up the next milestone in submarine history by constructing the three-man Nautilus in 1795. As America was no longer at war, Fulton took his design to France, where it was turned down as "a dishonorable form of warfare."



Ezra Lee's craft, the Turtle, made first submarine attack 200 years ago

Fulton next tried Britain, where his submarine was examined in 1804 by a committee which the great statesman William Pitt was a member. Pitt's enthusiasm was scathingly dismissed by Lord St. Vincent, one of Britain's greatest sailors, who said: "Pitt is the greatest fool that ever existed to encourage a mode of war which those who command the sea do not want, and if successful will deprive them of it."

The Royal Navy now admits sadly that the Earl's view was to be the basis of British naval policy for nearly 100 years.

It was the Americans who again pushed forward the frontier of technology when in 1864, during the Civil War, the Union frigate Housatonic became the first vessel to be sunk by a submersible, manned by the Confederates.

But when the Housatonic was salvaged the mangled wreck of the Confederate submersible was found under it, the latter's weapon, an explosive pack attached to a spar, having blown up the attacker as well.

It was not in fact until the perfection of the torpedo, invented by a Scotsman, Robert Whitehead, while working in Austria, in the 1860s, that submarines became serious weapons of war, with the result that by 1900 six navies owned a total of 10 submarines, and 11 more were being built.

France led, with a total of 14 building, but America's Holland type were reckoned the best in the world. (Russia had been buying, though not building, submarines since 1885.)

Among the major powers it was only in Britain that the submarine was actively discouraged — a situation not basically altered by the launching of the first British submarine in 1901.

Today, after some hard-learned lessons, and some brilliant successes, in two World Wars, the Royal Navy gives the submarine the priority it deserves — as the capital ship of the new age. Its main strength, in purely naval terms, is in nine nuclear powered hunter-killer submarines, with a 10th about to be commissioned. In addition it has 19 "conventional" diesel-powered submarines.

Four nuclear-powered Polaris boats, each with 16 missiles, form Britain's contribution to the NATO strategic deterent.

The submarine forces of the superpowers are, of course, much larger. The United States has 65 nuclear-powered hunter-killer plus 41 Polaris or Poseidon boats. Russia has 78 strategic-missle-launching submarines (generally of lower capability than those of America), 40 nuclear hunter-killers, and 44 nuclear-powered submarines armed with shorter-range cruise missiles.

In 200 years Sergeant Lee's "beerbarrel" has come a long way.

Social Credit: Federal Party Without a Base

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

In the contest for the succession to Real Caouette in the office of national leader of the Social Credit Party of Canada, Andre Fortin, a federalist who wants to build party strength across Canada, was an easy winner over Rene Matte, who leans toward independence for Quebec.

But the vote need not be read as a portent of a Social Credit resurgence from coast to coast. The party Mr. Fortin has been chosen to lead is a Quebec party, with a few skimpy branches, but no real roots elsewhere in the country. Of the 1,252 delegates at the convention, 1,019 were from Quebec.

Mr. Fortin is known in his home riding of Lotbiniere and in Ottawa as a hardworking member of Parliament, a capable organizer and a man who does his political homework. But he has given few hints so far of being gifted with the sort of political magic that would be needed to harvest Socred votes on ground that proved stony even for the charismmatic Mr. Caouette.

For the brand of Social Credit that thrived in Quebec in the 1960s and survived into the 1970s under Mr. Caouette's leadership has little in common with the Social Credit that holds power in British Columbia and is the official opposition in Alberta.

For the Social Credit that began in the West as a movement of populist protest out of the depression of the 1930s has long since evolved, amid growing prosperity, into the cosy conservatism of the comfortable, the orthodoxy of people who have something to lose and are not about to risk it in radical economic experiments.

But in Quebec Social Credit has remained a movement of protest, an economically radical but socially conservative populism that thrived in the non man's-land between the breakdown of traditional parochial community structures and the rise of the new, urban, industrial society. Its supporters have been the little people of the rural and small town backwaters, people who felt ignored and forgotten and who could find no answer when Mr. Caouette asked them, "What have you got to lose?"

Inevitably, since the Socred convention came in the final days of a provincial election campaign, its entrails will be examined for omens of the outcome of the contest between federalists and separatists which is among the issues at stake in the Quebec election. Inevitably the defeat of Mr. Matte will be seen as a sign of federalist strength.

But any such attempt at divination would be foolhardy. Social Credit is a federal party, not by choice but by necessity — it has consistently and repeatedly failed in efforts to establish a solid provincial base. And a federal party that

. . . stoney ground

FORTIN
. . . skimpy branches

espoused provincial independence would be signing its own death warrant.

More important, Social Credit draws its stength from the secot of the Quebec population that is most turned toward preservation of the ways and values of the past, most frightened by the prospect of radical social change, most out of harmony with the urban labor unions and the middle class professionals who support the Parti Quebecois.

There was a strong vein of nationalism in the Social Credit movement of Quebec when it burst into national attention in the early 1960s. But the nationalists, led by Mr. Caouette's former lieutenant, Gilles Gregoire, split away, first to form a right-wing separatist party and later to be absorbed by the PQ.

The list of delegates to a Socred convention is far from a representative sample of the Quebec electorate.

Chasing the Big Rubles

russell baker

Leo Tolstoy is tired of writing for kopecks. He wants the big rubles.

"So you think you're ready for the big rubles, Leo," says his agent.

Leo Tolstoy says he wants it all. The 250,000-ruble advance. The 1,275,000-ruble paperback sale. The big movie deal. The television sale.

"Such talk is music to my heart," says his agent. "Go home and write me a few hundred words describing your novel."

Leo Tolstoy goes home and writes 250,000 words. His agent cannot wade through it. "Leo, Leo," he groans. "All this talk about Napoleon in somebody's parlor and I can't even keep the names straight. Go home and write letters to John Kenneth Galbraith and Norman Mailer and Philip Roth and ask them to give you some punchy sales lines for the jacket, and maybe I can find a sucker."

Leo Tolstoy writes letters of 100,000 words each to Galbraith, Mailer and Roth. They do not answer. Turgenev and Henry James, however, agree to send jacket blurbs on condition that Leo Tolstoy stop writing them 100,000-word letters.

Leo Tolstoy shows James' blurb to his agent. It says, "Leo Tolstoy has done it again!" Turgenev's says. "Couldn't put it down!"

"Leo," says the agent, "I will give it to you from the shoulder. James Turgenev does not sell books, but I will tell you what."

And he tells Leo Tolstoy to forget the book for the time being and write the condensation for The Reader's Digest.

Leo Tolstoy writes the condensation. It runs to 575,000 words.

"Let's skip the condensation, Leo, and go right to the movie," says his agent. "Once you have written the movie, you can do the condensation of the film and then work backward to the full novel."

At home, Leo Tolstoy writes a great movie. If filmed, it will run for 37 hours, not including intermissions for meals. "Leo," says his agent, "nobody is going to buy a 37-hour movie, a 575,000-word condensation, or a full-length novel that takes a 100,000-word letter to describe."

Leo Tolstoy is depressed. He sees the big rubles eluding him.

"However," says the agent, "if you write the soundtrack music for the movie, it will create a terrific audience, which will then demand that the rest of the movie be made, which will create a huge demand for the condensation of the original novel, which will make everybody want more and have the publishers begging you to write the full-length best-selling novel."

Leo Tolstoy goes home and sits down at the piano. After having a lot of fun learning to play "Chopsticks," he realizes he cannot write music.

"In that case, Leo," says his agent, "do the comic book first. Then we will hire a composer to write the music for the smash-hit film soon to be made on which the comic book is based, and point out that when the movie is finished it will be based on the full-length best seller soon to be written."

Leo Tolstoy goes home and does the comic book. It is thicker than the Manhattan telephone directory and is very poorly drawn.

"Leo," says his agent, "I don't suppose you could make the bubble gum."

"Bubble gum?" says Leo Tolstoy.

"The 'War and Peace Bubble Gum,'" says his agent. "It would create a demand for the 'War and Peace Comic Book,' which would trigger demand for the "War and Peace Sound-Track Record,' which would set up demand for the film, which would create demand for the condensation of the book on which the film is based, which will create demand for this best seller you want to write."

Leo Tolstoy admits to an inadequacy. He cannot make bubble gum.

"Not to worry," says his agent. "We'll go all the way to the end to start and work backward. Go home and make me a 'War and Peace T-Shirt'."

Leo Tolstoy sits at home sewing. He sews for days. The T-shirt already covers 14 acres. "Sometimes," thinks Leo Tolstoy, "literature doesn't seem to be my glass of tea." He toys with the idea of chucking it all and looking for the big rubles in the garment trade.

CAMPAGNOLA IN SMASH

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Iona Campagnolo, new federal minister responsible for health and physical fitness, suffered a broken rib in a car accident Friday night.

She said she hit a patch of black ice on Highway 16 about 25 miles east of here. Police said her car rolled two or three times. A passenger in the car was unhurt.

Miners Settle Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tentative agreement to end a 17-week strike by about 450 members of the United Steelworkers of America at the Cyprus Anvil Mine at Faro, Yukon, was reached here on the weekend.

Details of the pact, reached following 36 hours of continuous bargaining under federal mediator Doug Cameron, were not released pending a ratification vote.

The two sides had reached agreement last spring, but the federal Anti-Inflation Board rolled back the agreed 46-per-cent increase over two years to about 24 per cent.

When the union appealed the rollback, board administrator Donald Tansley further reduced the increase to 18 per cent.

The two union locals, comprised of about 400 miners and about 50 office workers, then walked off the job July 30 to protest the rollbacks.

The Canada Labor Relations Board subsequently ruled the strike was legal, even though a collective agreement was in force.

The original agreement provided for a $7 base rate for workers who live in a partially-subsidized community which has cost of living 30 per cent higher than Vancouver.

Former base rates for the two locals ranged from $5.75 to $5.96 an hour.

The lead-silver-zinc operation at Faro is located about 220 miles northeast of Whitehorse.

LOW-COST HOUSING for senior citizens is well under way on Foul Bay Road in Oak Bay. Here, Ken Musfelt waves from one of the four two-storey structures on the site, which also has three five-storey buildings. The $6½ million project of the Baptist Housing Society of B.C. will provide 219 units. The two-storey units will be completed in late February and the others in mid-summer 1977.

Smallwood Returns to Liberals

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — Former Premier Joseph Smallwood's return to the Newfoundland Liberal party Saturday has launched speculation that he will try once again for the party's leadership at a convention next Oct. 14-15.

When asked if he planned to seek the leadership, now held by Ed Roberts, the 76-year-old Smallwood would say only that "every man has a right to run."

Roberts, who defeated Smallwood in a 1974 convention, announced Saturday that the former premier and the other two members of the Liberal - Reform party — founded in 1975 — have accepted an invitation to join the Liberal party.

The others, Eric Dawe and Rod Moores, were among three of Smallwood's Liberal Reform members elected in the September, 1975, provincial general election. The third, Winston Callan, joined the Liberals earlier this year.

Saturday's move increased Liberal strength in the 51-seat legislature to 30. Progressive Conservatives hold 29 seats, one is held by an independent Liberal, and there is one vacancy.

Roberts described Smallwood's decision to rejoin the party as a "great day for Liberalism in Newfoundland."

The former premier, who resigned from the government in early 1972 after an indecisive election the previous fall, said he was "happy and proud to be reunited with the Liberals."

"My main happiness lies in the fact that there now will be a union of Liberals in the cause of Liberalism," Smallwood said.

Smallwood said in 1972 that he was finished with politics after 22 years as premier — a political career that started when he led Newfoundland into Confederation in 1949.

He changed his mind in 1974 and ran against Roberts in a leadership race.

Roberts had succeeded Smallwood as leader in 1972.

Smallwood again said he was through with politics after his leadership defeat but by mid-1975 he was preparing to run in the 1975 election and

CLRA ASKS FOR PEACE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Construction Labor Relations Association is preparing to approach Labor Minister Allan Williams and construction trade unions with proposals aimed at preserving the industry in British Columbia CLRA President Chuck McVeigh said on the weekend.

McVeigh said the number of work stoppages will be of prime consideration in the proposals.

He said to strike over centrally-important issues such as wages is one thing, but industry shutdowns over minor matters can't be tolerated any more.

Alcan Quebec Strike Settled at Last

ARVIDA, Que. (CP) — Employees of three Alcan Aluminium Ltd. smelters in Quebec agreed during the weekend to return to work today, ending a violence-marred, five-month strike that crippled the local economy.

Neither union nor management spokesmen expressed complete satisfaction with the terms of the mediation report — submitted by Provincial Judge Alan B. Gold — but both parties said the length of the strike proved a major element in settling the dispute.

Union officials said 64.1 per cent of the 6,313 unionized workers who voted were in favor of returning to work. However, Jean Halley, president of the Federation of Aluminum Unions, said the vote was a "submission" to the company.

"But the union executive has had its back against the wall and we needed a fresh mandate from the membership," he said. "Everybody had the right to vote for or against."

Alcan spokesman Michel Curti said the company was "Bowing to the decision of our employees, considering the urgency of the economic situation in Arvida."

He said Alcan had "serious reservations" over some of the mediation proposals, but decided to accept the new 30-month contract and end the strikes at the Arvida, Alma and Beauharnois plants.

Alcan's Shawinigan plant, 85 miles northeast of Montreal, remains on strike because workers there have another union, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

One of the main stumbling blocks to a contract agreement arose from Alcan's dismissal of 25 union members for work disruptions.

Halley said the workers' dismissals will be changed to temporary suspensions and an arbitrator will be appointed to make a final decision within six months on whether they are to be rehired.

Formal signature of the contract is expected early this week.

Total company losses during the strike "ran into the millions of dollars," Curti said.

The average Alcan worker has lost about $6,000 since the strike was launched May 31.

Under terms of the agreement, journeymen will receive a 10.3-per-cent salary increase in the first 10 months of the contract, 8.8 per cent after another 10 months and four per cent after 20 months, giving them a base wage of $6.51 per hour at the end of the contract.

BNA 'A Smokescreen' For Ottawa: Barrett

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Dave Barrett, leader of the British Columbia New Democratic Party, says the federal government's interest in bringing the constitution to Canada is a smokescreen to cover more important issues.

There is no need to bring the British North America Act to Canada from Britain; "just leave it exactly where it is," he said.

"It hasn't bothered anybody for 100 years and it won't bother anybody for another 100 years," he said. "Frankly, who gives a fig."

The real issues in Canada are housing, unemployment, education and decent health care, he said.

He was speaking at a funding-raising dinner, also attended by national NDP leader Ed Broadbent, who criticized Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark's stance on thge economy.

"Joe Clark said recently they don't want to say what they're going to do because the Liberals might take the ideas and do them themselves," said Mr. Broadbent. "He really said that."

The Tories do not want to come to grips with the issues, he said, "all they want to come to grips with is winning the next election."

Meanwhile, William Kashtan, leader of Canada's Communist party, said Sunday the British North America Act should be scrapped and replaced by a "made-in-Canada" constitution.

The BNA Act is an obsolete document written by the British when French Canadians were looked upon as a conquered people, he said.

"We need a made-in-Canada constitution to unite Canada and put an end to the second-class citizenship status imposed upon French-speaking Canadians by the BNA Act," Kashtan added.

He said a new constitution should establish a "bi-national state and guarantee language and cultural rights for English and French-speaking Canadians."

Kashtan, who is touring British Columbia and Alberta, spoke to about 200 people at the Russian People's Home here. He also met with Vancouver-area trade unionists Sunday night.

McKitka Cleared Of Debt

SURREY (CP) — Mayor Ed McKitka was found not guilty in Surrey provincial court last week on two charges of failing to file a written disclosure of debt under the Municipal Officials and Employees Act.

The two counts alleged McKitka failed to report a $20,000 personal guarantee on a loan for Overland Limestone Products Ltd. during last year's Surrey municipal election campaign and after taking office in January. He was charged on March 22.

McKitka said in notes included with his nomination papers that his shares in Overland were sold in 1971, although he was "not sure whether formal transfer was ever completed by the purchaser. "He said "any interest (in Overland) would be a formal one only."

Defence counsel Thomas Dohm asked for an insufficient evidence dismissal, saying McKitka's position as guarantor did not make him a debtor.

Provincial court Judge D. S. Collins said Friday that the Crown "had failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that (McKitka) is a debtor or was a debtor to the Bank of Montreal (which made the loan)."

DRIVER CRUSHED

BLUE RIVER (CP) — RCMP have indentified a man killed Friday in an industrial accident about 25 miles north of here.

Jean Marie Gagnon, 34, of Valemount, was killed instantly when the log-skidder he was operating rolled on top of him.

Gagnon was working with other workmen clearing a B.C. Hydro right-of-way when the mishap occurred.

RCMP said the accident was indentical to one on Oct. 10 in which another Valemount man was killed in the same area. In both instances, neither man was wearing a seatbelt.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed little change today, attracting some cautious support after the sharp declines of the past two weeks.

Declines and advances were about evenly balanced in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said some traders seemed to be viewing blue chip stocks as attractively priced with the Dow hovering in its lowest range since the first few weeks of the year.

But market-watchers also noted that the market still faces some important economic worries — including the question of what pricing decision the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will make to take effect at the start of 1977.

Sprague Electric jumped 6¾ to $19⅝ in active trading. General Cable announced an offer late last week to buy all of Sprague's stock for $19.50 a share.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was unchanged at 53.10. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .13 at 98.42.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 265,400 shares, compared with 230,500 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

Alcan Aluminium was off ¼ at $24¼, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ½ at $24¾ and Chrysler Corp. ⅜ at $17¾. Molson A was off ¼ at $17½. Inco A ⅛ at $30 and Walker A ⅛ at $28¾.

HANG GLIDER GONE

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Helicopter rescue teams are searching for an Austrian who had hoped to become the first person to hang-glide from the 19,340-foot summit of Mount Kilimanjaro, Africa's highest peak.

Rescue officials said the missing man, Hurbert Kuehr, was last seen alive Thursday night by his wife, who had climbed with him to the snow-clad summit. They said Mrs. Kuehr then had gone down to a lower level on the mountain, leaving Kuehr to await favorable winds.

Slavery Returns to Equatorial Guinea

By MARK ARNOLD-FORSTER
Manchester Guardian

President Francisco Macias Nguema of Equatorial Guinea, a former Spanish colony, has re-introduced slavery to the island of Fernando Po, according to a forthcoming report by the British-based Anti-Slavery Society. The report estimates the slave population of the island, now renamed Macias Nguema Biyogo after the president, at about 20,000.

No one, the report says, is allowed to approach the island's beaches without permission. The 20,000 forced laborers are employed in the cultivation of cocoa, Equatorial Guinea's main source of income.

Not content with enslaving 20,000 cocoa workers on the island which bears his name, Macias is also suspected of involvement in the murder of many of his closest associates, including the governor of the Central Bank, the report says. "Since Equatorial Guinea's independence from Spain in 1968, a series of alleged plots and crises have given one man, President Macias, absolute power ... The murder and disappearance of most of his high officials, together with many other real or imagined opponents has caused up to a quarter of the population to seek refuge in other countries."

The president resorted to slavery early this year after an estimated 45,000 Nigerian Laborers began to leave the island following attacks on Nigerian diplomats and reports of ill-treatment.

Eleven Nigerians were killed during the evacuation. "In view of Equatorial Guinea's dependence on Nigerian labor for the cultivation of cocoa," the report says, "it is hardly surprising that the departure of the Nigerians was followed by reports that 'more than 20,000 people are being pressed into slavery to work on cocoa plantations in Equatorial Guinea.'"

In March, Macias decreed compulsory manual labor for everyone over age 15 in "government plantations and mines." The resolutions passed by successive congresses of the president's party (the only one) calling for the recruitment of 60,000 forced laborers.

Conditions on Macias Nguema Biyogo have been starkly described in a United Nations Development Program (UNDP) pamphlet which advises U.N. experts on what to expect if they go there. "Government authorization is necessary," the UND pamphlet says, "To visit the beaches and other areas of the island, and a fee is charged for each visit."

The UND pamphlet, dated last year, also gives an account of conditions on the island:

"There is a limited network of paved roads both on the island and in Rio Muni (the mainland part of Equatorial Guinea). Most of the feeder roads are unpaved and in bad condition during the rainy season. There are no railways. The local transport system ... consists of a privately run taxi-bus system of low standard. Taxis are available when the local petrol situation permits. Electricity is very expensive and the supply unreliable ... Until recently butane gas cylinders were used for cooking purposes but supplies are no longer available.

The Anti-Slavery Society's report strongly implies that conditions like these have helped to encourage slavery if only because few people would suffer them voluntarily.

Last Feb. 2, Guinean refugees told a London Times correspondent in Madrid that "President Macias Nguema had ordered his guards to arrest between 2,000 and 2,500 people in each of the 10 districts of the mainland province of Rio Muni to be used as unpaid forced labor on the plantations of the island of Macias Nguema."

The Society's report acknowledges that information from political refugees may be biased, but, the report adds, the refugees' story is credible because it was not possible to attract volunteers to the cocoa plantation in the past and there was no reason to believe that Macias would succeed in finding volunteers if the Spanish plantation owners had failed.

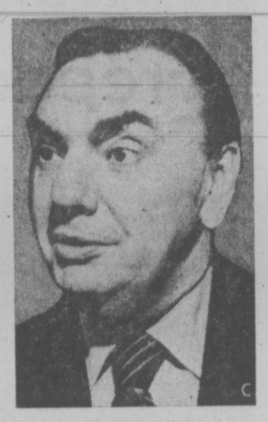
Right-Wing Pressures Warning for Liberals

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson has cautioned Liberal policy-makers against swinging too far right in response to growing right-wing tendencies among Canadians.

Jamieson told a weekend Atlantic Liberal policy conference that young people are becoming more conservative than their elders in contrast to a few years ago when many rejected material values. However, the Liberal party should continue to formulate policies in the middle.

"We cannot preserve the Liberal party if we have stop and start programs aimed at the next election instead of the next generation," Jamieson said.

It is important that the policies not lock the country into long-term programs which are unable to adapt to changing needs of society, he said.



Jamieson

Lack of flexibility is "at the root of one of our largest problems in federal-provincial relations," Jamieson said.

Problems have arisen because the federal government is locked into expenditures of millions of dollars for federal-provincial programs with little room to reduce spending when money is tight, he said.

Jamieson also said government involvement in the economy has always existed and will continue to do so.

"Not since the first days of this country ... have we ever had anything remotely resembling a free market economy."

The country "clearly has to have" state ownership and state involvement in things such as transportation because national transportation networks and other "deliberate distortions of some of the economic realities" are vital to regional economies.

Jamieson said the affluence of a few years ago created a society where young people had sufficient confindence in the future to be able to reject material values.

Oil Price Hike Seen as Threat

COLOGNE (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said Sunday the U.S. and West German economies can withstand an oil price increase of 15 per cent, but such a rise will have severe repercussions in many other countries.

"We read in the newspapers that the price of oil is supposed to be raised the end of this year," Schimdt said in an interview on German radio. "I can understand that, but I also am worried."

Schmidt was referring to reports the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is expected to raise the price of crude oil 10 to 15 per cent next month.

"The American economy can quite well digest a 15-percent price increase for crude oil," he said. "The German economy can digest that.

Schmidt added: "It's a little too easy to place the responsibility for the fate of the world economy exclusively before the door of the Americans, the Germans and the Japanese.

"There are other nations that play a large role. Among them is Iran. Among them is Saudi Arabia. Saudi Arabia to a larger extent because the Saudis presently and for the forseeable future have available unusually-large financial resources that they don't need for their own purposes."

He said West Germany is ready to offer further help to countries having economic problems but those countries must help themselves first.

Tanaka Campaigns

TOKYO (AP) — Campaigning began officially today for the Dec. 5 parliamentary elections which are expected to reflect the impact of the Lockheed payoff scandal.

Former prime minister Kakuei Tanaka, awaiting trial on bribery charges in the Lockheed case, was among the candidates who filed for the elections early today.

At stake are 511 seats in the lower house of the Diet, Japan's parliament. The chamber is being expanded from 491 members.

The ruling Liberal Democratic party, which holds 265 seats, goes into the campaibn sharply divided over Prime Minister Takeo Miki, who has held office for two years. Except for one brief period, the Liberal Democrats have been in control since the end of the Second World War.

Miki's chief opponent for party president and prime minister is Takeo Fukuda, who resigned last week as deputy prime minister. Miki was regarded as a compromise choice when he was named to replace Tanaka.

Protesters Storm N-Plant

BROKDORF, West Germany (Reuter) — Police on the weekend used fire hoses, tear gas and clubs to beat back thousands of demonstrators trying to storm the site of a nuclear power plant.

About 3,000 protesters used planks to bridge a moat around the site. They tried to force a way through barbed wire erected as a second line of defence, but water cannons behind the wire swept dozens back into the moat.

At the same time police charged the demonstrators from behind, swinging clubs and hurling tear-gas grenades.

Police gave no casualty toll, but Red Cross officials reported at least 50 people were hurt in the fighting.

The demonstrators had come from a rally of 25,000 people called to protest against the power station. Work has already begun on the 1,300-mega-watt plant at this village on the Elbe River about 30 miles northwest of Hamburg.

The rally in a field bordering the site had begun with a religious service at which four clergymen backed up pleas by the rally organizers to refrain from violence.

Most demonstrators obeyed. But many militants, described by police as "fringe anarchists," had arrived with shields, helmets, gas masks and oilskins.

The rally was called by a group identifying itself as Environmental Protection Lower Elbe, which claims that too little is known about the risks of nuclear power.

★ Uranium Mine Bombed

LIMOGES, France (AP) — Five bombs caused millions of dollars worth of damage early Sunday to the surface buildings of a uranium mine in central France, mine officials said.

No casualties were reported.

The initials "COPO" were painted on mine buildings and a telephone caller to the news organization Agence France-Presse claimed they signified an otherwise unknown anti-nuclear organization, "Commandos opposing with explosives the self-destruction of the universe."

Lisbon Bombing

LISBON (UPI) — An explosion outside the home of former agriculture minister Antonio Lopes Cardoso early today caused extensive damage but no injuries, a police spokesman said.

He said the explosion at the servants entrance to the house in central Lisbon blew in the door and completely destroyed the kitchen.

A leading member of the socialist party's left-wing, Cardoso resigned from the minority government two weeks ago after his faction was defeated in the party's national congress.

Cardoso, who supported Communist land takeovers, was the most controversial figure in Prime Minister Mario Soares' government. He came under fire from party moderates for his handling of land reform and his willingness to work with the Communists.

Cancer-Ridden Nazi's Freedom Protested

ROME (AP) — Jews, leftists and relatives of the 335 victims of the Ardeatine Caves massacre vowed today to do all they could to prevent convicted war criminal Herbert Kappler from being returned to his native Germany to die.

Kappler, incurably ill with cancer of the rectum and weighing only 84 pounds, has been in the Celio Military Hospital for 19 months. A military tribunal recommended to Defence Minister Vito Lattanzio on Saturday that the wartime chief of the Nazis' security police in Rome be given a conditional release after serving 28 years of his life sentence.

There was no indication when Lattanzio might decide whether to let the 69-year-old man go home to die.

On March 24, 1944, Kappler issued the orders for the execution of 335 Romans in retaliation for the killing of 32 German soldiers the day before by Italian partisans. Seventy of those executed were Jewish.

The court that sentenced Kappler in 1948 ruled that he was carrying out orders when he directed the shootings, since the Nazi policy was 10 Italians killed for every German victim. But the court found Kappler directly responsible for the other 15 executed. He said their deaths were a mistake due to the confusion.

About 4,000 people marched Sunday to the Ardeatine Caves where Kappler's victims are buried, and 250 more demonstrated outside the hospital.

Police stopped 50 of the demonstrators who smashed a gate and tried to enter the hospital.

Stats Canada Chief Blamed for Leaks

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario government documents show that a Statistics Canada employee referred to Sylvia Ostry, former chief statistician for Statistics Canada, as the source of authorization for a $100,000 private project using data collected by the agency, according to the Globe and Mail.

The same employee, Gerald Snyder, was one of three Statistics Canada employees reprimanded by Mrs. Ostry a year later, in 1974, for outside activities which the RCMP found they were conducting through a company called Alan Jeffrey Associates.

Mrs. Ostry was not available for comment.

Snyder and the other employees had sold Statistics Canada data to private companies through the firm between 1971 and 1974 in six contracts totalling $4,500.

The investigation ordered by Mrs. Ostry, now deputy federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs, found there had been "serious conflict of interest and unethical professional conduct on the part of three employees" although no breach of the confidentiality requirements of the Statistics Act were found.

The Globe says Ontario government documents include an April 25, 1973, letter to John Crispo, dean of the University of Toronto faculty of management studies, from Snyder in his capacity as director of Statistics Canada's merchandising and services division.

The Globe says that in the letter Snyder said Mrs. Ostry "... has suggested that I discuss with you a possible research project" on shopping centre development.

"Although the data input will come primarily from Statistics Canada sources, it is envisaged that the study will be undertaken on 'a non-governmental' basis."

The letter, the newspaper says, went on to state that the $100,000 project estimate "... includes an estimate of travel costs, an honorarium for myself, payment for professional assistance if necessary and the costs of programming and computer use over and above the amount covered by Statistics Canada as part of its ongoing program."

The Globe says copies of the letter were sent to Mrs. Ostry.

Crispo turned the offer down.

The Globe, in another Ottawa dispatch, says the system of using selection boards to choose the most capable candidates for appointment or promotion at Statistics Canada is followed in theory but often corrupted in practice.

For instance, The Globe says, jobs are classified or reclassified to suit the favored candidates' qualifications and selection boards can be rigged.

The Globe also cites recent news articles about "the unusually high number" of married couples working in high-paid jobs in the agency.

Chief statistician Peter Kirkham is quoted as saying he plans to make all changes necessary to keep public trust in the agency and to release through Parliament all information he can document on the alleged irregularities.

"But in the case of innuendo, it is very difficult to respond," he said in commenting on the reports about married.

COWICHAN SUPPORTS BRIDGE RULE

DUNCAN — The Cowichan regional board has written to the federal cabinet asking it to uphold a July decision by the Canadian Transport Commission that would require the Canadian Pacific Railway to rebuild two trestles north of Parksville.

The Cowichan board was informed last week that Canadiway on whose right-of-way the an Pacific, owner of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railtrestles are located, had petitioned the cabinet to rescind the decision to rebuild.

ECM Rejects Red Link

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The European Common Market today rejected a proposal for full-scale trade links with the East European Economic Bloc, Comecon.

The nine-nation market's foreign ministers, holding one of their regular meetings here, called instead for a continuation of trade links between the community and individual Communist countries.

The decision came in reply to a Comecon proposal of Feb. 16 suggestsing that both sides offer most favored nation treatment and establish business contacts for all kinds of economic co-operation.

The decision reflected the common market's privately expressed view that the Kremlin-dominated Comecon cannot be compared with the Common Market as a group organization and thus is not a valid negotiating partner for trade relations.

This is because the Common Market has an executive commission which can act independently in trade negotations on behalf of the nine member countries as they instruct.

Break-In Watch

NANAIMO — A neighborhood watch program is being started here after 200 residents attended a meeting to determine ways to reduce the number of break-ins.

Const. J. E. Good, head of the RCMP crime prevention department here, told the meeting there had been 1,730 residential break-ins for the year to the end of October.

Under the program, each person watches not only his own property but also that of his neighbor in an effort to cut break-ins.

Mayor Frank Ney said the city is behind the program and urged full participation.

Cutler Boots Esks In

WINNIPEG (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos combined experience, defence and a strong kicking game to overcome Winnipeg Blue Bombers 14-12 Sunday and advance to the Western Football Conference final.

The defending Grey Cup champions refused to be rattled by an explosive Winnipeg start and rallied behind the kicking of Dave Cutler and Gary Lefebvre to win the sudden-death semi-final.

Edmonton's key move was to make the necessary adjustments to take away the Blue Bombers' most effective weapon, Jay Washington's outside running.

"I thought that's what they were going to try to do, get wide with Washington," said Edmonton head coach Ray Jauch. "We wanted to take that wide stuff away from Washington, try to funnel him up the middle where we might have a chance to tackle him."

Stung by Washington's 77-yard gallop for the game's only touchdown at 3:15 of the first quarter, the Eskimos adjusted quickly and the Bombers failed to find any other successful plan of attack.

Edmonton overcame Winnipeg's 8-0 lead by halftime, when they had an 8-8 deadlock. After exchanging the lead in the final two quarters, the Eskimos finally won the right to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders on Cutler's 53-yard field goal at 12:11 of the final quarter.

Cutler kicked four field goals and two singles to account for all of Edmonton's scoring. Besides Washington's sudden run to pay dirt, Winnipeg's only other scoring was a field goal, a convert and two singles, all by Bernie Ruoff.

On the surface, it was the kicking game that finally spelled the difference. Cutler returned to the form that won him the western scoring title last season and Lefebvre, severely criticized by Jauch for his early-season punting, had his best performance of the year.

He averaged 49.3 yards to outkick Ruoff, and it was Lefebvre's punts that constantly took Edmonton out of trouble and put Winnipeg into difficult eld position.

While Cutler and Lefebvre were enjoying the afternoon, it was disastrous for Ruoff, the league's leading scorer this season. He missed on field goal tries from the 45-, 38- and 26-yard lines, distances he routinely hit from during the season.

Beneath the surface of the scoring statistics, the outcome was decided by a stubborn Edmonton defence, an adequate offence and the team's ability to make considerably fewer mistakes than Winnipeg.

The defence picked off two Ralph Brock passes late in the first half to set up four points.

The Edmonton defence was solid and the offence, under the alternating guidance of Bruce Lemmerman and Tom Wilkinson, continually moved into range for Cutler's field goals.

The offence was at its best in the third quarter when Wilkinson put together drives of 59 and 53 yards and almost completely controlled the ball. But it netted only three points as Lee Benard intercepted a pass in the end zone as the quarter ended.

A fumble on the exchange between Wilkinson and Howard Strickland set up a 22-yard Ruoff field goal to give Winnipeg a 12-11 lead at 9:17 of the final quarter. But Lemmerman then came on to hit Stu Lang with passes gaining 13 and 34 yards to set up the game-winning boot by Cutler.

Ticats Again Served Well By Defenders

HAMILTON (CP) — The much-maligned Hamilton Tiger-Cats defence answered all its critics by turning in a brutal performance Saturday in a second consecutive must game.

This time it was the Eastern Football Conference semi-final, with the defence forcing five Montreal fumbles as the Ticats blanked the Alouettes 23-0 to advance to the EFC final Sunday in Ottawa against the Rough Riders.

Just one week earlier, the Ticats, who lost their first seven games of the season including exhibitions because of a troublesome defence, downed Toronto Argonauts 23-14 on the last day of the regular season to make the playoffs.

The team came to life when general manager Bob Shaw fired head coach George Dickson early in the season and took over as interim coach. Shaw may have a tough time finding a replacement next year to fit his standards of coaching excellence.

"Our game plan was to play tough defence, make as few mistakes as possible and take advantage of theirs," Shaw said of Saturday's shutout victory.

The Ticats surprised the powerful Alouettes, who thought so little of the game that their final practice on Friday resembled a relaxed game of touch.

Star Montreal running back Johnny Rodgers further exhibited the care-free attitude taken by the Alouettes when he missed a team meeting and was fined close to $1,000, the playoff money he earned in Saturday's game.

Following the game, Shaw wasn't interested in talking about Sunday's final against the Rough Riders.

"Look fellows, just let me savor this one for a few minutes," he said. "I haven't really had time to enjoy today's win yet."

Hamilton scored 22 points in the second quarter en route to its sudden-death victory before 25,107 spectators at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

Linebacker Joe Harris was in good spirits following the game, as happy as a defensive player can be who has just scored two touchdowns on recovered fumbles.

Harris gave all the credit to his defensive team-mates: "If it hadn't been for Sam Britts and the rest of them like (Ken) Cotter and (Mike) Samples, I couldn't have done it."

It was Britts who set up two Hamilton touchdowns in the second quarter by ramming his helmet into Rodgers and Andy Hopkins, forcing the Montreal running backs to fumble.

Cougars Pass 'Big Week' Test with Flying Colors

Victgoria Cougars, you'll have to admit, passed their "big week" test with flying colors.

So now look who's ready to put Victoria's Western Canada Hockey League team to trial:

Portland Winter Hawks, hot and humming.

When the Cougars started last week's chores, they claimed first pplace in the Western Divison by a tender, one-point margin over New Westminster Bruins and Kamloops Chiefs.

With the Cougars scheduled to play their closest pursuers in three of their four games, the standing and schedule made it a big week.

The Cats searted smartly, blanking the Bruins 3-0 Tuesday. Then they dropped a 4-3 decision in Portland but the week was "made" when the Cougars dropped the Chiefs twice — 8-4 in Memorial Arena on Saturday and 3-1 in Kamloops Sunday.

The results have given Cougars some breathing room atop the division. It's not all that great, however, because Portland is very much in the picture — and charging.

Beaten only once in their last 12 games, the Ken Hodge-coached Hawks pulled out of the cellar and into a third-place tie with Kamloops — only six points back of Victoria — by defeating the Bruins 5-1 Sunday in New Westminster.

Portland visits Memorial Arena Tuesday evening and the Chief Cougar, Pat Ginnell, attaches greater importance to the game because of the Hawks' four games in hand.

All of which is in the future.

In the past, especially at the weekend, the Cougars brought out sound teamwork and refined it with excellent forechecking to drop the Chiefs twice.

Forechecking, some superb penalty-killing and the brilliance of goaltender Murray Bannerman told the story Sunday in Kamloops.

"The forechecking started it," said Cliff Lennartz, a Cougar scout who has been handling coaching while Ginnell has concentrated on front-office chores during the past week. "Forechecking gave us our first two goals," Lennartz added.

After a scoreless first period, Cougars pressured Chiefs into making mistakes that produced a 2-0 lead on goals by Gregg Anderson and Alvin Szott.

A Victoria miscue allowed ex-Cougar Clint Eccles to make it 2-1 early in the third, but the penalty-killers and Bannerman finished Kamloops.

Cougars, striving desperately to protect the one-goal lead, took three minors — the only penalties in the third period — in rapid-fire succession.

Two of the penalties — to Archie Henderson and Curt Fraser — were close enough to give Kamloops a two-man edge for 21 seconds. But the Cougars survived that stretch, and a subsequent one, because of efforts of Denis Fenske, Anderson, Fraser, Gary Lupul, Lorry Gloekner, George Phillipoff and Leroy Heck . . . the penalty killers.

Fenske scored the insurance goal on a breakaway later in the final period.

Saturday, the Cougars overcame an early 3-1 deficit to win going away with Szott and Lupul each scoring twice.

Lupul counted his second goal — and 15th of the season — on his second penalty-shot attempt in five games. Brandon's Glen Hanlon beat Lupul on Nov. 2 but the rookie centre had no problem scoring against Gary Nakrayko of Kamloops.

Nakrayko forced the penalty shot when he threw his stick at the puck when Lupul broke away for a clear run at the Kamloops goal.

GOLDIE COOLED OFF BY COMMERCIAL BREAK

By The Canadian Press

Bill Goldsworthy wasn't poking around the fridge during the commercial break, but he did get just a little cold, and it cost New York Rangers in their 5-1 National Hockey League loss to Pittsburgh Penguins on Sunday night.

The Rangers trailed 3-1 when Goldsworthy was hooked from behind by Ron Stackhouse and referee Bob Myers awarded him a penalty shot. Goldsworthy, a newcomer to New York, readied himself to take off with the puck from centre ice, but Myers stopped him.

"The ref told me I had to wait for the commercial to be over," Goldsworthy said. "That gave me time to think."

He skated in on Pittsburgh goalie Dunc Wilson, a former Ranger, and fired a wrist shot from 15 feet out. Wilson got his left leg on the shot and made the save.

After Wilson made the save, the Rangers never threatened again.

In other games, Chicago Black Hawks rallied to beat Los Angeles Kings 5-4, Boston Bruins defeated Colorado Rockies 5-3, Cleveland Barons nipped Washington Capitals 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars tied Buffalo Sabres 4-4.

Pierre Larouche, back in the Penguins' good graces after a brief dispute over disciplinary matters, scored one goal and set up two. Stackhouse, Rick Kehoe, Wayne Bianchin and Jean Pronovost scored other goals for the winners.

Rookie sensation Don Murdoch scored his 17th goal of the season for the Rangers, who suffered a club record seventh consecutive loss on home ice, breaking a mark set in 1946-47.

Peter McNab scored two goals, including the winner, and assisted on another to lead the Bruins to victory at Boston. Don Marcotte, Bobby Schmautz and Stan Jonathan —into an empty net after the Rockies pulled goalie Michel Plasse— had Boston's other goals, while Paul Gardner scored two and Wilf Paiement one for Colorado.

The Bruins are unbeaten in their last five games and lead the Adams Division by seven points over Buffalo.

Steelers Are Red Hot; Patriots Upset Colts

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh Steelers, defending National Football League champions, are the owners of some impressive statistics.

The Steelers haven't allowed a touchdown in five games, and after allowing 110 points in the first five games of the season, they have allowed only nine points in the last five.

They have outscored their opponents 132-9 in the last five games and they hadn't given up a point in 15 quarters, including three consecutive shutouts, until Miami's Garo Yepremian kicked a field goal in the third quarter of Sunday's 14-3 Steeler victory.

But the Steelers also must face some depressing realities.

Playing perhaps the best football in the NFL now, they still could miss the playoffs and a chance for a third consecutive Super Bowl, trailing Cincinnati by two games in the American Conference Central Division with a 6-4 record.

And, for the second time this season, quarterback Terry Bradshaw is injured.

In the first quarter against Miami, Bradshaw sprained his right wrist. Although x-rays were negative, he said he didn't know how long he would be out. In the fifth game of the season, Bradshaw suffered a serious concussion.

In other NFL games Sunday, New England Patriots upset Baltimore Colts 21-14, St. Louis Cardinals beat Los Angeles Rams 30-28, New York Giants upset Washington Redskins 12-9, Atlanta Falcons beat San Francisco 49ers 21-16, Oakland Raiders defeated Kansas City Chiefs 21-10, Cleveland Browns downed Philadelphia Eagles 24-3, Cincinnati Bengals edged Houston Oilers 31-27, Chicago Bears defeated Green Bay Packers 24-13, Minnesota Vikings downed Seattle Seahawks 27-21, New Orleans Saints nipped Detroit Lions 17-16, Denver Broncos whitewashed San Diego Chargers 17-0 and New York Jets shut out Tampa Bay Buccaneers 34-0.

Buffalo is at Dallas tonight.

The Steelers scored on a 21-yard run by Franco Harris, set up by rookie quarterback Mark Kruczek's 20-yard pass to Lynn Swann, and Reggie Harrison's one-yard plunge.

Quarterback Steve Grogan ran for two touchdowns, and New England, 7-3, moved to within a game of Baltimore in the AFC East title chase. Jim Bakken's field goal with four seconds left provided the winning margin for St. Louis, 8-2, as Los Angeles, now 6-3-1, failed to pick up any ground on San Francisco in the National Conference West.

Joe Danelo kicked four field goals, and the Giants—still unable to score a touchdown—picked up their first victory of the season. All of Washington's scoring came on field goals by Mike Moseley.

Scott Hunter threw two fourth-quarter touchdown passes to Alfred Jenkins as the Falcons, 3-7, dealt San Francisco, 6-4, its third consecutive loss.

Fran Tarkenton set a club record for completion percentage, 26 of 31 for 84 per cent, and threw for two touchdowns as Minnesota came back to beat upstart Seattle, which led 21-20 at one point in the fourth quarter.

PHILIP TIED FOR FIFTH; NADIA SCORES TWO 10s

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Olympic star Nadia Comaneci of Romania won the women's all-around championship Sunday in the Chunichi Cup international gymnastics competition with a near perfect 39.75 points in four events.

Comaneci, 15, got a perfect 10.0 score in the floor exercise and a 9.8 on the balance beam. She had received a 10 on the uneven parallel bars and a 9.95 in the vault Saturday.

Her team-mate, Teodora Ungureanu, was second overall with 39.05 points after a gaining a total of 19.65 in her floor and beam routines Sunday.

Elena Davydova of the Soviet Union was third with 38.35 points.

Karen Kelsall, 13, of Vancouver placed 10th over-all with 37.60 points.

Comaneci won the all-around gold medal and two individual golds at the Summer Olympics in Montreal.

Soviet gymnasts finished one-two in the men's competition. Vladimir Markelov grabbed the gold with 57.20 of a possible 60 points with team-mate Vladimir Tikhonovs taking second place on 56.65 points.

Philip Delesalle of Victoria, ranked No. 1 in Canada, shared fifth place with Toshiomi Nishikii of Japan, both on 55.35 points.

Brian, Adjustments Work for Scorpions

Brian MacKenzie had the answer on the floor and coach Walt Burrows came up with one in the dressing room.

They added up a 96-80 victory over Vancouver Paddies and a Victoria Scorpions' sweep of their two-game exhibition series with the Dogwood Men's Basketball League leaders.

Held to a 47-45 lead at the half of Sunday's game at UVic's old gym, the Scorpions poured it on in the final half to win handily. Scorpions defeated Paddies 87-77 Saturday night and now have a 4-4, won-lost record.

MacKenzie, "Mr. Useful" who can play either guard or forward, was outstanding. Playing forward most of Sunday's game, he hit an astounding 80 per cent from the field to score 34 points to spark Victoria's attack.

Dave Morgan added 16 and guard Bill Robinson, who was outstanding in engineering Victoria's fast-break, fired 14 points.

Brent Watson, the Dogwood League's scoring champion last season who was held to a mere two points Saturday, scored 24 for Paddies while Larry Street added 22.

Robinson popped 18 points, Bob Burrows and Mike Bishop contributed 14 and Barry Burch added 11, all in the second half, to spark Saturday's attack.

Street connected for 28 while Bill Ruby added 15.

As in Sunday's game, Paddies stayed close to Victoria through the first half. Scorpions led 42-37 at the break.

Both Saturday and Sunday, the Scorpions showed an ability to adjust their attack. Burch, who didn't play in the first half, ignited Saturday's pullaway with his contribution.

In both games, Robinson played a big role with his sharp passing.

Once the Scorpions started to run and rebound, the Victoria squad was able to pull away from Paddies.

League-less but playing an extensive exhibition schedule, Scorpions will be back in the old gym next weekend when they face Tacoma Plywood in a two-game series.

Bucks Hit Rock Bottom

By The Associated Press

Larry Costello is holding up well considering the circumstances.

"I think I've been through enough hard times the past several months that I think I can stand it," says the Milwaukee Bucks' coach. "I'm not going to give up."

Weaker men might have thrown in the towel by now. In the short span of a little over a season, the Bucks have gone from good to bad and now have the dubious distinction of the worst record in the National Basketball Association.

The Bucks didn't enhance their status with a 104-83 loss to Detroit Pistons on Sunday night.

Costello kept the locker room closed for nearly a half-hour and later emerged with his eyes moist and red-rimmed and his voice on the verge of breaking. He admitted he had read the riot act to his squad.

"I like to think they're playing hard," Costello said after the Bucks lost their 11th game in 14 starts. "But if they are, they've got to be playing harder because the league is so darn tough and we're not winning. We don't have overpowering talent, and if we don't work at both ends of the floor, it's going to be very difficult."

In other NBA games Sunday night, Cleveland Cavaliers nipped Los Angeles Lakers 97-95 and Seattle SuperSonics turned back Indiana 121-118.

Defensive specialist Chris Ford, in hospital with a severe virus earlier Sunday, poured in 20 points to spark Detroit past the Bucks.

A layup by guard Foots Walker with three seconds remaining gave Cleveland its victory over Los Angeles. Slick Watts scored 25 points and Bruce Seals added 21 to lead Seattle over Indiana.

Sandown Ends on Record Spree

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

The second meeting of the Capital City Turf Club at Sandown Park came to a close Saturday before a near-record crowd of 5,806 and, as expected, it was even more successful than the first.

Crowd marks and mutuel wagering records tumbled, as indicated earlier, and the two main reasons obviously were the unseasonable fine weather, (compared to the similarly unseasonably horrible weather of last season) and the up-grading in the calibre of competing horses.

This year there wasn't what could be called a "bad day," weather-wise, while last year it was a case mostly of gum boots and touques.

In the horse department last year there was definite problem, the meeting almost failing half-way through. This year there was an over abundance of lower-class horses but perhaps not quite enough in the medium and higher-claiming department.

But first things first. And in horse racing, the mutuel department is front and centre.

Saturday, there was a new daily high of $337,304. That contributed to a new record total of $3,436,401 for the 16-day meeting.

There was also a new one-race high of $49,691 wagered on the final Adios Amigos Endurance event.

There also was a new daily average of $214,775, an increase of approximately 22 per cent, or $39,000, over last year.

George Harknett's three-year old filly Major Hike emerged as one of the stars of the meeting, winning two of the featured events including the Vancouver Island championship over a mile and one sixteenth Saturday.

Earlier Major Hike had won the Times Handicap and finished a close second to Willies Revenge in the Vancouver Island Derby.

Willies Revenge, owned and trained by Jack Guest of Vancouver and recently voted the best B.C bred (male), carried a record 133 pounds in that victory and earlier had taken the opening day Colonist Handicap.

Len Wakeham's Market Mood took the Yellow Ribbon Handicap for fillies and mares, and Neil DeMacedo's two-year old Autumn Purchase the Vancouver Island Futurity. This marked the first time two-year olds had competed at Sandown.

Major Hike was simply too much for the small field of five in the Island Championship after the highly-regarded Double Remy had been declared. Major Hike, ridden by Dale Manning, won as she pleased by four lengths and paid $2.80, $2.40 and $2.30, which was also a record low. That's The Key was second and Why Beeb third.

The Adios Amigos Endurance will be recalled for two reasons. First there was an unset of major proportions when Henry Lee's six-year old chestnut gelding Prince Richard came from off the pace to defeat the odds-on favorite Johnny Two Dance by almost two lengths and pay $42.30 while combining with Johnny Two Dance for a closing exacto of $191.50.

That was the race, too, which honored veteran racecaller Jack Short (Times Nov. 6). Short, who retired after calling the final race Saturday, which was the 48,860th of his career, decorated the winner and in turn was honored by the Capital City Turf Club and others for his 43-year career.

He was presented with a "fish-finder" by Mrs. Ed Popham, wife of the president of the CCTC.

The jockeys also gave Short "his" in the form of buckets of, not water, but confetti, in the scene that a majority of the patrons stayed to attend.

It was a deep and fitting tribute to an outstanding contributor to the sporting scene.

Short now assumes duties as a member of the B.C. Racing Commission.

In other closing-day ceremonies, 17-year-old Randy Dailey won a wrist watch for being the top jockey of the meeting. The personable apprentice won 32 races, two on the final day, Solveig Song ($4.40) in the first, and Future Concern ($18.30) in the fifth.

Victoria trainer Dave Forster also received a wrist watch as the leading trainer. His win total reached 10 when Patient Echo, owned by Mrs. George Harknett and Mrs. Dave (Pam) Bowman, won the sixth race and paid $4.60.

There were also the incidentals such as jockey Dennis Wood being fined $50 for a disturbance in the jockey's room after his mount Hard Runner was awarded place money when Charlie George, ridden by Dale Manning, was put back for interference in the stretch run; Relative Venture being claimed out of the fourth race for $2,000; and the overlay in the fifth when Future Concern won its third race of the meeting and paid that $18.30.

Future Concern could have been obtained for the claiming price of $2,000 at this meeting.

As for next season, there will be another, that is certain and the CCTC will strive once more to get earlier dates. But that will probably depend on Vancouver getting Sunday racing. CCTC president Ed Popham made that clear earlier in the meeting.

CHEMAINUS — Chemainus Blues scored the first three goals of the second period within a span of one minute 38 seconds to break a 1-1 deadlock en route to a 5-4 decision over Western Homes Buckaroos in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game Saturday in Fuller Lake Arena.

Peter Lemon and Larry Mayers scored two goals each to spark Blues, who led 5-3 going into the final frame.

Bobby Nicholson, Dave Pettinger, Rick Piechotta and Randy Krantz replied for Bucks.

Oilers Open Door By Beating Bulls

Times News Services

John Bassett, by his word, and Edmonton Oilers, by their actions, are giving Birmingham fans an open door for Tuesday's World Hockey Association game in the Alabama city.

The Birmingham owner said on Friday that if his Bulls lost Saturday's game to Edmonton Oilers, his players would forfeit a day's pay and fans would be admitted free of charge to the next game.

Edmonton, perhaps testing Bassett, did it. They beat Birmingham 3-2, and the "free game" comes up Tuesday when New England Whalers visit.

Bassett is upset over Bulls' recent performances and says his players are among the highest-paid in the WHA.

A "gate" may not be the only thing Bassett lost. Left winger Frank Mahovlich suffered torn ligaments in a knee and will be lost to the team for eight to 10 weeks after undergoing surgery Sunday.

IT'S HERE 1977 HONDA

SPECIAL MENTION ROAD & TRACK

"If IT were the standard car in America, most of our automotive problems would disappear," we said in our February road test of the CVCC. We were praising its small size and high fuel economy, among other things, but what we want to honor here is the positive way in which Honda went about meeting the 1975 pollution standards. Instead of complaining that it couldn't be done and, when it had to be done anyway, adopting a questionable hang-on device, Honda went to work on the source, the engine itself. Working with an age-old principle, that of the stratified charge, Honda brought it to a new level of perfection and made it a thoroughly practical everyday proposition. Most of the industry probably will follow Honda.

3B, 4B and 7B gasmizer

The 4B Gasmizer is a simple, effective device that significantly reduces pollution and conserves gas. It utilizes the normal engine vacuum as its principal motive power, developing shock waves which are created by sonic frequency vibrations and induced into the fuel-air mixture as it leaves the carburetor. These shock waves materially aid the atomization of the fuel-air mixture thus allowing for more efficient combustion to reduce pollution and conserve fuel.

Cliff Yorath Boots Six Penalty Goals

James Bay Athletic Association wrapped up another Ellis Cup competition by tripping Oak Bay Wanderers 15-9 in the final match of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union contest for first division clubs Saturday at Windsor Park.

The round-robin competition is based strictly on the number of tries scored by each team.

Cowichan placed second with 14 tries, having scored two four-pointers during a 15-10 loss to Castaways the previous Sunday.

In the opening league match of the first division season Saturday, Cliff Yorath kicked six penalty goals to lead Castaways to a 22-15 victory over Saanich Velox at Lambrick Park.

Doug Goodman was the top Velox scorer with three penalty goals and one conversion.

Castaways nudged Velox "A" 12-10 and Oak Bay trampled Velox "B" 29-3 in second division matches Saturday.

On Sunday, James Bay blanked UVic Saxons 38-0 and Nanaimo clipped Vampires 7-4 in third division tussles while Cowichan took a win by default over Castaways.

GATE RECORD AT MICHIGAN

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The University of Michigan broke its own year-old national collegiate attendance record Saturday with its seventh 100,000-plus crowd of the season and ninth straight in two years.

This year's average of 103,159 broke last year's NCAA record of 98,449. A total of 104,107 watched Michigan play Illinois in its last home game of the season Saturday to swell the season total to 722,113 for the year.

It's Not His Game

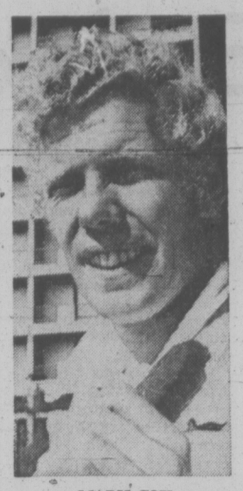
MIAMI (AP) —Ken Furphy, who quit the North American Soccer League New York Cosmos last season in a front-office disagreement, now has resigned as coach of Miami Toros, partly because he is disenchanted with American soccer. Furphy joined the Toros only a month ago.



MARK COX

A Great Day for Cox

Times News Services

Mark Cox of Britain fought off three match points and upset third-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain, 4-6, 7-5, 7-6, to win the singles final of the $150,000 Stockholm Open tennis tournament Sunday.

The 33-year-old veteran, who recently returned to Britain after living several years in White Rock, B.C., became the first unseeded player to win this indoor tournament since Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia captured the inaugural ecent in 1969.

Nobody counted on Cox as the tournament got under way a week ago but he gave indication or what was to come as he surprised sixth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of the United States in his first match. He beat ninth-seed Wojtek Fibak of Poland in the third round and edged top-seed Jimmy Connors of the U.S. after wto tiebreakers in the semi-finals, 7-6, 3-6, 7-6.

"Seems like someone upstairs was looking after me today — someone in good spirits," said Cox, who won $23,000, his biggest cheque ever, in scoring his finest tournament victory.

In Hong Kong, Australia's Ken Rosewall beat Ilie Nastase in the finals of a $75,000 Hong Kong tennis tournament Sunday, winning the decisive set when the Romanian lost most of the points on purpose.

The scores were 1-6, 6-4, 7-6, 6-0.

Nastase was apparently upset when the umpire asked him to replay a point in the second game of the fourth set because Rosewall had not been ready for his first serve. Instead of replaying the serve, Nastase slammed the ball into the air.

Throughout the rest of the set Nastase made no effort to win, standing still as Rosewall's serves bounced past him and making no attempt to return several balls. The crowd of 7,000 booed.

Nastase refused to talk with reporters after the match and tried to kick a microphone held out to him by a television reporter.

Rosewall won $10,000 and Nastase got $5,250.

Elsewhere in tennis, the United States scored a pair of team victories.

After two years in Britain, the Wightman Cup has returned to the U.S. on the shoulders of Chris Evert. A five-woman American squad finished the three-day event in London with a 5-2 decision over Britain after Miss Evert pulled most of the weight.

Chris won all three of her matches, beating Virginia Wade and Sue Barker in singles and teaming with Rosemary Casals to defeat Wade and Barker in doubles.

Barker and Wade each won a singles contest against Casals, who was limping with a strained leg muscle.

The American men's team, playing without superstars like Connors and Arthur Ashe, easily defeated Venezuela at Caracas in second round, America zone Davis Cup competition.

Griffin Beats Weicker In Pacific Coast Meet

VANCOUVER — Tom Griffin of Victoria Mercuries and Richmond's Sheila Currie came around Saturday to prevent another Esquimalt domination of a cross-country event.

As a result, Dave Weicker and Debbie Scott had to settle for runner-up honors in the open divisions at the seventh annual Pacific Coast championships held at Bear Creek Park.

Weicker and Scott scored victories in the six-mile run around the Stanley Park seawall the previous weekend.

Saturday, however, the Esquimalt aces had to be content with chasing Griffin and Currie across the finish line.

Griffin won the 10,000-metre men's race in 32 minutes, four seconds, a solid 21 ahead of Weicker. John Currie of Richmond Kejacs finished third in 32:39.

Scott finished eight seconds behind Currie in the 4,300-metre women's race. Sharon Young of Esquimalt was fourth and Mercuries' Ulla Hansen finished fifth.

Esquimalt won the women's team title.

Esquimalt also captured the girls' high school crown although highly-regarded Cheryl Matthews finished fourth after running an additional 150 metres because of a wrong turn. Clubmate Carole Pickard placed seventh.

Victoria Flying Y won the tyke boys' title on the strength of performances by Paul Domke (third), Dale McDonald (ninth) and Dean Lindal (63rd).

The Flying Y team — Megan Lamberth (18th), Donna Nichols (20th) and Heather McDonald (30th) — finished third in the bantam girls' division.

Top Victoria performer in the bantam boys' race was Bob Abbott of Flying Y, who managed a seventh-place finish. Clubmate Pat Wellman finished fourth in the peewee girls' division while the teammates Marg Dawson and Sue Wong placed 10th and 13th.

TIMBERMEN TOP LOMAS IN FINAL

DUNCAN — Cowichan Timbermen, sparked by the accurate kicking of Ross McCauley, captured the British Columbia juvenile football crown Sunday.

Timbermen downed Vancouver Meralomas 9-7 in the final at McAdam Park.

McCauley took care of all the scoring for the home club, booting two field goals in the first quarter to give Cowichan a 6-0 advantage at half time and adding another field goal in the third quarter.

Meralomas, who dominated play in the Vancouver League all season, made their comeback bid too late.

Rob Riley plunged over from the seven-yard line to score a touchdown with about six minutes left to play and Gerry Harris kicked the convert.

Defensive lineman Kevin Hawe proved outstanding on defence for the Timbermen and halfback Mickey Jahelka was brilliant on offence.

Baja Race Winners

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — Larry Roeseler and Mitch Mayes beat 217 starters to win the Baja road race Sunday. They covered the 538-mile distance in a factory an average speed of 46.73 minutes and 42.4 seconds at Husqvarna in 11 hours, 30 miles an hour.

BIRDS FALL IN FOOTBALL AND SOCCER

Concordia University Stingers of Montreal won the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union soccer championship Sunday at Montreal with a 2-1 overtime victory in the final against Dalhousie University Tigers.

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, beaten 3-2 in overtime by Dalhousie in Saturday's semi-finals, won the consolation final, nipping University of Toronto Blues 2-1 in overtime.

The Thunderbirds also had their title hopes destroyed in football Saturday when they were trimmed 30-8 by Western Ontario Mustangs at London, Ont.

In the other national semi-final, Acadia Axemen stunned Ottawa Gee Gees 18-16 at Halifax and will meet the Mustangs in the College Bowl final Friday night at Toronto.

Royal Ski Earns Cheevers $90,000

By The Canadian Press

When Gerry Cheevers hangs up his goaltending skates for the final time, he'll turn his full-time attention to horse racing — a part-time hobby that's so far paid him big dividends.

Cheevers, netminder for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, has found success this season on the thoroughbred racing circuit, particularly with Royal Ski, who is being marked as an early favorite for next year's Kentucky Derby.

On Saturday, Royal Ski raced to the front at the top of the stretch and held on for a three-quarter length victory in the $150,000 Heritage Stakes for two-year-olds at Keystone race track.

Royal Ski, ridden by Jack Kurtz, went off as the 2-to-1 favorite in a field of nine and earned $90,000 for Cheevers.

Royal Ski had to overcome the outside post position to score his fifth win in eight starts and lodge a claim to the Eclipse Award as the outstanding juvenile of 1976.

Cheevers' colt increased his earnings to $260,159, and returned $6.20, $3.60 and $3 to his backers in a crowd of 12,993. Royal Ski outlasted Live Oak Stable's Medieval Man, ridden by Sandy Hawley of Mississauga, Ont., who paid $7.60 and $5. Longshot Johnny Wingo finished third with a $5.60 return.

At New York's Aqueduct, Bastonera II, an Argentina-bred five-year-old mare who has been racing in California, outgamed the favored Proud Delta in the last 100 yards and won the $108,700 Ladies Handicap for fillies and mares.

Beauchemin Hits 20-Goal Plateau

Ed Beauchemin, a rookie, became the first player to reach the 20-goal circle in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League Sunday.

He scored three times, boosting his league-leading total to 22, to spark Saanich Braves to a 7-2 victory over Victoria Rays in a game at Memorial Arena.

Brent Patterson also scored three for Braves, who pulled into sole possession of first place.

Rays managed a split of their weekend games after defeating Kerry Park Islanders of Mill Bay 5-2 in one of Saturday's two games. In the other, Oak Bay Trios tied Lake Cowichan Bairds 4-4.

JUNIOR HIGH BOOT TITLE TO ARBUTUS

Peter Bryant, Dave Swinton and Scott Charlton scored a goal apiece as Arbutus of Victoria defeated Nanaimo's John Barsby 3-0 Saturday to capture the Vancouver Island junior high school soccer championship.

Lansdowne finished third in the eight-team tournament played at Belmont.

Lake Trail of Courtenay finished fourth, Mt. Klitza of Port Alberni was fifth, defending champion Colquitz wound up sixth, Gulf Islands placed seventh and Parklands finished eighth.

Traction on Ice Without Studs!
The ICE RADIAL
This is Goodyear's finest traction tire. Here's why!
The F32 All Winter Radial is a top performer on icy, snow clogged roads. Amazing tread rubber compound stays flexible even at temperatures below freezing, enabling the tread to conform to icy surfaces on the road. The Ice Radial features a specially designed tread pattern for deep snow and double Flexten cord belts which are pound for pound stronger than steel for added protection against winter road hazards. Have a set installed now — and feel safe on icy roads this winter.

Romance Interrupts Firing Squad Plans

people

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah — If Gary Gilmore had his way he would have died today before a firing squad.

Instead Gilmore, 35, who was sentenced to death for murdering a Provo, Utah, motel clerk last July, will try to persuade a girl with whom he lived briefly during the summer to marry him.

Last week the Utah Supreme Court agreed by a 4-to-1 vote to grant Gilmore's request that he be allowed to die "like a man" without further delay. But Gov. Calvin Rampton stayed the execution until the state board of pardons reviews the case Wednesday.

Gilmore will be visited today by Nicole Barrett, 20, a divorcee and mother of two. Dennis Boaz, Gilmore's attorney, said his client told him, "I'm considering marrying Nicole. They have married other convicts in prison before. So I don't think they'll stand in my way."

PARIS — Distinguished French movie actor Jean Gabin died early today at the American Hospital in Neuilly at the age of 72, his family announced. He played key roles in more than 100 movies. Gabin shot to fame in the mid-1930s with such hits as Pepe le Moko (1935), La Bandera (1936) and especially a classic on the First World War, The Great Illusion directed by Jean Renoir.

CAPE TOWN — Cynthia Claasen, an 18-year-old colored mixed race beauty queen, has renounced her Miss South Africa title and wants to leave the country, saying the republic disgusts here. She said Saturday night she plans to leave soon in order to marry her white West German boy-friend, Ernst Weinert. Such a marriage would be illegal under south Africa's Immorality Act, which forbids sexual relations between people of different races and the two had kept their love affair secret.

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Joe Clark took his wife, Maureen McTeer, and their week-old daughter home from hospital Saturday. Ms. McTeer, who prefers to use her maiden name, said she and Clark discussed the last name for their child, Catherine Jane, and decided it should be Clark. "I don't really like hyphenated names," she said.

LONDON — Prince Charles celebrated his 28th birthday Sunday with a royal party and champagne toast aboard his navy ship. Charles welcomed his mother, Queen Elizabeth, and other family members aboard the minesweeper Brorington, moored near the Tower of London, and escorted them to the wardroom for champagne and lunch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa. — The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Gettysburg turned briefly from singing hymns to offer a rendition of "Happy Birthday" for one of its members — Mamie Eisenhower. The former U.S. first lady turned 80 Sunday and celebrated by attending church services.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — A broken ankle has forced Katherine Hepburn to cancel "at least two" performances of a stage play — the first time she has missed a performance in her entire career. "It was a damned fool thing to do," Miss Hepburn, 67, said, explaining she was running down a small incline at her Hollywood Hills home, hit a rock and twisted her ankle.

"For the first time I will have to cancel a performance and I don't like that a bit." Miss Hepburn is starring in "A Matter of Gravity" at the Ahmanson Theatre in the Los Angeles Music Centre.

Brezhnev And Tito Talk Future

BELGRADE — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev arrived today for a three-day visit that could be instrumental in protecting Yugoslavia from Soviet domination after 84-year-old President Tito is gone.

Brezhnev, during his last visit in 1971, endorsed the 1955-56 declarations in which Nikita Khrushchev and Tito agreed that relations between Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union would be based on mutual respect for the sovereignty, independence, integrity and equality of each country.

They also pledged not to interfere in each other's internal affairs.

A's Take Second; Wests Undefeated

Thanks to Oak Bay, Victoria Athletics took over sole possession of second place in the premier division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League by downing Gorge Molsons 4-2 Sunday at Heywood Avenue Park.

Bays held host Nanaimo City, which had been tied with Athletics, to a 2-2 deadlock while Powell River Villas blanked visiting DaVinci 4-0 in other matches the same day.

On Saturday, Victoria West boosted its unbeaten streak to seven matches by downing Cosmopolitan Royals 5-2 at Royal Athletic Park.

Ash Douglas booted in a head ball by George Pakos at 34 minutes to give Athletics a 1-0 lead at half time.

After the break Bob Bolitho came up with two quick tallies — on a penalty shot at 54 minutes and on a chip shot at 57 minutes — to put Athletics well in front.

Dan Green hit the cross-bar on a penalty shot awarded to Molsons at 64 minutes and Mark Robb finally got the Gorge squad untracked with an unasststed effort four minutes later.

Green made good on another penalty opportunity at 74 minutes to close the gap to 3-2 but John Nash scored the insurance goal for Athletics on a cross from Mike Alabarton with eight minutes remaining.

At Nanaimo, Jos de Bruin gave Oak Bay the lead twice with goals at 15 minutes and 60 minutes but Nanaimo City countered each time with tallies by Tim Blank (35 minutes) and Brian Mays (75 minutes).

Scoring was mostly a family affair at Powell River.

George and Ian Orchiston scored at seven and 35 minutes to give Villas a 2-0 halftime lead. Bob Orchiston fired another tally for the host club at 58 minutes and an "outsider," Doug Ferguson, closed out scoring at the 70-minute mark on a penalty shot.

Rob Williams scored two goals for Vic West and singles were added by John McGuire, Gary McLaren and Steve Moss. Bob Mackie and Rudi Kuebler replied for Royals, who trailed 3-1 at the half.

Saanich Badminton Tournament

It's convenience rather than courtesy that puts the men ahead of the women in the annual Saanich Open badminton championships.

Play gets under way tonight at Brentwood Hall with men's singles and doubles competition. Women start Tuesday with matches in singles and handicap doubles divisions.

The tournament winds up Saturday.

Tonight's draw:

7 p.m. — Don Woodland vs. David Muir, Ed Chang vs. Peter Brix, Martin Houghton vs. John Dewey.

7:30 — Willie Wong vs Rob Cowan, Ken Cartwright vs Ken Holman, Bob Ballanger vs Rick Lels.

8:00 — Gerry Mounce vs Bob McPherson, Vince Quan and Mike Newton vs. Mark McMillan and Dick Chan, Peter Michelin and Geoff Lavis vs. Bob McPherson and Peter Brix.

8:30 — Paul Harris and Ken Holman vs. Don Boyd and Brian Masuk, Jack Strachan and Stew Taylor vs. Ed Chin and Wayne Lambert, Ken McKenzie and Randy Aubie vs. Danny Klaussen and Rob Geunther.

Skating Marks Fall

Six British Columbia skating records were broken last week at Esquimalt Sports Centre in an interclub meet staged by the Esquimalt Speed Skating Club.

Stewart Black of Mission snapped three provincial marks, for distances of 200, 300 and 500 metres, in the bantam boy's division.

Former Esquimalt skater Debbie Dietiker topped standards for 400 and 800 metres in the senior women's class and sister Martha Dietiker of Esquimalt set a record for 400 metres on her way to the intermediate women's over-all title.

Other division champions from the Esquimalt club were Brenda Shields (juvenile girls), Barbara Ellis (bantam girls), Wilson Louie (juvenile boys) and Shawn Hobday (midget boys).

LATE CHARGE GIVES RAMS JUNIOR TITLE

REGINA (CP) — Regina Rams exploded for four touchdowns and one field goal in the fourth quarter to win the Canadian Junior Football championship for the second consecutive year when they defeated Hamilton Hurricanes, 45-23, Saturday night.

The Rams defeated the Hurricanes last year in a hard-fought 39-19 battle after going down to them 33-8 in 1972.

Turnovers played a major part of Saturday's game with Rams scoring two of their fourth quarter touchdowns on turnovers. Hamilton also scored two of their touchdowns on Ram fumbles.

SIGNS WITH METS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Second-baseman Felix Millan has signed a two-year contract with baseball's New York Mets for $100,000 each year.

Vikettes Flash Power

Play has just started in the Canada West University Athletic Association basketball leagues, but University of Victoria Vikettes loom as strong favorites to repeat as women's champions.

The Mike Gallo-coached Vikettes completed an impressive sweep by trouncing University of Lethbridge 91-32 Saturday. Vikettes, who defeated Lethbridge 69-32 on Friday, share the early lead with Alberta Pandas and Calgary Dinnies.

Alberta trounced Saskatchewan 70-46 while Calgary edged British Columbia Thunderettes 52-46 in other Saturday games.

While Vikettes breezed along, things could be more difficult for the Ken Shields-coached Vikings. Lethbridge managed a split of their weekend series by clipping Victoria 69-58 after the Pronghorns suffered a 57-56 setback on Friday.

Vikettes, who were unbeaten in league play last season, scored 48 per cent from the field and led 48-22 at the half.

But it was a costly outing. Four Vikettes — Mairi Anne Longmore, Marie Morrison, Lorraine Mosher and Lesley Godfrey — suffered minor injuries. Longmore and Morrison turned up with sprained ankles while Mosher and Godfrey suffered knee injuries.

Lesley, along with sister Selley and Marg Mainwaring, sparked Victoria. A sophomore, Lesley was the game's high scorer with 23 points while her sister, a rookie, was the leading rebounder with 12 and also contributed 16 points. Mainwaring scored 17 points.

A solid and balanced Lethbridge attack combined with a "flat" effort by the Vikings hurt the Victoria men's team. Chris Hebb and Lee Edmondson each scored 16 points for Vikings while Jim Duddridge added 12.

Alberta Golden Bears, defeating Saskatchewan's Huskies 70-46, and Calgary Dinosaurs, stopping UBC Thunderbirds 80-68, share the men's lead with two straight.

Action continues next weekend when Saskatchewan visits Victoria, Lethbridge faces UBC and Alberta plays at Calgary.

Victoria Jayvees got away to a winning start on their basketball season by taking a pair of games from Columbia Bible Institute of Vancouver.

Playing on their home floor, the Jayvees chalked up a 63-57 victory Saturday after tripping the visitors 74-64 Friday.

Jay Janzen scored 27 UVic points Friday and hit for 19 Saturday.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played during the 1976 National Championships, West tricked South into adopting the losing line of play. In the post-mortem discussion, there was a division of opinion as to whether South should have allowed himself to be taken in by West's deceptive play. What do you think?

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | NORTH♠ A 5 4♡ A K 7 3◇ 6 4♣ K Q J 6 | |
| WEST♠ Q 10 8 6 2♡ Q J 9 6◇ K J♣ A 7 | | EAST♠ 9 7 3♡ 10 8 2◇ 8 7 2♣ 10 9 4 3 |
| | SOUTH♠ K J♡ 5 4◇ A Q 10 9 5 3♣ 8 5 2 | |

The bidding:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Dbl. | Pass | 3NT |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

South's jump to three notrump may appear to be a drastic overbid. Actually, it had much justification, for when North made his takeout double, he figured to have support for each of the unbid suits. With North's presumed king of diamonds consolidating South's six-card diamond suit, South counted on bringing home six diamond tricks. Having West's spade suit guarded, South felt that the North-South hands belonged in three notrump.

West decided that South was prepared for a spade lead, so he elected to open the queen of hearts. After dummy's king had won the trick, declarer led the four of diamonds out of dummy and inserted his ten-spot. West won this trick with his king!

A low heart was then led by West, the trick being taken by the board's ace. Dummy's remaining diamond was now played, East followed suit with the seven — and declarer put his cards face down on the table, as he paused to reflect on the situation.

It was perfectly obvious to declarer that West, a top player, might be taking South for a ride by having won the diamond trick with the king instead of with the jack. But he finally concluded that West had been dealt a singleton king. So he finessed his nine-spot. West won with the jack, and cashed two hearts and the club ace, to defeat South's contract.

Had West won the initial diamond lead with the jack, declarer almost surely would have caught West's king on the next diamond lead. The reason? West had opened the bidding, and without the diamond king he would have had only 10 points in high cards. So West rated to have the diamond king.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, November 16

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be kind, diplomatic, receptive. Tender, loving care gets you everywhere. Know it and act accordingly. Accent on indirect methods, avoidance of direct confrontations. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. See clearly; be patient enough to win rather than force your way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You might receive more than anticipated. If you are playing games where emotions are involved, stop it. You could end by fooling yourself, disillusioning others. Key now is to imprint style, to reveal the real you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Practical matters command more-than-usual attention. Emphasis on structure, form, design, contractual arrangement. Partner or mate wants to be informed concerning potential, basic responsibilities. Be confident. Yes, do invest in your own capabilities.

CANCER (June 23-Aug. 22): Idea submitted in recent past will pay dividends. Know it and let go of "security blanket." Aries, Libra persons could be part of scenario. You are able to finish a project, to inspire confidence. Short trip may be on agenda.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New approach, added independence, originality — these are emphasized in connection with possessions, money, collections. Another Leo, an Aquarian play important roles. Love may indeed be blind this day. Know it and strive for balance. You will see!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cycle is such that you can name terms, assert yourself, consolidate assets. You teach and learn — you find that some persons do have a genuine interest, even affection where you are concerned. You could upset the "favorite" and win popularity contest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight versatility — shake off tendency to be victimized by secret fears, doubts. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. What you seek is available. You know it but may not be consciously aware of it. Now is the time to see what is there, not phantoms or ghosts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check Libra message. Utilize assets. Don't permit any person to downgrade you. Potential is enormous. You'll shake up status quo, create controversy — but you also will gain valuable allies. Know it and be confident.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Steer clear of self-deception. See places and persons as they are, not merely as you assumed they might be. Key is to analyze. Member of opposite sex back you, wants you to succeed, will make major concession.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Domestic adjustment occurs — you could be recipient of surprise gift. Long-distance communication is featured. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio figure prominently. You get chance to repay a favor — and you feel very good about it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money and friendship, if mixed now, could cause both to dissolve. Emphasis on secrets, obscure matters, the occult, leases, money as it relates to partner, mate. Pisces, Virgo could be in picture. Key now is to be discreet. If you talk too much, you pay a heavy emotional price.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What appears to be a slowdown is merely the result of more responsibility, a conservative view. You are stronger than might be imagined. Accent on partnership, commitment, long-term arrangement and marital status. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently.

IF NOVEMBER 16th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, prescient, passionate, creative, introspective and draw to you persons born under Pisces and Virgo. If single, marriage is upcoming. Married or single, you will be more alive, more analytical, will travel, make significant changes and you will get thoughts, ideas on paper. Deecember will be your most significant month of 1976.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Janet picked up one of the comic books Doug had brought home. "I don't know how you can read such trash," she told him. "What did they cost you?"

"Come on Mom. It was money I earned," the boy replied. "I paid seven times the cents multiplied by the dollars in what I paid, in cents that is."

How much was that?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: WATER was 58713 (SOAP 2689, prime).

SIGURDSON QUARTET REPEATS

If Gary Sigurdson does it again, they may start referring to the annual Playland Curling Club cashpiel as "the Gary Sigurdson benefit."

The Cloverdale skip, supported by third Ron Trottier, Second Dale Walker and lead Don Patterson, did it again Sunday.

Sigurdson's rink picked up top money — $2,500 — for the second straight year by defeating Vancouver's Jack Finnbogason 5-4 in a tensely-played final Sunday.

Sigurdson won his way into the final by defeating Seattle's Don Cooper 5-4 in one semi-final while the Finnbogason foursome, which won $1,200, scored 7-2 victory over a Playland quartet skipped by Harry Gulka.

Cooper's rink won third-place money ($500) by defeating Gulka 8-3.

Eight rinks qualified for Sunday's championship showdown. The other four were Bob Hawkes of Racquet Club, Randy Chambers of Vancouver, Jack Taylor of Nanaimo and Gary Helem of Seattle.

Finnbogason edged Hawkes 9-8 in an extra end; Gulka defeated Taylor 9-6; Cooper nipped Chambers 6-4, and Sigurdson, who had to qualify through the "B" event after dropping his first-round game, clipped Helem 8-6.

Islanders In 'Good Standing'; Pay Off PCL Debts

HONOLULU (AP) — The Hawaii Islanders paid off their debt to the Pacific Coast League Sunday and were confirmed as members in good standing for the 1977 season, said Honolulu Mayor Frank Fasi.

"By unanimous vote the board of directors of the Pacific Coast League confirmed the status of the Hawaii Islanders as a member in good standing," the directors announced following a six-hour session in San Francisco, Fasi told newsmen.

The directors accepted a check for $35,000 from Fasi to pay off the team's PCL debts, said Frank Cooper, chairman of the Islanders' management committee.

Fasi had taken out a personal loan for the amount.

The directors earlier had set a Nov. 1 deadline for clearing up $170,000 in critical debts, including league debts and tax liens. Cooper said no new deadline was set for meeting those obligations.

Vikettes Maintain Hockey Lead

University of Victoria Vikettes blanked Rebels 4-0 Saturday to maintain a four-point lead in Division I of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association.

Sandpipers kept pace in second place by edging Mariners 3-2 in the only other match in the division.

In Devision II tussles, Castaways topped Sanderlings 2-1, Sailors downed Rebels Gold 4-1, Hobbits Brown shut out Evergreens 7-0 and Cowichan crushed Rebels Red, 10-0.

BOUT DATE SET

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Boxing Council welterweight championship bout between titleholder Carlos Palomino and Mando Mundiz, twice postponed because of injuries to the champion, has been set for Jan. 22.

Two Triple Winners

Debbie Smith and Heather Benson, both of the Racquet Club of Victoria, emerged as the only triple winners Sunday during finals of the Saanich open junior badminton championships at Brentwood Community Hall.

Miss Smith captured the under-19 girls singles crown with an 11-0, 11-1 victory over Jeanette van Stolk of Brentwood College; partnered clubmate Lora Holley to a 15-6, 15-10 win over Damaris Hurley of the Racquet Club and Miss van Stolk in the doubles final and paired with Martin Houghton for a 17-14, 15-11 decision over Miss Holley and Ian MacKay in the all-Racquet Club Mixed doubles final.

Miss Benson topped Miss Hurley 11-3, 11-6 to take the under-17 girls title; partnered Miss Holley to a 15-10, 15-2 victory over Kathy Henry of Belmont and Jill McMillan of Brentwood in the doubles event and shared mixed doubles laurels with Rob Guenther of Cordova Bay after a tight 8-15, 15-4, 15-9 victory over Miss Hurley and Peter Brix of Cordova Bay.

Results:

UNDER-19

Girls singles — Debbie Smith (RCV) def. Jeanette van Stolk (Brentwood College), 11-0, 11-1.

Boys singles — Ian MacKay (RCV) def. Martin Houghton (RCV), 15-3, 15-3.

Girls doubles — Debbie Smith and Lora Holley (RCV) def. Damaris Hurley (RCV) and Jeannette van Stolk (Brentwood College), 15-6, 15-10.

Boys Doubles — Martin Houghton and Ian MacKay (RCV) def. Geoff Howells and David Murrell (RCV), 15-3, 15-5.

Mixed doubles — Debbie Smith and Martin Houghton (RCV) def. Lora Holley and Ian MacKay (RCV), 17-14, 15-11.

UNDER-17

Girls singles — Heather Benson (RCV) def. Damaris Hurley (RCV), 11-3, 11-6.

Boys singles — Martin Houghton (RCV) def. Rob Guenther (Cordova Bay), 15-11, 15-6.

Girls doubles — Heather Benson and Lora Holley (RCV) def. Kathy Henry (Belmont) and Jill McMillan (Brentwood), 15-10, 15-2.

Boys doubles — Ian Nicol-Smith and Geoff Hudson (Vancouver) def. Rob Guenther (Cordova Bay) and David Howe (RCV), 15-10, 10-15, 18-13.

Mixed doubles — Heather Benson (RCV) and Rob Guenther (Cordova Bay) def. Damaris Hurley (RCV) and Peter Brix (Cordova Bay), 8-15, 15-4, 15-9.

UNDER-15

Girls singles — Tarn Hill (Esq.) def. Teresa Harwood (RCV), 11-4, 11-1.

Boys singles — Geoff Hudson (Vancouver) def. Richard Jackson (RCV), 15-3, 12-15, 15-8.

Girls doubles — Elaine Chin and Edwina Yaprchung (Cedar Hill) def. Terry Doumont and Lilieth Sorenzen (Lantzville), 15-11, 17-14.

Boys doubles — Richard Jackson and Ralf Kitchen (RCV) def. Sher Horne and Mike Montgomery (RCV) 15-8, 7-15, 15-5.

Mixed doubles — Tarn Hill (Esq) and Ralph Kitchen (RCV) def. Lileth Lorenzen and Tom Halsall (Lantzville), 6-15, 17-15, 18-13.

Hornets Ramble

Dave Purvis rambled for two touchdowns Sunday to lead Saanich Hornets to a 28-2 romp over Oak Bay Invaders in the Bantam Canadian Football League playoff final Sunday at Cedar Hill Park.

Hornets also gained a berth in the British Columbia championship semi-finals and will play Surrey Bears next Sunday at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

Renfrew topped Richmond 8-0 at the weekend in the other semi and will meet the Hornet-Bear winner in the final.

Bobby Haire added a touchdown and a two-point convert for Hornets while quarterback Mark Townsend contributed a TD and Alan O'Neil came up with another two-point convert.

Eric Iverson provided the only Oak Bay points by tackling Townsend for a safety touch in the second quarter.

Drug Addicts Dropped Dead As Heroin Wasn't Diluted

WASHINGTON (WP) — Four narcotics addicts have died and 25 others have been sent to hospital since Friday night in an epidemic of overdoses from exteremely pure "Mexican Mud" heroin injected by addicts who thought it was five to six times weaker than it turned out to be.

Captain Houston Bigelow, commander of the Washington police narcotics division, said the light brown heroin from Mexico, which is speckled with dark brown spots, is more than 12 per cent pure.

Mexican heroin sold here is usually two to three per cent pure, according to experts.

Bigelow said the heroin probably was sold by a dealer unaware of the potency of the drug which sold for $50 a bag. Such a bag would supply an average addict with five to six "hits" of heroin.

"This is the worst incident of drug deaths in this city that I can recall," said Bigelow, a 19-year police veteran.

"We had seven overdoses in one month recently but it has never reached the epidemic proportions we now have."

Investigators believe a large quantity of the drug remains unsold in the city, he added.

"The street people know what's going on right now," he said after explaining that he believes the remaining potent heroin will be diluted before it is sold again.

"If we can measure this kind of thing I'd say we're at the end of the crisis," Bigelow said.

Police broadcast weekend radio appeals to drug users to check into hospitals to be certain that they have not taken the strong and possibly deadly heroin.

Deadly Bug Ruled Out

LONDON (UPI) — Doctors say it probably was a case of influenza and not the deadly "green monkey" disease which made a biological warfare researcher ill last week.

Consequently, doctors said, the researcher, Geoffrey Platt, 42, probably will be allowed to go outside his hospital isolation tent and speak with his wife, Eileen, by telephone later today.

ENVOY IN A MOTEL

WASHINGTON (WP) — Roel Karamat of the new South American republic of Surinam is one of the latest members of the Washington diplomatic corps to arrive on the scene, but you won't find his residence along Embassy Row — at least not yet.

Karamat, his wife Elizabeth and their five children have been shoehorned into a modest suite at the Ramada Inn at Tyson's Corner, Va., since Sept. 27.

Furthermore, because Karamat's arrival came in the midst of the U.S. presidential campaign, he has been unable to present his credentials to President Ford, although State Department officials now say this should happen within a week or two.

Karamat is thus in a kind of diplomatic limbo.

Until he can find an adequate residence in town, he is isolated from the mainstream of diplomatic life, and he is legally unable to perform his ambassadorial duties until he formally presents his credentials to the White House.

"It is not as if the president of the United States has nothing else to do," the 40-year-old career diplomat conceded.

"So we are patient, just as we are patiently looking for a house."

Carter To Meet Aides

PLAINS, Ga. (WP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter and vice president-elect Walter Mondale will meet with several top congressional Democrats on Wednesday, a Carter aide said at the weekend.

Rex Granum, an assistant press secretary for Carter, said the meeting will take place on a farm owned by Sen. Herman Talmadge 20 miles south of Atlanta.

Granum said five to ten Democrats from both the House and the Senate will attend the meeting. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert have been asked by Carter to select those who will be invited to the meeting, he said.

The session in Lovejoy will be Carter's first since his election with some of the congressional leaders he will have to depend on to push his legislative proposals through Congress.

Granum also announced that Carter plans to hold a press conference, his second since the election, on Monday.

Carter met for several hours with former Secretary of State Dean Rusk and later with one of his closest political advisers, Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo. Rusk told reporters before the meeting that he is not interested in returning to government service.

Heart Movie Diagnosis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientistss have developed a way to take "movies" of the heart while a patient exercises vigorously, showing heart defects that escape detection with other diagnostic techniques.

In a report delivered today at an American Heart Association meeting in Miami, National Institute of Health researchers say the new method searchers say the new method is safer, less expensive and less painful for the patient than other forms of angiography, or cardiac picture-taking.

In angiography, a tube is inserted into an arm of leg artery and pushed through the vessel into the chambers of the heart. A contrast dye is then put into the heart through the tube and X-ray pictures are taken, or a radioactive isotope is used instead of dye and images are made from radioactive emissions.

Jail Guard Threatened With Knife

A prisoner at William Head federal prison in Metchosin was on his way to be B.C. Penitentiary today after threatening a guard with a knife last week.

William Head director John Mulroney confirmed a report that Curtis William Christie, convicted of manslaughter in June, 1975, was the prisoner involved.

Mulroney said Christie was taken to the prison hospital on Thursday for a checkup because "he seemed to be on something — dope or brew."

After leaving the hospital, the prisoner produced a hobby knife and before being disarmed threatened to use it on one of the guards.

Mulroney said the incident is "an internal matter." Christie will not be charged with anything but will be disciplined by being sent to the B.C. Pen.

Christie, who was 19 at the time of his trial, was convicted of manslaughter in the stabbing death Oct. 15, 1974, of Stanford Clarence Wray in Victoria.

Rapes Investigated

Saanich police are investigating two incidents of rape which occurred Sunday night.

Both involved men described as being in their 20s and occurred about the same time, leading police to believe it was not the same attacker in each case.

In one incident, a man wearing a gas mask and brandishing a knife entered a home in the Gordon Head area and assaulted a woman.

The other case involved a girl hitchhiking on Burnside Road. She was picked up and taken to Prospect Lake where the alleged rape took place.

Freedom Ends

A man who escaped from William Head prison in September was arrested Saturday in New Westminster.

Police said they received a tip that Dennis Charles O'Brien, 51, who was convicted as a habitual criminal, was at a New Westminster apartment.

He was arrested without resistance and will remain in New Westminster jail until a decision is made on where he will be charged with being unlawfully at large.

Police said O'Brien has the choice as to whether he wants to be charged and the case heard in New Westminster or in Colwood.

O'Brien failed to return Sept. 11 to William Head after being out on a permit.

He was sentenced in October, 1966, at New Westminster to an indeterminate term as an habitual criminal.

He was transferred to William Head in January, 1975, and received his first temporary absence permit in May, 1975.

Robbers Hunted

Victoria city police are still searching for two masked men who robbed the Crest Motor Inn Saturday of $1,500 while holding a shotgun to the head of the night clerk.

Alex Reid told police two young, "very cool" men with stocking masks pulled over their heads, came up behind him as he counted coffee shop receipts at about 9:45 p.m.

One of the bandits forced him to the floor, pressed a knee in his upper back and held the gun barrel to his head.

Reid said it seemed like an eternity.

"I was in the right position for saying my prayers."

City Building Up $20 Million

The value of building permits issued in Victoria so far this year is more than $65 million, an increase of about $20 million on the same period last year.

Of the 3,938 permits issued to date in 1976 — an increase of 850 on the 10-month period last year — 408 were issued last month for a total value of $10.3 million.

Residential starts in the city in October included nine projects providing 384 dwelling units valued at $8.3 million.

Among the larger projects was a $792,000 addition to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

LRB DECISION COULD BE TRIGGER

More School Strikes Seen

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The formation of a joint bargaining agency for Greater Victoria municipal employers raises the spectre of increased school shutdowns, a union spokesman warned today.

Bob Cunningham, chairman of the negotiating committee for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, which represents school board outside workers, was commenting on a decision by the Labor Relations Board to accredit the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association as bargaining agent for municipal employers.

The association will bargain for the Greater Victoria School Board as well as the Capital Region District, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Cunningham said the central bargaining system for employers could lead to more pickets going up around Greater Victoria schools.

If a dispute arises involving one of the employers during the next round of negotiations, the schools could be picketted because they belong to the association.

Schools would be the first to be struck, he added, because that is where the most pressure can be brought to bear.

Such school shutdowns could likely be avoided if the school board locals of CUPE bargained directly with the school district, he said.

Cunningham said there was a membership meeting of Local 382 Sunday night to explain the situation and the members "weren't too happy."

He said they feel there may be undue pressure on them to walk off the job whether they want to or not.

Cunningham said because of the effects the new bargaining system may have on the school system, area municipal leaders "are shirking their responsibility" in setting it up.

He referred particularly to Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, chairman of the association.

Smith said Friday the joint bargaining group will provide a more efficient bargaining system.

Cunningham said there is no need for all the expense of setting up the association because "a kindergarten kid could do it this year."

He said this year's negotiated contract will no doubt go to the federal Anti-Inflation Board for a ruling, so there is no need for any high-powered negotiating team.

He said the unions have been told that Carl Anshelm, the association's chief negotiator, has been given $100,000 to get set up and another $100,000 for future expenses.

CUNNINGHAM
. . . pressure on schools

Cunningham said the unions involved will meet next Sunday on whether to set up their own joint bargaining council for the next round of negotiations.

Both Local 382 and Local 947, the school board inside workers, opposed the accreditation of the association.

However, the LRB ruled that there is a substantial degree of similarity and a community of interest between the school board and the other employers in the association.

"Not only does a community of interest exist among its several members, but also among the employees of its members, who share many of the same terms and conditions of employment," the board said.

The board said it is concerned over the unions' anxiety about the formation of the association destroying the healthy relationship between the unions and the school district.

Demolition Threat, Dialogue Key Issues

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The demolition threat to established Victoria neighborhoods and the need for citizen groups to have a stronger voice in city hall decision making have merged as the key issues in this year's civic election campaign.

The four aldermen to be elected Nov. 20 will serve abbreviated one-year terms before council switches to the biennial election system next year in a move designed to stimulate fresh interest in municipal politics.

Nine candidates are contesting the election, including three incumbents. The fourth incumbent, Ald. Alf Hood, retires this year after five years on city council.

Of the remaining six candidates, three have run unsuccessfully in previous elections.

A summary of the candidates and their platforms:

University of Victoria student Charles Ball, 338 Dallas, says city council's "incompentence and mismanagement" in a number of crucial areas is a significant issue in the election.

One area in which this is reflected, he says, is council's inability to come to grips with the issue of demolition of sound homes that are replaced by expensive apartments and condominiums.

Ball also promises to work for better labor-management relations at City Hall and more community involvement in decision making.

Increased protection against crime and vandalism and full, open debate on council are two major planks in the platform of businessman Frank Carson, 448 Beach Dr.

He says council must pursue additional sources of income from the provincial government.

He will work for strict control of highrise development, close co-operation with the province in Inner Harbor beautification and city encouragement for "worthwhile" community projects.

Incumbent and businessman Bob Ellis, 685 Beach Dr., says he is seeking a second term on council because he believes he can make a contribution to "sound city government."

"In spite of the promises and superficial issues of election time, the business of city management is largely the application of good sense and good practice to everyday decision making," he says.

Ellis is also seeking a seat on the regional board.

A complete review of the city's planning and zoning procedures, to include neighborhood hearings and citizen advisory committees, is proposed by incumbent Murry Glazier, 2532 Orchard.

Glazier, a professional engineer, also lists among his priorities disciplined financial management, efficient sewerage and solid waste disposal throughout the capital region, and the need for Victoria to have power to control demolitions.

Glazier has been one of the city's representatives on the Capital Region Board, and seeks that position again.

Incumbent John Hayes, elected to council nearly nine months ago in a byelection to fill former alderman Sam Bawlf's seat, says he is seeking re-election to "see through to fruition" various projects in which he is now involved.

Among these he lists the Crystal Garden restoration proposal, the heritage preservation program, provision of downtown rental housing and inter-governmental planning for transit improvements and car pooling.

Hayes, an appraiser who lives at 1-1759 Rockland, also urges the establishment of neighborhood advisory committees for zoning and development matters.

Bill McElroy, 215 Linden, a research officer for the provincial housing department, is running for both council and the regional board.

He favors tighter control over demolition permits, evening council meetings and public hearings, establishement of a parks and recreation commission, stronger support for the Heritage Advisory Committee and more opportunities for citizens to make their views known at City Hall.

McElroy is endorsed by the Fairfield Community Association as a "suitably community-minded candidate."

Civil servant Joe Richards, 541 Dalton, repeats his call from earlier campaigns for better representation on council. He claims this would be achieved by expanding council to 11 members and having one alderman elected from each of eight districts, with the remaining two plus the mayor elected at large.

Richards says he would work for better police and fire protection, and holding all council meetings and public hearings in the evenings. He wants to see at least two north-south one-way streets in the downtown area.

He is also running for the regional board.

Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan, 70 Linden Avenue, believes the city must find a remedy for the "industrial erosion" it has recently been experiencing. Existing industrial activity must be preserved and if possible expanded, to strengthen the tax base and employment picture.

Ryan also says the tourist industry must be encouraged, the city's unique character preserved through an end to spot zoning and the policy of dumping raw sewage in the sea abandoned.

Another priority should be the provision of housing and activity centres for the elderly.

Seamstress Ann Tarasoff, of 902-701 Esquimalt Road, is president of the Capital Region Tenants' Association and says she is one of the few candidates who "place the interests of working people, pensioners, ratepayers and tenants before the real estate and big business interests."

She wants to see an end to the dumping of raw sewage in the sea, and advocates long-range planning toward other disposal alternatives.

Tarasoff has also offered herself as regional board candidate.

Although not up for re-election, Ald. Ron McKenzie is the sixth candidate seeking one of the two city seats on the regional board.

For a Doom-Crier, Plenty of Worries

IT IS TIME THIS COLUMN shifted its focus from still-Great Britain, which is not without its troubles, to a Canada lugging along from sea even unto sea in its usual state of snafu. Situation normal, all fouled up.

You can pick your worry from a list as long as your arm. Try unemployment. Or tough wage control versus tender price control. If those don't offer sufficient scope, have a go at rampant bureaucracy or national disunity.

I could fork any number of other dainties smoking-hot from the witchs' cauldron, but perhaps it would be more to the point to consider a singular fact.

The workaday Canadian, who is so often wiser than his political gurus and soothsayers, seems in no hurry to convert his nest-egg into West German marks or Swiss francs. Last time I dropped in at the bank that gets our trade, the girl who fills out orders for Canada Savings Bonds had used up one ballpoint and was hunting for another.

Life has taught me to be wary of runaway optimism. "I never loved a sweet gazelle," a tongue-in-cheek poet reminds us, "but what it turned and stung me well."

Still and all, that savings bond lineup can be construed as indicating a sturdy conviction at grass-roots level that Canada — which is to say Confederation — isn't about to go down the drain.

One positive and in this instance encouraging Canadian characteristic is that as a nation we aren't go-for-broke gamblers. When it comes to investment, we maintain a sobersided habit of weighing the odds. We don't fool around with our money by risking it on bonds which we feel are unlikely to pay off.

Expanding on this folk-instinct that all will yet be well with our 10-province, two-territory bag of cats, I suggest that the yet-unseparated brethren in Quebec share this practical-mindedness. Your Quebec opposite number knows on which side his bread is buttered.

He likes his politics dramatic, and his politicians full of spit and vinegar. He hasn't the slightest aversion, either, to basking in the anxious concern of an Ottawa which has dug deep in the national purse to give him more than he asked for or even wanted.

But to separate? To go it alone as one nation under one roof. Unless Quebec's not-so-silent majority has suffered a fantastic change of heart since I last spent time in that zestful province, Confederation faces no serious threat from that quarter.

In the final analysis, which is to say when or if the issue of separation comes to a head through a referendum, I offer it as an article of faith that Quebec will not secede.

She has too little to win and too much to lose, including the luxury of insisting upon certain extra-territorial language rights which her membership in our sorority of provinces protects.

As an independent, French-speaking republic isolated in an English-speaking North American bloc, she would retrograde into a storehouse of raw materials to be manufactured elsewhere, by trading partners who would dictate their own terms.

I told you that the Quebecois has received more from Ottawa than he asked for or wanted. Thanks largely to the arrogance and blundering ineptitude of the Trudeau federal-Liberal administration, bilingualism has been inflated into a bogey that has spread fear and resentment through the English-speaking provinces.

So, since worry is one of our chief national pastimes, worry about Ottawa by all means. Specifically, worry with former Liberal cabinet minister James Richardson about the spectre of a revamped British North America Act that would make us a house divided on the language issue as never before in the history of Confederation.

But don't, I urge you, hate Quebec, a province which is already entertaining second thoughts about its ill-advised provincial language act, and which is more Ottawa's victim than its beneficiary.

Separation? For what encouragement history offers, let me tell you a story.

Long before Confederation, when American General Benedict Arnold and his American troops menaced the existence of young Canada, it was not British arms alone that averted the threat. By denying aid and comfort to a common enemy, the shrewd Quebecois helped guarantee a Canadian future.

I could be wrong. My cautious flicker of optimism may well be unjustified. But I think when the chips are down, our union may prove to be of tougher fibre than the doom-criers would have us believe.

Realtor Dies Of Seizure

WHYTE

Donald G. Whyte, 48, president of Whyte and Gower Oak Bay Properties Ltd., died of a heart attack at his home Sunday.

He had been engaged in the real estate business in Victoria for 24 years and was vice-president of Victoria Real Estate Board this year.

According to a member of the family, Whyte was working with livestock in a field at his Saanich Peninsula home, 5895 Old East Saanich Road, when he suffered a seizure.

As a realtor, Whyte was a professional member of the Real Estate Institute of B.C., a fellow of the Real Estate Institute of Canada and a graduate of the University of B.C. diploma course in urban land economics.

Funeral arrangements by McCall's will be arranged for later this week.

Art, Flowers in Holiday Magic

elizabeth forbes

Not every fair, fete or festival, at this season of the year, beckons the public with thought of making money.

That's a fact! Believe it or not!

At this moment I have beside me some intriguing information about a show named Holiday Magic, planned by the Victoria Flower Arrangers Guild for this coming Friday and Saturday in First United Church Hall at Quadra and Balmoral Road.

That show will present clever arrangements of holiday swages, wreaths, table centres and tree decorations that members of the Guild have created for their own homes and, at the same time, give you minute details on how to make those decorations yourselves.

Here is an organization of some 80 women, primarily interested in the absorbing and dynamic art of flower arranging.

Every year, since 1970, they have organized this beautiful and inspiring Holiday Magic show.

Materials used are fresh, dried or otherwise preserved. No artificial matter is allowed, with exception of poinsettias and grapes.

Some of the arrangements are miniature in design, some are planned for niches of varying heights, still others are as much as six feet tall.

Members of the guild will answer all questions regarding plant material used and give advise on the easiest ways to create the different designs.

Guild resident Marilin McLaren will be there to greet you, with Peggy Ellames and Anne LeGrand, co-coveners of this year's event. A display of evergreens is being arranged in the foyer by Doris Page.

A stall will also be set up where you may obtain materials (teasel seeds, laurel leaves, feathers, grasses, bullrushes and dried flowers) to create your own special decorative "magic" for the Yuletide.

There will be an admission charge of $1. Door prizes, too. Tea and coffee will be served, with home-made cookies and cakes.

Mrs. Ellames tells me that any money from admissions and the material stall will be given, after the show, to "a worthwhile project of the members' choice." This has been a custom since the first show in 1970.

So, I would suggest you put Holiday Magic on your list of "musts" for Friday, 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., or Saturday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

My fingers are "all thumbs" when it comes to creating any sort of decorative effect. Nevertheless, I'm going to have a look and perhaps a try, for Peggy Ellames assures me it's "really easy."

The Victoria Flower Arranger's Guild has a history extending back to 1949 when W. J. Pynn started a judging and arranging group within the Victoria Horticultural Society.

During 1952-53, with increased activity in the flower arranging field, that group divided, with the judging side becoming a separate entity but still in the VHS.

In 1969, the flower arranging members formed an independent group under the present name — but still affiliated with the horticultural society.

The Guild presently meets every second Wednesday in each month (except December) at St. Christopher's Church hall, Tillicum and Carey Road, at 7:30 p.m.

All phases of flower arranging are presented, many by the more advanced members of the group. Included in each year's events are two or more basic programs especially for new members. Lectures are also given, from time to time, by visiting specialists from other parts of the world.

Postscript — Recently I learned, through the Christian Science Monitor, that "a very special peace prize" is to be awarded by the people of Norway. One that I'm sure, you will applaud with me.

The announcement, on an editorial page of this world-renowned newspaper, reads that "nobody was awarded the official Nobel Peace Prize this year, but we are pleased to learn that those two sturdy advocates of peace in Northern Ireland, Betty Williams and Mairead Corrigan, are scheduled to receive what might be termed a consolation peace prize, from the Norwegian people."

Two points make this so-called "People's Peace Prize" fitting, the editorial says.

One is that it is a spontaneous manifestation of the Norwegian people's desire to support the women's peace movement headed by the duo from Belfast.

The other is that their grass-roots effort, "already denounced and ridiculed by Irish extremists, still seems a worhwhile attempt to halt the long, bitter violence in Ulster — and as such deserves all the moral and financial support it can muster."

The article points out that the illegal Irish Republican Army claims that the Williams-Corrigan movement will be over by Christmas, but "this forecast may well prove inaccurate."

Mrs. Williams describes such claims and terrorist attacks as "lashes from a dying tiger who is backed against the wall by public opinion in our country and around the world."

Norway is not alone in its unofficial gesture Support is also coming from West Germany, especially from an organization of mothers of all nations named Woman.

The Norwegian fund, launched by a group of that country's newspapers after the Nobel Peace Price committee was unable to accept a late nomination of the two Belfast women, is still growing and when presented at the end of this month, the Monitor says "should provide a needed boost."

Most important, it adds (and I'm sure you will agree) "it will show that even a movement sometimes criticized for being naive can evoke a heartfelt response from outsiders if its motives are right."

Carbohydrates: An Undeservedly Bad Reputation

Carbohydrates have an undeservedly bad reputation. Think about it. Which two foods do people most commonly give up when the pounds accumulate? Do we hear bread and potatoes?

The teenager lunching on ham between slices of cheese, the business man doubling his portion of steak in order to forgo baked potato, and the housewife serving strange unappetizing protein combinations are all trying to avoid carbohydrates — for no good reason, and sometimes with unfortunate results.

The ridiculous, uncritical publicity given to the recent plague of low-carbohydrate, high-fat diets implies we can drastically reduce our carbohydrate intake without consequences. Nonsense. Dangerous nonsense. For proper nutrition the human body should receive 60 per cent of its daily calories in the form of carbohydrates.

There is an appalling amount of misinformation concerning carbohydrates: from the rumor that they are unnecessary to the myth that sugar gives instant energy. Here are some solid facts.

What are carbohydrates? Carbohydrates are starches and sugars. They are found in such foods as bread, cereals, potatoes, pastas, rice, fruits, vegetables, milk, ice cream and yogurt. Not only do these carbohydrates combine with other nutrients that are essential to our health but they are themselves essential in providing energy to the body and in particular to the muscles and the brain.

The body digests carbohydrates first. When we eat a meal the last thing to be digested are fats, the second last are proteins and the first to be digested are the carbohydrates. Carbohydrates are easily broken down into simple sugars that are turned into the blood sugar, glucose.

We can only store a small amount of carbohydrates. If the blood receives more glucose than it and the rest of the body require at that time, a small amount of the excess is turned into a starch called glycogen and stored in the liver and muscles. The maximum glycogen storage is equivalent to about 600 calories.

Carbohydrates make us fat only when we eat more than we need. When we eat more carbohydrates than the blood and body require in the form of glucose and more than can be stored in the form of glycogen, then the excess is converted to fat and is stored in the fat cells of the adipose tissue. It is not carbohydrates but overeating that makes us fat.

Fats and proteins make us fat, too. If the body receives too much fat, it simply stores the extra. If the body gets more protein than it needs, it converts the protein first to carbohydrates, and subsequently to fat which it stores. Extra calories are extra calories and they make us fat, in whatever form.

If we are short of carbohydrates can our bodies burn fat and protein for energy? Yes, but to a limited extent. Fat can be used as a direct source of energy and protein can form glucose and glycogen, which provides energy for the brain and muscles.

This is the second of four excerpts from NutriScore: Rate-Yourself Plan for Better Nutrition, by Ruth Fremes, home economist and consumer broadcaster and Dr. Zak Sabry, professor of nutrition at the University of Guelph. The book is published by Methuen Publications.

Isn't this a good way to get rid of excess fat? No. Fat cannot provide energy for our mental and physical powerhouses, the brain and muscles. They prefer blood sugar (glucose) as their source of energy and, lacking carbohydrates, the body has to provide it by breaking down some of its protein.

It is certainly not desirable to destroy the protein the body needs for the proper functioning of such vital parts as the immune system, which protects us from disease and infection.

You may wonder why you can't increase protein at the very moment of cutting down on carbohydrates, so that the protein can be utilized for glucose production directly.

First, your timing would have to be pretty close to balance different rates of digestion. Also, it would be a dangerous way to treat the kidneys, because they would have to bear the unaccustomed burden of discharging the debris left from changing large amounts of protein into glucose.

What does alcohol do to you? It does a lot to you and for you. Alcohol is a simple chemical with a structure similar to that of sugar. It is not normally formed in the body. Being a small molecule, alcohol moves easily into the blood and changes the structure of the blood components. So the body has to burn it fast since it can't get rid of it in the urine.

The only organ that can handle alcohol is the liver. If it becomes overloaded, alcohol concentration in the blood will rise and some of it will get into the brain (making you giddy) and into the lungs and your breath.

In the liver, alcohol is burned and transformed into calories. From one ounce of alcohol you get around 150 calories (more than what you get from an ounce of carbohydrate or protein, but less than from an ounce of fat.)

In order for the liver to burn alcohol, certain enzymes must work efficiently, which they can do only with the aid of protein and certain vitamins and minerals.

This is why, if you are going to drink, you'll have to eat a balanced diet. The body has to be well nourished. But the paradox in heavy drinkers is that all too often they neglect to eat properly. Some may eat a lot, but not a nutritionally balanced diet.

It takes time for the body to convert sugar into energy. There goes the old idea of sugar as an instant energy food. It takes time for the sugar to be absorbed and to be picked up by the muscle and to be burned for energy.

An athlete needs all kinds of food, such as whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables and milk, to provide not only carbohydrates but also many of the other nutrients needed to build a strong body.

We don't need sugar if we have starch. It is true that we can do without sugar except for taste. We are all so accustomed to the taste of sugar that it is unrealistic to expect anyone not suffering from sugar-related medical problems like diabetes to give it up entirely.

As for nutrition, sugar (be it raw or refined, in honey, or in syrup, or any of the sweeteners) has nothing to offer but carbohydrate calories. Medical evidence points to sugar as a prominent cause of dental cavities and for some people it is a factor in heart disease as well.

Sweetners certainly contribute to obesity, since only one spoonful of sugar contains 25 calories, and they indirectly contribute to malnutrition by replacing more healthful foods.

hand around the house

Patching Veneer Takes Time, Care

By A. J. HAND
(c) 1976, Popular Science

The stick shellac repair technique described last week is fine for small repairs, but it can't cope with larger damage. Gouges and chips over ½ to ¾ of an inch across are better repaired by patching with matching veneers.

Blisters require still another technique. It's an easy one, so let's cover it first.

Start by soaking the blister with a warm, damp rag. This will soften the wood and prevent its cracking. Next, slit the bubble parallel to the grain with a sharp knife. Use the knife to work white glue under the bubble. Try to overfill with glue at this point.

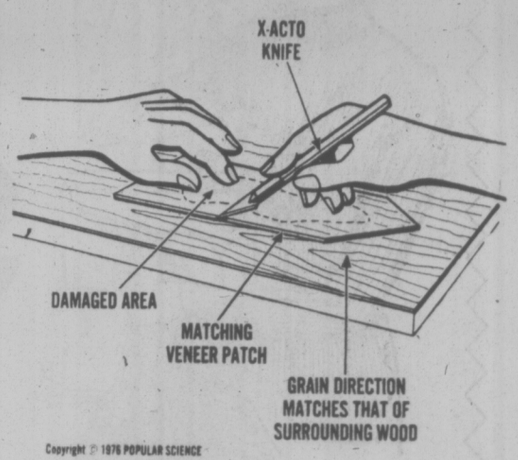
Next, wrap a few layers of paper towel around a block of wood and press it down firmly over the bubble. This will squeeze out excess glue and the toweling will soak it up.

Now place a sheet of waxed paper over the blister, place a block over this, and clamp or weight heavily to press the bubble down flat. Let set for a day. Remove the block and paper. Wash away excess glue with hot water, working quickly. If you take too long, the hot water may undo the repair.

If the finish over the blister is still intact, the job is done. If not, finish with varnish as decribed later.

Patching veneers with veneers is not easy. First you have to identify the species of wood used in the veneer being patched. Then you must obtain an identical veneer, cut a neat patch, inlay it into the existing veneer and finish it to match.

Best way to get a matching veneer is to buy a kit of samples. Check with your local lumberyard. Constantine's, 2050 Eachester Rd., Bronx, N.Y. 10460, sells a kit of 50 samples for $5.95 plus 60 cents postage. These four-by-nine-inch samples will be enough for almost any repair.



The veneer you choose will probably require staining to match your existing veneer. Practice staining on veneer scraps until you find a stain or mixture of stains that give a good match. Aim for a good match when the stain is still wet. It may change tone as it dries, but will revert to its wet tone when finished.

Easiest way to cut a patch is with a veneer punch. This tool will cut away a plug of wood surrounding the area you want to patch and will cut an identical patch from your piece of patching veneer. The result is a perfectly fitting patch that almost disappears. Drawback? The price is anywhere from $23.75 to $44.20 depending on size.

If you don't want to spend that much for a punch, use this technique: Cut a patch from your sample veneer. Place it over the damaged area and score around it with a razor-sharp X-Acto knife. Score and rescore until you cut through the veneer. Then carefully chip away the damaged area all the way out to the score lines. Scrape the area to receive the patch smooth and free of glue. Coat the area with glue and cement the patch in place using the paper towel and the block and clamp tricks described above under blister repair.

When the glue has set for a day, remove the clamp and block. Sand the patch level with the surrounding wood. If it's already at or below level, sand or scrape it to remove all traces of glue that could interfere with the penetration of the stain.

Now stain the patch and let dry for a day or two. For final finishing, use varnish. Brush on a thin coat and let dry. Sand lightly with number 400 paper and brush on another coat. Two coats will be enough unless the patch is low and needs more coats to bring it up to the level of the surrounding area.

Let the final coats dry for a least a day. Sand level with number 400 paper used with light oil. Wrap the paper around a block of wood so the area will be sanded flat and true. Finally, after letting the varnish harden for a few weeks, polish it (if required to match the surrounding sheen) with rottenstone and oil (paint store items) or with automotive rubbing compound.

By Lynn and Joel Rapp

DEAR LYNN-JOEL: Even though I haven't been into plants, mainly because I've always had the kiss of death, I enjoy them very much and fully intend to get some. — R.H.

Dear R.H.: Before you rush out and buy plants you must prepare for the plant experience in much the same way as you would for any new adventure. It isn't necessary for plants to die and there's no such thing as the "kiss of death" if you are sincere and are well prepared.

Where will you place your plants? Forget about any dark corners or areas near heaters or stoves or in the line of traffic. After you've determined where to place them, list the various areas and the direction of light. Light is most important. Take this with you when you purchase. Ask questions and go to a reputable nursery.

You'll need a book to guide you. Stick with hassle-free plants such as pothos, grape ivy, dwarf palm and Chinese evergreens, established in six- or eight-inch pots. Don't be afraid of plants — they'll pick up your vibes. Start small — not more than four at the beginning. Check them every day, talk to them, and let us know your progress.

dear abby

Just a Short Toot To Show Love

DEAR ABBY: I don't think loving the Lord is anything to joke about, so when I saw this bumper sticker on the car ahead of me that said, "HONK IF YOU LOVE JESUS," I honked my horn. I guess maybe I overdid it because the next thing I knew I had a motorcycle cop alongside me, asking to see my driver's license. I showed him it fast and asked him what I did wrong, and he asked me why I was honking my horn.

When I said, "Because I love Jesus," he asked me if I had been drinking.

Well, Abby, he didn't give me a ticket; he just chewed me out for disturbing the peace, and told me not to do it again.

My question: Was I wrong to honk? — LOVES JESUS.

DEAR LOVES: Maybe a short toot would have been enough to let Jesus know you love him, but in the future you'd better do your heavy praying in church.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a gal, nearly 20, and a sophomore in college.

Last summer I met a kid at the beach. (I'll call him Brian). We dug each other right away and have been going together ever since. (We're really in love).

Brian said he was 18, and I told him I was also 18. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 175, is very well built and LOOKS 18. I'm small and have always looked younger than my age.

Brian dropped out of high school to take a construction job until the Navy calls him for training for some special kind of job.

Abby, I accidentally saw his driver's license and learned that Brian is only 16 years old! When I told him I knew, he said he hated lying to me, but was afraid I wouldn't date him if I knew his right age.

Then I told him my right age and he said it didn't matter. Do you think he's too young for me? Now that I know he's only 16, I feel that he is, but before then, I didn't. We've even talked about marriage. — AGE DIFFERENCE.

DEAR DIFFERENCE: If you didn't feel that Brian was too young for you until you accidentally found out, you're probably well-matched, regardless of your ages. But for your sake as well as his, defer marriage until his future is more clearly defined.

Jerusalem Artichoke a Versatile Tuber

hilda beastall

By HILDA BEASTALL

The so-called Jerusalem artichokes have been ready for digging from the garden as needed since the top browned early this month. These are the tuberous rooted vegetable with the tall sunflower stems sometimes producing a small sunflower-like bloom. For best results in cooking these delicacies, lift only enough for one week's needs. Lift more later as required.

Now for some ideas on using this versatile tuber. First, don't think of it as some kind of potato. It has little resemblance; it does have a character of its own, and the food values are quite different though not too clearly defined by those who could give us this type of information.

If you like to prepare Chinese-type food at home, you will find Jerusalem artichoke a good substitute for water chestnut.

Scrub the tubers well, put into cold salted water, bring to boil and simmer until becoming tender but still crisp. For small to medium size (golf ball and a little larger) 10 minutes boiling. Drain, keeping the liquid for later use.

Peeling, if this is needed, is more easily done after boiling, while still hot. When freshly dug early in the season, the skins are tender and edible. Later, in the new year, peeling is sometimes necessary for some recipes.

Cooked as suggested above, the tubers are ready to be added to other quick meals, such as one ingredient for a vegetable mixture for filling pancakes and omelets.

Diced after cooking, covered with an oil and lemon juice dressing while warm, the artichoke can then be tossed with fine chopped celery with leaves, parsley and young kale leaves for a splendid salad with sardines and hard boiled eggs.

Sauteed artichokes are good too. After cooking for 10 minutes, drain and cut into ¼-inch slices. Heat a little oil or soft margarine in a skillet or frypan. Add a small garlic clove, crushed with the blade of a knife, and a handful of either chopped parsley or chopped young kale leaves. Cook for 5 minutes.

Add artichoke slices, cover, and cook 5 minutes longer. Add one large canned tomato, chopped. Reheat, and serve on wholewheat bread sprinkled with wheat germ. Shake paprika over all.

A baked dish, for hot lunch or as part of the evening meal is made in a casserole. This needs about 15 minutes in a hot oven, or less under broiler heat.

CASSEROLE OF ARTICHOKE TUBERS

4 cups cooked artichokes
1 cup milk from skim powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup wholewheat bread crumbs
¼ cup wheat germ
½ cup grated mild Cheddar

Cut the pre-cooked artichokes into ⅛-inch dice. Place in greased casserole. Pour milk over pieces. Add salt and stir.

Mix together bread crumbs, wheat germ and grated cheese. Spread over top of artichokes and milk. This will partially thicken the milk.

Bake in hot oven 205 degs. C. for 10 to 15 minutes until browning and bubbling. Serve at once before cheese hardens. Serves 4.

Artichoke Soup can be either delicately flavored, smooth as velvet, or more robust with crisp diced carrot and artichoke in stock well flavored with thyme and curry.

VELVET ARTICHOKE SOUP

2 Tbsp. soft margarine
1 small onion
1 clove garlic
½ tsp. salt
1½ cups diced artichokes
2 cups milk from milk powder
1 Tbsp. fine chopped parsley or kale leaves

Melt margarine in saucepan, cook thinly sliced onion until yellow. Add whole garlic clove and diced artichokes. Stir and toss for 3 minutes. Add milk and salt, return to boiling point.

Simmer gently, covered, for 15 minutes or until artichokes are tender. Put the mixture through a sieve (or a blender would do a smoother job no doubt), reheat.

Serve very hot, sprinkled with chopped parsley or kale, and crisp toasted triangles of wholewheat bread, with crumbs left on. Serves 3 to 4.

ARTICHOKE VEGETABLE SOUP

2 Tbsp. soft margarine
1 small onion
2 cloves of garlic
1 cup small diced artichokes
¼ cup small diced carrot
¼ cup small diced yellow squash
1 cup water
1 cup milk double strength from skim powder
¾ tsp. salt
pinch fresh thyme leaves
about one-eighth tsp. curry powder

Cook onion and garlic in soft margarine until yellowed, add small diced vegetables and 1 cup water. Add seasonings. Return to boiling point and simmer gently, covered until all are fork tender. Add 1 cup double strength skim milk from powder and bring back to boiling point. Taste for seasoning. Add more curry powder if liked. Serve with toasted triangles and cheese cubes. Serves or 4.

In both soups, use vegetable stock from previous meals in place of water, and milk powder can be stirred in separately.

Jerusalem artichokes for salad may be used raw. Scrub well. Then grate into bowl containing enough plain yogurt to coat.

ARTICHOKE SALAD

1½ cup grated raw artichoke
½ cup homemade yogurt
¼ cup celery with leaves cut small ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
shredded curly endive

Prepare artichokes as outlined above. Toss with celery and cheese. Serve in a ring of bright green curly endive. Serves 3 or 4.

Later in season, cook and peel artichokes, then dice and add to other diced cooked vegetables. Serve with hard cooked eggs and Cheddar cheese, on bed of green lettuce.

Friends with gardens will gladly part with a few artichoke tubers for your experimenting. Vegetable stores in some Victoria areas display the tubers late in the year and through February as a rule. By that time, the new season's crop is planted.

Try to find a few of this delicately flavored vegetable now while at its best.

New Matza Balls

Low-cholesterol version of a dish from Jewish cuisine.

2 whites from large eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup matza meal
Salt
2 tablespoons corn oil

Stir together until smooth the egg whites, matza meal and 1 teaspoon scant salt; stir in oil and 2 tablespoons water. Chill, tightly covered, for at least 4 hours to stiffen. Bring a 4 or 5-quart saucepot, filled with water to several inches from the top, and 1 tablespoon salt, to a boil; keep hot without boiling further. Using a rounded teaspoon of the matza mixture and working deftly with damp hands, shape into balls and as you do so drop into the very hot water. When all the balls are in the saucepot, bring the water to a boil again and boil, uncovered, for 1 hour. Drain and serve in hot chicken soup. Makes about 20 balls.

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: I've never had a bit of trouble with my 1969 Opel — until lately. It's recently been hard to start in the morning. I have to pump the gas pedal a dozen times before the engine catches. Or I can start it sooner by pouring a little gasoline down the carburetor. The fuel pump checks out fine, and the car has been tuned. What gives? — TIRED FOOT.

DEAR TIRED: Fuel is leaking or evaporating from your carburetor float bowl. Have a carb specialist check all gaskets; also see if any casting plugs are loose. Then, too, sometimes the little ball valve in the bottom of the accelerator pump inside the carburetor wears out. This lets gas drip slsowly down into the intake manifold, emptying the float bowl overnight.

DEAR MIKE: Should I replace the timing gear on my 1969 GTO? I've heard that 1969 Pontiac timing gears normally wear out at 50,000 miles. I now have 69,000 on my car. If the gear breaks with the motor running, will it do further damage? The car now runs perfectly. Please advise. —WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: Not to worry. While it's true that Pontiac V-8s had soft cam gears once upon a time, normal replacement was nearer 100,000 miles. If a tooth breaks, no other part of the engine will be harmed. I'd ride with your GTO until something happens.

DEAR MIKE: The radio in my 1973 Olds cuts in and out as I drive down the road. I've checked all wires to and from the radio and aerial, plus the fuse. All seem okay. Can you suggest a home remedy, or should I take the radio to a specialist? It's a plain-old AM. — LISTENING.

DEAR LISTENING: You're on the right track, but if you're sure you checked out all the wiring for shorts, grounds, and poor connections, I'm afraid it's something lobse inside the case. If so, I'd suggest you leave it to an expert.

DEAR MIKE: When I start my 1975 Gremlin in the morning, there's a sharp scream just after the motor catches. Ordinarily this sound comes only on starting, but I can create it by suddenly revving the motor. My filling station can't tell me what's wrong nor whether this sound means real trouble. I know it's not much to go on, but sign me . . . — SCREAMIN' MIMI.

DEAR MIMI: I'll bet anything it's just a loose fanbelt. A slipping belt often makes a squealing or whistling noise on sharp acceleration.

The Many Benefits of Yoga

Ask Jennifer

By JENNIFER ANDERSON

In the frantic pace of modern life, peace and tranquility are hard to come by. Yoga can be the answer. Start now to provide for a quiet time with yourself.

DEAR JENNIFER: I am often tense and irritable, too tired to bother with exercise programs. My friends who take yoga classes say it makes them feel wonderful. Do you recommend it? How can I get started? — Thelma K.

I definitely recommend it! Considering the hectic pace most people maintain, a daily period of complete relaxation is not a luxury but a necessity.

Irritability and the "too-tired-to-exercise" feeling makes you a perfect candidate for yoga. It relaxes tension and renews your body as it does your outlook.

If you can find a yoga class to attend to get a firm foundation in the basic postures, it would be ideal. You can then carry it on at home on a daily basis.

Many women, however, have done very well in a self-taught program — with the aid of a good yoga book.

Here are a few yoga postures to practice. At first they will feel uncomfortable, but as you perform them daily they will become effortless and completely exhilarating.

— Lie flat on your back, then raise your legs and body (helping yourself with your hands) until you are resting on your forearms, back of your head, back of neck and shoulders. Push gently with your hands on the small of the back to coax the body into a perpendicular position. A first this will feel uncomfortable. Breathe evenly and deeply as you hold this position. When you become tired, move into the next position.

— Still flat on your back, let the legs flop over your head. Eventually, through daily practice, you will strive to have the knees straight and then touching the ground over your head. Continue to breathe evenly.

— In the same position, bend the knees at the sides of the head into the Head Hug. Don't expect your knees to touch the ground in the beginning. It will take two or three weeks of practice before you will have the flexibility to achieve this.

I have particularly recommended these "reverse postures" for you since they give an immediate release of tension and wash away feeling of tiredness.

JOHN EAMER-GOULT
FOR ALDERMAN
OAK BAY

The main problem we face at this time is how we can maintain our Municipal services and meet our obligations without a great increase in taxes.

There are two ways we can attack the problem. First, we can make our Municipal operation more efficient to get more for our tax dollar. Oak Bay Council actively attacked this problem in the last year. We intend to continue that attack.

Secondly, we must convince the Province that Municipalities cannot keep increasing taxes on your homes to barely maintain present standards. Municipalities have to have a source of money other than the homeowner's pocket book. That money must come from Senior Government.

Jellybean Man Has His Eyes On Gourmets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Does the world really need a coconut jellybean?

Yes, says Dave Klein, a 30-year-opld lawyer turned jellybean entrepreneur. Of course, he also says the same thing about his tangerine, root beer, green apple and cotton candy jellybeans.

"Jellybeans have been around for a long time, but no one's ever done anything with t h e m — this is a breakthrough," says Klein, who sells his "gourmet jellybeans" under the name "Jelly Bellies."

At $2 a pound Jelly Bellies are the world's most expensive jellybeans, according to Klein, who claims to have researched their history extensively. There are 417 to the pound, give or take a bean, and each has four calories.

Klein is marketing Jelly Bellies to department and food stores and is offering franchises in theatres and ice cream parlors. A pilot franchise in an Alhambra ice cream parlor has been quite successful, according to store owner Bob Fosselman.

"They really seem to have caught on," said Fosselman, who has been in the ice cream business for 35 years. "The c o n c e p t catches people's imaginations. Originally, it was sales to kids, but now they've developed party business — showers, weddings and so on."

In addition to the above flaors, Jelly Bellies come in ordinary strains like lemon, lime, cherry and grape. For the more adventurous, there are licorice, cream soda and country melon jellybeans.

Klein, who developed the flavors with the aid of a food chemist, originally had concocted a watermelon Jelly Belly. However, he couldn't decide whether to color it red or green — two-tone jellybeans present technical problems — so he picked green and named the flavor country melon.

Klein went to law school after working his way through UCLA selling "Big Dave's Popcorn" but decided against practising law.

"I have friends who are lawyers who get sick in the morning when they have to go to court," says Klein, who felt the pressures of the legal field might be a bit much.

KARL MARX A BRITON

WUPPERTAL, West Germany (Reuter) — A West German historian said today Karl Marx was a naturalized British citizen.

History books generally refer to Marx — German-born author of Das Kapital and the Communist Manifesto — as stateless though he lived for much of his life in London and is buried there.

Michael Knieriem, custodian of the Memorial Museum of Friedrich Engels, Marx's closest collaborator, said he found evidence while researching in London's public records office that Marx was naturalized in 1887. He did not say what the evidence is.

Marx also used the first name Charles when passing through the port of Dover on his travels to continental Europe, the historian said.

Spy Case Papers Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A committee of persons who believe Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were framed in a publicized spy trial during the 1950s today petitioned the U.S. Justice Department to release secret FBI investigation records.

The petition was addressed to Attorney General Edward Levi but he was away from his office when about 30 members of the "National Committee to Reopen the Rosenberg Case" arrived with a cardboard carton full of signatures.

Ronald Carr, a special assistant to Levi, accepted the petition for the attorney general. The committee members then left to go on an escorted tour of the FBI building, including its exhibits on the Rosenberg case.

The Rosenbergs were executed as atomic spies for Russia in 1953. Their sons, Michael and Robert Meeropol, have obtained 30,000 government documents under the Freedom of Information Act in an effort to clear their parents' names but claim crucial papers have been withheld.

Canadians To Ireland

TORONTO (CP) — Helen Tucker, 72, of Toronto plans to lead a delegation of Canadians to a Dec. 5 peace rally in Northern Ireland.

Mrs. Tucker is helping to organize a group to take part in the rally which is expected to attract nearly 500,000 persons from all over the world.

Organizers in Ireland have received threats of violence if the rally goes ahead.

Mrs. Tucker said in an interview the time for talking is past.

"We have to show how we feel, and I believe we must show our support for the brave Belfast women who have been organizing the peace movement."

The Canadian women are to leave for Northern Ireland Nov. 28.

Drug Safety Reports 'Falsified'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some research laboratories have deliberately falsified test data on the safety of drugs and chemicals being consumed by the U.S. public, says the outgoing head of the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Alexander Schmidt said in an interview that an investigation will result in criminal charges against some laboratores, which he declined to identify.

"What's been most disturbing is the frank falsification of data," he said. "We have found that too often."

Congress gave the FDA $16.4 million and 600 more persons this year to see how widespread the problem is.

"In the next three or four months, we will complete our survey of 40 laboratories — university, pharmaceutical and contract — and at the end of that time we will have a much better idea about the kind of research in this country."

Schmidt, 46, is going back to the University of Illinois' medical school after nearly four years at the FDA.

Concorde Flight Review Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court refused today to review circumstances of a government decision allowing commercial flights of the British-French supersonic Concorde jetliner to the United States.

The justices let stand a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington that Transportation Secretary William Coleman acted within his authority in permitting the Concorde to operate on a trial basis at two U.S. airports.

Authorities in Fairfax County, Va., and Nassau County, N.Y., seeking to stop the Concorde flights, asked the Supreme Court to review circumstances of Coleman's decision.

Last February Coleman gave permission to British Airways and Air France to fly the Concorde, the world's fastest passenger plane that crosses the Atlantic at twice the speed of sound, into Dulles International Airport in Virginia and John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York for a 16-month trial period.

New York opponents of the decision successfully thwarted the Concorde landing there when the board of commissioners of the Port Authority of New York, operator of Kennedy airport, prohibited such flights pending study of the effects felt by Dulles. British Airways has filed suit in a New York federal court challenging the board's action.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Fairfax and Nassau counties contended that Coleman permitted the supersonic transport flights before adopting noise regulations

New Concerto Was Memorable

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

World premieres of a symphonic composition are unusual anywhere but in Victoria such an occasion is rare.

On Sunday and again tonight, Laszlo Gati and the Victoria Symphony with renowned violinist Steven Staryk as soloist, mark the third concert of the 36th season with a first performance.

The work is a concerto for violin and orchestra which was commissioned by Gati and the Victoria Sumphony through the Canada Council. The composer is Saul Irving Glick of Toronto.

With a first performance of a new work the reviewer is out in left field, all alone with the responsibility of expressing a personal judgment. For me the principal criteria in attempting to assess a work of art in any medium, is that it should have something to say in terms of the human spirit and emotions. It must be much more than an academic exercise, no matter how clever and painstaking that exercise might be.

So I will leave the technical-theoretical aspects of Glick's composition to others and say only that the performance on Sunday proved a moving and memorable experience and one whose repetition will be eagerly welcomed.

Staryk's performance was warm, brilliant and evocative, and displays to its best advantage a work that has drama and passion and an appealing lyricism, while it reveals the composer's sensitivity toward instrument and virtuoso and the color and textural resources of the orchestra.

The concerto does not break into movements but is an uninterrupted series of episodes related in their central inspiration, achieving at times a nobility of expression with a skilful use of brass and percussion, and at others a poignant melodic line that is finely handled by strings and woodwinds.

It was quite clear that Gati and the orchestra took pleasure in performing the work and did so with insight and devotion. Staryk, who produces so beautiful a tone, bows with such consummate artistry and is always in full technical command of every aspect, brought the composer to the stage to share in an enthusiastic ovation.

Gati conducted a performance of Dvorak's ninth "New World" Symphony and Mozart's Cosi Fan Tutte overture to complete the program.

The Dvorak benefits from the special arrangment of the orchestra which places the woodwinds at the front on Gati's right. This is a performance which emphasizes once more the excellence of the symphony's brass and woodwind sections and the growing security and richness of the strings.

The famous English horn solo at the opening of the second movement was beautifully played but well matched by the strings and other winds and some fine passages from the horns.

HARD OF HEARING?

Open ear process developed especially for nerve deafness

The Clarifier CROS instrument has been designed to make it possible for men, women and children with nerve deafness to find new hearing happiness.

This open ear process, with just a tiny plastic tube leading into your ear, may be what you have been looking for. If you have been dissatisfied with your hearing aid or have hesitated to wear one because it looks and feels clumsy or uncomfortable, Dahlberg offers you a practical alternative with the new Clarifier Cros.

The Clarifier CROS is not a bone conduction aid and is not confined to eyeglass styles. The CROS principle is also available in behind-the-ear models.

Add Ginger to a Child's Life

The inevitable rainy days of November will bring a need for projects which teachers, and parents of young children can put into effect with a minimum of cash outlay.

If a project is of continuing interest, so much the better; if it deals with objects of everyday interest it adds up to value for the youngsters during all their lives.

The growing of a piece of root ginger into a foot-high house plant is one such project. Ginger is a common product today though once a highly prized, and priced, item of trade because of difficulty of travel.

Powdered ginger (the root dried and ground) is an ingredient for flavoring gingerbread. Pieces of the root are crystallized in sugar as a conserve. And pieces of the fresh root are used in Chinese cooking.

Indeed, ginger is one of the least harmful spices we can use for flavoring and seasoning and has been known for years medically as a digestive without undesirable side effects. Ginger ale was a standby for convalescents as a pleasant drink.

The fact that various foods owe their ginger flavor to the root of a plant which children can grow in a pot and see every day is a memorable experience for six-to-12-year-olds. The mature leaves have a distinct ginger fragrance when gently rubbed.

Pieces of green root ginger are needed. This appears in some department store vegetable sections in November. Choose small pieces having knobby buds from which the growth will come. One piece is needed for each three-inch pot.

Set a piece of ginger root just below the surface of sandy peaty compost in the pot. Have a few small stones at the bottom for drainage to prevent the soil from remaining waterlogged.

Overwatering is often the result of enthusiasm, with both young and older people.

Before roots form, the pots of soil need to be kept slightly damp, not wet, and placed in a warm place to get growth started below the soil level, soon followed by green shoots above.

More water can be given as the plants grow, but always ginger will need warmth and humidity for it is native to tropical areas of Asia.

As progress is noted, children begin to realize that other climates and peoples contribute to the well being of Canadians at home.

They also discover that plants which grow indoors here cannot grow outdoors because of the difference in temperatures. In the country where the plants grow naturally outdoors, and are cultivated to produce a food sold here in stores, those same plants grow much larger outdoors. Three feet is given as mature height for ginger plants in tropical Asia.

This and similar projects are of vast interest to youngsters, instructing them visually in the wonders of their environment. To know something of the world around them is the beginning of respect, tolerance and eventual understanding.

CITY'S SECRETS
I believe we should follow the example of Oak Bay and have all developement or zoning applications first come before city council. Then, upon council's direction, they should be processed through the planning department for a complete review with recommendations back to council. Council could then, if desired, refer proposals to a standing committee on planning, a committee so much more representative of the council and the public. Professionalism and expertise are to be treasured at City Hall but planners, like all civic administrators, elected or otherwise, should never forget that they are servants of the public. Inserted by C. JOE RICHARDS, candidate for alderman. To be continued tomorrow and remember to watch Channel 10 November 18th, 7 p.m.

THE BIBLE STATES "THERE shall be earthquakes". History proves that there have been mighty earthquakes and 1976 has seen some of the worst yet. The Bible shows that at the time of the end there will be great quakes and finally one last great earthquake that will change world events.
You are invited to come and hear Mr. G. McAdams, world traveller and Bible student, present a slide illustrated lecture on this topical subject at White Eagle Hall, 90 Dock St., Victoria; on Mon., Nov. 15th at 7:45 p.m. No collections.

Soweto Youths Shut Bars, Bootleggers

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Angry black students of Soweto, mixing puritan zeal with political militancy, have shut down virtually every bar in their sprawling black South African township of more than a million residents.

In just weeks they have succeeded in doing what police and preachers have been trying for years in a fight against heavy drinking among blacks.

The students, who sparked the first riots in Soweto in June, destroyed most government-run beerhalls in a wave of firebombing as racial unrest spread through the country.

Now they have ordered the closing of underground speakeasies known as "shebeens," ranging from high-class pubs to low-life distributors of moonshine.

Most owners have complied voluntarily. Student vigilante squads in Soweto, a black city south of Johannesburg, roam the streets and threaten those who do not comply.

The militant Soweto Students Representative Council ordered the closing to honor blacks killed and detained in South Africa's racial unrest and to attack the problem of heavy drinking among black adults.

"Nothing good has ever come out of the shebeens; many of our fathers and brothers have been killed in or out of them," the students said in a pamphlet.

"We can no longer tolerate seeing our fathers' pay packets being emptied in shebeens."

Most shebeens are established in private homes because blacks cannot obtain licences to sell liquor and set up their own bars.

The Association of Soweto Shebeens recently issued a statement pleading to be allowed to reopen for business and stating, "the white man is still making huge profits from liquor sales" in Johannesburg.

The owners argued that they are family bread-winners and had to finance education for their children.

"One or two children benefit while many wives and children suffer," came the student retort in another pamphlet. "The shebeens must close down."

Heavy drinking is prevalent among South Africa's blacks, and some studies say this is a result of the depressing conditions in which blacks live. One corporate study in 1972 showed that South African blacks spend 14.5 per cent of their pay cheques on liquor compared with a three-per-cent rate among whites.

Following the student campaign the Rand Daily Mail newspaper in Johannesburg reported: "Drunkenness has almost disappeared, not so much because of the lack of liquor but the threats of what will happen to one who is seen staggering in the streets."

Blacks Divided In Geneva

GENEVA (UPI) — Black nationalist leaders split at the Rhodesia peace talks today on a British compromise timetable for setting up black majority rule in that African country now governed by the white minority.

Conference Chairman Ivor Richard presented a formula to a 20-minute plenary session calling for a flexible transitional period of from 12 to 15 months in the timetable for independence under majority rule.

The militant "patriotic front" of Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo said Britain refuses to commit itself to a binding date, which they demand before the conference can continue. They forced a conference adjournment to permit they to study the compromise.

However, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole said they would go along with the compromise formula as the only way of getting down to issues of substance such as the shape of an interim government.

Mugabe and Nkomo complained that Britain had given other delegations advance texts which gave them as advantage.

"The British mentioned our date and their date but what is quite obvious is that Britain has opened the sluice gates and the whole thing (the independence process) can go on indefinitely," Nkomo said afterward.

"Britain has not named a date," both Nkomo and Mugabe insisted.

Britain is wary of setting a binding, unmoveable independence date for fear of becoming directly involved in Rhodesia if the necessary legal process cannot be completed in time.

"I'm much encouraged," said Richard, apparently still optimistic despite the two-week-old deadlock over the date issue.

"We've said that provided the necessary processes are completed, if they can be done in 15 months which is our estimate, the date for independence will be the first of March, 1978.

Syrians Seize Beirut's Core

BEIRUT (UPI) — Syrian peacekeeping troops rolled into Beirut's downtown battle zone today, seized control of the entire city and halted Moslem-Christian battles that had raged almost nonstop through 19 months of civil war.

Two columns of Syrian tanks and armored cars rumbled into the gutted seaport and commercial centre from the south and east. They were welcomed with hugs and kisses from jubilant leftist and rightist gunmen who fired wildly into the air to signal the apparent end of the war.

A third column of Syrians, Saudi Arabians and Sudenese moved up into Moslem west Beirut from the southwest after opening access roads to the city's airport.

In a lightning sweep that began before dawn, the Syrians took over all of the city's remaining battlefronts and seized commanding positions in all areas.

One column rumbled west from the Christian sector to take the main public utilities building, rolled straight across the devastated port front and advanced one block south of the U.S. embassy into the leftist stronghold of Ain Mreisse.

Another, spearheaded by bulldozers, shoved its way straight up the mile-wide no-man's-land from the national museum north to the sea.

Rightist and leftist gunmen fired into the air with joy as the Syrians took the city hall, the national parliament and the shell-gutted Holiday Inn — All scenes of bitter house-to-house fighting during the past year and a half.

"We were waiting for you all night so we could withdraw," a Christian militiaman at the parliament told a Syrian commander as they hugged and kissed.

Kitimat Ferry Gaining Support

KITIMAT (CP) — Mayor Paul Monaghan said Sunday that he totally supports Transport Minister Jack Davis in his thinking on a proposed 450-mile ferry route between Kitimat and Tsawwassen on the Lower Mainland.

Davis has said that the proposed ferry route will be high on the agenda when the directors of the British Columbia Ferries Corporation meet in January.

Spokesmen for private shipping companies have criticized the idea. They say they have all the facilities and ships needed to do the job as well as any ferry.

But Mayor Monaghan accused the companies of crying sour grapes. He said that over the years the private companies have provided very poor service for passengers and cars to the Kitimat area.

He also said that he thinks the ferry service will go into Kitimat — and it will mean a reduction in freight handling by private companies.

The mayor also said Davis' statement was based on a brief sent to him by the Kitimat council.

He said there is no way he can get from Kitimat to Vancouver by water now unless he wants to stand on an open barge.

Search For Crew Ended

HONOLULU (UPI) — The coast guard said all 19 missing crewmen from the Japanese freighter Carnelian-1 were presumed drowned and cancelled its search today for survivors of the sunken lumber ship.

A spokesman said the decision to call off the search was made after a six-hour aerial search of 1,000 square miles Sunday failed to turn up any sign of survivors.

The temperature of the Pacific waters in the area where the ship sank midway between the Aleutian Islands and Hawaii is in the low 50s and the seas were rough. Any surviving crewmen would have been exposed to the elements for five days.

Carnelian sank Thursday when fierce 50-knot winds and 30-foot seas knocked its cargo of giant logs from the decks and caused flooding in one hold and the engine room.

Fourteen men were picked up by two passing freighters Friday and one of the rescue freighters reported seeing what looked like a dead body. But the coast guard said the crewman was not counted as dead because he could have been only unconscious.

Search planes also saw some survivors sitting on logs Friday, but the storm broke up the jam before they could be rescued.

U.K. Runs North Sea Divers School

LONDON (CP) — The development of the North Sea oil reserves has created a shortage of trained commercial divers in England. In fact, the shortage is worldwide.

The British Professional Divers Association, concerned that inexperienced men were being sent to work in the North Sea, pressed the government to set up a diving school.

Last year a school was inaugurated and already foreigners are asking to be admitted.

The Underwater Training Centre is at Fort William, at the head of Loch Linnhe on the west coast of Scotland.

The salt-water loch offers a year-round simulation of the conditions in the North Sea, which are among the worst in the world.

Depths in the loch extend to 150 yards — excellent for mixed-gas diving.

Mixed-gas diving enables the diver to remain at depths in excess of 100 yards for long periods. The diver breathes a mixture of oxygen and helium to ward off the dangers presented by the high pressures at such depths.

Divers may stay under water for a month, working from a diving bell and living in special compression chambers. This is the type of diving they are likely to have to do in the North Sea.

Selection for the six-week course in mixed-gas diving is rigorous.

Men under 20 or over 30 are discouraged from applying. A medical certificate stating the applicant is 100-per-cent fit is necessary and so is proof of diving experience.

Only 16 men are chosen for each course. The curriculum includes algebra, basic diving theory, deep-diving systems and breathing apparatus, mixed-gas theory, mixed-gas physics and diving physiology, legal regulations and first aid.

During the first week theory is emphasized. In the second, the students hit the water, diving down to about 90 yards.

Week Three is a return to theory with explanations of gas compression and the hazards and medical aspects of diving. It is at this stage that the students make the acquaintance of Deep Diver I, the centre's $1¼-million diving complex.

This is a barge equipped with a diving bell and decompression chambers, mess and sleeping accommodation. Here the students study high- and low-pressure compressors, the operation of the bell, deck chambers, life-support systems, monitors, and a helium-recovery unit.

It is from Deep Diver I that the first saturation dive to 100 yards is made, during the fourth week of the course.

In the fifth week, a second saturation dive to 100 yards is made and there are excursions a little deeper. This dive carries through to the sixth week when there is a period of revision, a final exam and, lastly, a critique of the course.

In addition to deep diving, the centre teaches shallow diving — down to about 50 yards with the breathing of compressed air. This course lasts 12 weeks and is designed for those with little or no experience in diving or underwater work.

Here the selection is less rigorous; candidates can be between 18 and 35. But the candidate must still show some diving potential and be fit.

The centre, once it has covered the academic and practical diving groundwork with these students, teaches them the skills of working under water.

They are taught the use of cutting and burning tools under water. They learn how to lay and set off explosives, make knots and splices, use block and tackle and take photographs in the depths.

CANADA SLOWS COUNTERFEITERS

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian government has made changes in design of its money to foil counterfeiters but RCMP investigators say it is only a matter of time before some funny-money artist comes up with a good copy.

Changes in the design of Canadian money, starting with the $20 bill in 1969, have resulted in a drop in the amount of counterfeit currency.

The elaborate new Canadian bills, which combine 12 colors and shades in intricate patterns, have made it virtually impossible to counterfeit Canadian currency.

"But don't say it's completely impossible," said Sgt. Jacques Lasnier of the RCMP counterfeit squad in an interview.

"All it means as far as we are concerned is that the counterfeiters haven't found a way yet. Anything that can be copied or photostated can be counterfeited."

The RCMP still turns up the occasional bill from the 1973 series of counterfeit Canadian money. But in recent months it has had to turn its attention to fake United States currency which, the police say, is easier to counterfeit.

While the RCMP has records, on 41 separate series of Canadian counterfeit bills printed since the first appeared in 1959, the U.S. treasury department has files on nearly 800 series of counterfeit American bills.

Male Hookers On the Increase

By PETER J. BOYER

NEW YORK (AP) — On any night, in many major cities of the United States, they can be found—working the bars, dawdling on corners, smoking nervously as they pace the streets of that part of a city known as their territory.

Although statistics are scarce, an Associated Press survey shows that male prostitution is a growing urban problem, or at least a more visible problem than ever before. This is the belief of police department officials in New York and elsewhere.

The survey turned up only one city—Miami—where the police said male prostitution is non-existent.

A Los Angeles lawyer, who says he represents male prostitutes and is himself bisexual, agrees that male prostitution is on the rise. "Where there is gay life, which is everywhere, there is male prostitution. It's convenient, it's usually discreet, it serves the same purpose in the homosexual world that it serves in the straight world," said the lawyer, who permitted only the use of his first name, Allen.

Loitering, laughing, sometimes hassling passers-by, always keeping a vigilant eye open for vice officers, male hookers in some cities are as familiar as their female counterparts.

The street hooker is not always a homosexual. In Chicago's uptown section, says Ron Dickson, a spokesman for gays, "it's almost considered an acceptable thing for a young boy to go out and sell his body (at $15 to $25 a trick) to help support the family."

Capt. Jack Wilson of the Los Angeles police vice squad says 40 per cent of the prostitutes arrested in Hollywood are males, and the problem of male prostitution is increasing throughout the city as the gay movement grows. Dave Mosee of the Chicago police department, on the other hand, says male prostitution has been around for a long time in Chicago and has increased only slightly in recent months. Five per cent of those arrested in Chicago for prostitution are males, he said.

In New York, where one of every five prostitutes arrested last year was male, the hookers stroll along East 53rd Street, between Second and Third Avenues.

"I'd say male prostitution is more visible, I think because there is more awareness, more coming out of the closet. As far as whether it's more prevalent, I don't know. It is more visible," says Capt. John Saylo of New York's 17th police precinct, which includes East 53rd Street.

The police in Washington say they stopped arresting male prostitutes so they could concentrate on an upsurge in female prostitution during the U.S. bicentennial, which attracted thousands of tourists to the capital. Lieut. Edwin Casey of the prostitution and perversion squad says male prostitution apparently is increasing in Washington, but most of it is behind closed doors and the police therefore don't bother with it.

"Of all men who patronize male hookers, maybe 15 per cent go to the street hooker," says Allen, the Los Angeles lawyer. The rest go to bars, or make contact with prostitutes through friends, or answer ads placed by male prostitutes in underground newspapers.

Hollywood's spotlight is one of the better-known male prostitute bars. Every night, underneath a sign that reads, "The Bartender is Not A Sissy," dozens of men line the bar, waiting to pick up a male prostitute.

And in the back room, seemingly oblivious to the anxious stares of those along the bar, several hustlers shoot pool, calmly "sizing the tricks."

When contact is made, and a price and the act agreed upon, the hustler and his client are gone. Often in less than an hour, the hustler is back. The best of them earn up to $100 a trick.

Doug, 30, is a hustler who works the bars in San Francisco's Tenderloin. He says his hustling is "by no means a sole means of support. I do it just for the thrill of it. It's exciting to do it and it's pleasurable. . . ."

"I was brought up in a strict Catholic home in Boston, with super-straight parents, and I just lived a straight life. I never had any sexual experience until I came out here, but I often wondered why I was aroused by men. I got into hooking because I've enjoyed it . . . . And of course, it's always good for a quick $25."

Spokesmen for gay organizations say that in many cities, street and bar hookers are far outnumbered by "call-boys," hustlers who advertise in underground papers. Much of the advertising is done in The Advocate, a nationally-circulated gay publication.

"The ads are the safest and most convenient way," says Bob, a middle-aged Los Angeles executive, who is married with three children. "You just call up, get a description of the boy, set an appointment and go to his house or apartment. The cost is usually around $30 to $35."

By and large, police reaction to male prostitution is one of live and let live.

"Our attempt is to keep it within due bounds," says Wilson of the Los Angeles police. "We try to limit, not deny, this kind of activity."

However, police react with vigilance to scandal, particularly when young boys are involved in homosexual activities.

In the aftermath of the 1973 sex-murder case in Houston, Tex., in which the bodies of 27 teen-agers were found in shallow graves, the Houston police department assigned two men to prevent abuse of young boys.

The two have since made 37 arrests, one involving an employment counsellor who urged boys to his home with the promise of jobs. Another case involved two men found in a downtown hotel with a group of junior high school boys.

"Our purpose is not to go looking for people because they are gay," says Johnny Freeman of Houston's special sexual child abuse squad. "We are out there to prevent any child from being injured or mentally disturbed by some adult who feeds on children for his sexual pleasure."

GO FOR BOYS

Indeed, there are a number of homosexuals, called "chicken hawks," who have a penchant for young boys, often taking youngsters into their homes, giving them money and gifts in exchange for sex.

BRAIN SURGERY, the Inca way, was performed with a Tumi, left, about 1,200 years ago in Peru. The skull at right is believed to be from an Inca who survived such an operation. The items are part of an exhibition at Dusseldorf, West Germany, where remedies and doctors instruments of the past 4,000 years are on display under the title Medicine Developments.

Car Habit Difficult To Break

TORONTO (CP) — Getting North Americans to leave their cars and switch to rapid transit will require a dramatic change in habits and a new approach to urban planning, transportation experts say.

It is becoming more difficult to separate people from their cars because most cities have geared their planning to the car habit and ignored the bus or subway, says Judith Connor, assistant secretary of transportation in Washington, D.C., and a former Toronto resident.

Today's suburbs are so designed around the car that most families need two cars to get by.

Winding arterial roads through low-density suburban developments make regular bus service operations uneconomical. And even if bus routes would pay, the road patterns make bus access difficult.

Consequently, the two-car family is becoming the common element in suburbs, she said.

In the Toronto suburb of Mississauga, a survey showed 45 to 50 per cent of households had two or more cars. Incomes in these households averaged $12,000 to $13,000.

In such posh city districts as Rosedale and Forest Hill, where incomes ranged between $20,000 and $80,000, only 39 per cent of homes had two or more cars.

No More White Gloves and Weddings.

Elizabeth Forbes used to write for "the women's page."

But no more.

Today, newspaper women write on every topic. And Elizabeth's columns prove it.

She's been a forceful influence on the Victoria scene for a long time.

Author, history buff, founding member of the Victoria Status of Women, she was into feminism before it was fashionable.

Elizabeth Forbes with any cause is a formidable opponent. And her column makes great reading.

Don't ms. it.

EATON'S

Meet world-renown ice artist . . . Toller Cranston, Wednesday at Eaton's

Defying tradition, Toller Cranston has single-handedly changed the face of figure skating . . . bringing to the ice a lyricism and artistry never before experienced. In Elva Oglanby's book, TOLLER, you'll find a collection of photographs, interviews, poems and sketches that brilliantly capture the moods and personality of one of Canada's most dynamic performers. TOLLER, 9.95

Toller Cranston will be in Eaton's Book Dept., Wed., Nov. 17, from 12-1:30 p.m. Come in, let him autograph your personal copy of his book.

Victoria schoolteacher Dave Cutler gave Winnipeg Blue Bombers a kicking lesson Sunday. Cutler's kicks accounted for all the Edmonton points as the Eskimos clipped the Bombers 14-12 and advanced into the Western Football Conference final. Page 12.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, scorned earlier this season in the Eastern Football Conference, were brutal on defence as they charged into their conference final with a 23-0 pounding of Montreal Alouettes. Page 12.

Victoria Cougars climaxed a big week in the Western Canada Hockey League by sweeping a weekend series with Kamloops Chiefs and bolstering their division lead. They notched a 3-1 victory in Kamloops after topping the Chiefs 8-4 at home Saturday. Page 12.

The second annual thoroughbred racing meet of the Capital City Turf Club ended at Sandown Park Saturday on a record note. There was a new daily high mutuel handle of $337,304 and a record total of $3,436,401 for the 16-day meet. George Harknett's three-year-old filly Major Hike won the closing day feature. Page 13.

Peking Shaken

HONG KONG (UPI) — An earthquake seismologists termed "big enough for certain damage" rocked Peking tonight in the heaviest shock since the tremors that devastated parts of northeast China July 27.

The Royal Hong Kong Observatory here recorded the earthquake at 9:57 p.m. (6:57 a.m. EST) but was unable to give any further details. Kyodo news service in Tokyo said in a dispatch from China the earthquake was strong but its epicentre was not immediately known.

Marcus Barth of the Uppsala Institute said the tremor was "big enough for certain damage."

The U.S. geological survey's earthquake centre at Golden, Colo., said the quake registered 6.5 on the Richter scale. The centre said the quake was in the same general area as the July 27 quake.

Heavy Turnout At Quebec Polls

MONTREAL (CP) — Polling stations reported a generally heavy turnout today for the Quebec provincial election.

The compaigning ended with neither of the two strongest parties — the ruling Liberals and the separatist-favoring Parti Quebecois — predicting victory.

Polls close today at 4 p.m., PST.

Undecided voters and rebellious Liberals were being told Sunday that their future and that of Canada depends on the way they vote today.

Those doing the warning ranged from millionaire distiller Charles Bronfman, who said it would be suicide for voters to turn their backs on the Liberals, to Union Nationale leader Rodrigue Biron, who predicted "moral and physical violence" if the Liberals are re-elected on a fear vote.

The PQ, which Bronfman called "a bunch of bastards trying to kill us," continued to play down independence as an issue and avoided predictions of victory. It aimed its attack at the Liberal record.

A hushed audience of about 400 Jews was told by Bronfman, owner of Montreal Expos, that he would move Seagrams Co. Ltd., a family holding of which he is president, out of Quebec if the PQ wins.

"If we turn our backs on the Liberals, it will be suicide.

Premier Robert Bourassa, described by one of his own candidates as "the most despised man in Quebec," has tried to staunch a flow of non-French votes to the resurgent Union Nationale and newly formed Democratic Alliance. There are about one million non-French voters.

PQ leader Rene Levesque, playing down his party's pledge that it would work to make Quebec a republic separate from Canada, avoided predictions that might scare away French voters angry with the 6½-year-old Bourassa government.

Polls have indicated that many PQ supporters are opposed to independence for Quebec. As a result the PQ has aimed its attack at the Liberal record, while the Liberals have warned that a PQ victory would devalue property and money.

Polls indicated that 40 per cent of voters were undecided in mid-campaign. Full-paged Liberal ads in Saturday newspapers urged voters to "stop separatism." An ad placed by the Council of Canadian Unity urged everyone to vote, saying it was important "for every citizen of Quebec, and of Canada."

In Quebec City, UN leader Biron, 42, said a Liberal victory today would create protest movements which would return "moral and physical violence" to the province.

"If Quebecers vote for the Liberals under the sole pretext of fear, we will see strong protests in the streets," he told about 500 supporters. "There will be moral and physical violence.

More than 800 chums were sighted Oct. 28 and between 3,000 and 4,000 are expected to return and spawn by the end of the year. A few of the salmon have been gaffed for food by native Indians, issued with Indian food fishing permits by the federal fisheries department.

TEACHERS CUT

MISSION (CP) — The Federal Anti-Inflation Board has ordered wage increases for 220 Mission teachers rolled back to 9.2 per cent from 11.8 per cent teachers' spokesman George Connelly said. He said teachers have 30 days to show cause why the order shouldn't be implemented. If implemented, the rollback could cost Mission teachers about $400 each.

Apartment Planned For Ten Mile Point

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Apartments are being considered for the first time in Saanich's exclusive single-family Ten Mile Point area.

The apartments are part of a mixed housing complex proposed by Broadmead Farms Ltd.

The mix of single-family homes, townhouses and apartments would be constructed on 70 acres owned by the company, lying bettween Telegraph Bay Road and Bedford-Phyllis Avenues.

Broadmead has applied to have the development built under a land-use contract with the municipality.

At today's council meeting council was to consider making the acreage into a development area as a prelude to drawing up the land-use contract.

Managing director Gordon Rolston said today a total of 210 units will be built on the 200 acres. Of these, 66 will be apartments.

Rolston declined to give details of the proposed height of the apartment buildings, saying only they would be sited in such a way as to preserve the trees and natural amenities of the area.

He said the Broadmead development will help Saanich solve the water and sewage problems in the Ten Mile Point area.

"We will provide the main link up and service the rest of to service our own area," Rolston said. "It will be easy to the area with a loop system."

Rolston said he has held consultations with executive members of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association and offered to provide bikeway systems through the property.

He conceded that now that Saanich has agreed to widen Tudor Avenue the problem of providing safety for cyclists and pedestrians may have been solved.

Dr. Gerhart Friedmann, acting chairman for the ratepayers' association, said that while his executive is sympathetic to Rolston's proposal, it has not given approval because Rolston has failed to show them the final plans.

"We did not give any approval because we didn't have any details," Friedmann said. "He promised to put up balloons to indicate the height (of the apartment buildings) but he didn't do that. While we are sympathetic, that's a long way from giving approval."

WORLD-WIDE HUNT FOR GIBSONS KILLER

VANCOUVER (CP) — The manhunt for the slayer of William Graham Black, of Gibsons has spread internationally, according to RCMP Superintendent Bruce Northrop.

The suspect is using four aliases but Supt. Northrop said one of the false identities was taken from a Vancouver resident and police don't know the true identity of the suspect.

The man was charged with murder as Shawn Erskine Doyle McCord but Supt. Northrop said that McCord had been found to be a Vancouver resident and had no connection with the killing or any knowledge of the accused.

The other aliases used by the man police are seeking are Shaun Shannon, Sean McShane and Shaun Turney.

Supt. Northrop said a picture of the suspect has been circulated and police have made inquiries to Malaysia, Singapore, Australia, South America and the United States west coast in attempts to track him down and find out more about him.

Oberle Named B.C. Tory Head

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

B.C. Conservative party members acclaimed federal MP Frank Oberle as their president Sunday at the annual Tory convention in the Empress Hotel.

Oberle, from Prince George-Peace River, spent much of his time at the three-day convention denying a rumor that he was part of a conspiracy to take over the party and trying to explain a remark he had made earlier on television that there are no differences between provincial Tories and the Social Credit Party.

His explanations must have been convincing. There was no opposition to his bid for the party presidency and his acceptance speech was met with loud applause.

Oberle, first elected to Parliament in 1972, told the 456 delegates he saw his role as that of "co-ordinator in the greater scheme of things."

Rumors have persisted for several months in both Ottawa and B.C. that Oberle and fellow MP John Reynolds (Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) were plotting to wrest the party leadership from Scott Wallace.

Both Oberle and Reynolds blamed the media for the rumor, although both also admitted hearing about the suggestion long before any stories had been written about it.

Reynolds, in a question-and-answer period during Saturday's convention session, dismissed the reports as "lies, absolute lies."

"I got into this business to defeat Trudeau and that's what I'm going to do," he said.

Oberle said the media was obsessed with writing stories about what might happen rather than covering events that actually did happen.

LOCAL EGGS TO DROP BY 1 CENT A DOZEN

Local egg prices are expected to come down by one cent a dozen before the end of the week as retailers catch up with an adjustment Friday by the Canadian Egg Margketing Agency.

Payments to producers dropped today by two cents for grade A large, reflecting a decline in feed prices worked out on a monthly cost formula.

As of last week, producers were getting two cents a dozen for A grade eggs over the price one year ago.

Militant Action Urged By B.C. Labor Leaders

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor is meeting this week to make key decisions on its future relations with government and business.

The federation's executive council said in a report today that the 235,000-member labor body should continue "through militant industrial action and an improved program of political action to fight for working people in this province against the powerful employers and their allies in government."

The executive council report, presented at the opening session of the five-day convention, said the B.C. labor movement "is facing continued attacks from a federal government which is committed to serving the interests of the giant corporations in this country and facing the continuing threat posed by an anti-labor Socred government in Victoria."

The labor movement's ties with political parties, particularly the NDP, are a prime area of concern.

Len Guy, facing a tough challenge in his battle for re-election to the crucial post of secretary-treasurer, has been accused by some opponents of contributing to the downfall of the NDP in last year's B.C. election by heavily criticizing NDP labor policies.

Art Kube, a Canadian Labor Congress staff worker seeking to unseat Guy, has described his opponent as ham-fisted.

"The ham-fisted approach means trying to bludgeon people into certain positions," Kube said in an interview.

"My approach is that you talk to people, air the options and try to convince them what options to take."

Guy, a high-profile labor leader in B.C., is a former typesetter. Kube moved to B.C. 1½ years ago as regional education director for the CLC.

Man Hangs Himself In City Jail Cell

A 45-year-old man hanged himself with his jacket in a Victoria police jail cell on the weekend.

Dead is Douglas Earl White, of 271 Cadillac.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said today the inquest would start later this week — probably Thursday.

City police patrol inspector Walter Calwell, on duty Saturday, said White had been picked up on a downtown street at about 2 a.m. on a warrant for failing to appear in court in October on a shoplifting charge.

He was placed in a holding cell to await a court appearance Saturday morning.

But at 3:08 a.m., White was found dead with his jacket tied around his neck and to a horizontal bar near the top of the cell door.

Inspector Calwell said White's belt and shoelaces had been taken away as a routine precaution, but not his jacket as "we don't usually take their clothes."

There are no closed circuit television monitors used in city police cells. Checks are not scheduled but are carried out about every half hour, the inspector said.

Parts of the cell where White was can be seen from certain positions from the jailer's area. There was one jailer on duty at that time, the inspector said.

Pat Bay . . . Not a Place to Put an Airport

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Pat Bay, it turns out, was not such a great place to put an airport.

"The problem is the hills immediately north and south of the airport," says ministry of transport regional director Larry Le Gros.

"They limit what the pilots can do."

When the fog comes in, the airport shuts down, with or without radar, with or without sophisticated landing systems.

Victoria International Airport does not have radar. Radar would be nice but it is not essential, Le Gros said.

In fact it is not even helpful in a thick fog at Pat Bay.

Le Gros explained in an interview that a pilot coming down at Pat Bay must be able to see the runway or the landing lights when he reaches the 300-foot level or he must abort the landing.

"This would be the case even with radar," Le Gros said.

Because of the hills, coming into the airport is like entering a narrow valley. No pilot could afford to go below 300 feet without being 100 per cent sure of his location. And that means visual contact with the ground.

"The situation is different in Vancouver or out on the bald prairies," Le Gros said.

The Vancouver airport on Sea Island is far enough away from the North Shore mountains to make landing a relatively easy task even in thick fog. For this reason, some planes will go lower than 300 feet and come in for a landing, aided by radar, at Vancouver.

"The important difference is that there are no hills or other obstructions around the airport in Vancouver," Le Gros said. "It is not the radar that makes the difference, it is the physical location of the airport."

There are improvements coming to the Victoria airport, however, that might help.

A sophisticated Visual Approach Slope Indicator landing lights system will soon be installed on a second runway, identical to the system on the primary landing strip.

This may assist some planes to get down during cer-

Jail Guard Threatened With Knife

A prisoner at William Head federal prison in Metchosin was on his way to be B.C. Penitentiary today after threatening a guard with a knife last week.

William Head director John Mulroney confirmed a report that Curtis William Christie, convicted of manslaughter in June, 1975, was the prisoner involved.

Mulroney said Christie was taken to the prison hospital on Thursday for a checkup because "he seemed to be on something — dope or brew."

After leaving the hospital, the prisoner produced a hobby knife and before being disarmed threatened to use it on one of the guards.

Mulroney said the incident is "an internal matter." Christie will not be charged with anything but will be disciplined by being sent to the B.C. Pen.

Christie, who was 19 at the time of his trial, was convicted of manslaughter in the stabbing death Oct. 15, 1974, of Stanford Clarence Wray in Victoria.

Rapes Investigated

Saanich police are investigating two incidents of rape which occurred Sunday night.

Both involved men described as being in their 20s and occurred about the same time, leading police to believe it was not the same attacker in each case.

In one incident, a man wearing a gas mask and brandishing a knife entered a home in the Gordon Head area and assaulted a woman.

The other case involved a girl hitchhiking on Burnside Road. She was picked up and taken to Prospect Lake where the alleged rape took place.

Freedom Ends

A man who escaped from William Head prison in September, was arrested Saturday in New Westminster.

Police said they received a tip that Dennis Charles O'Brien, 51, who was convicted as a habitual criminal, was at a New Westminster apartment.

He was arrested without resistance and will remain in New Westminster jail until a decision is made on where he will be charged with being unlawfully at large.

Police said O'Brien has the choice as to whether he wants to be charged and the case heard in New Westminster or in Colwood.

O'Brien failed to return Sept. 11 to William Head after being out on a permit.

He was sentenced in October, 1966, at New Westminster to an indeterminate term as an habitual criminal.

He was transferred to William Head in January, 1975, and received his first temporary absence permit in May, 1975.

Robbers Hunted

Victoria city police are still searching for two masked men who robbed the Crest Motor Inn Saturday of $1,500 while holding a shotgun to the head of the night clerk.

Alex Reid told police two young, "very cool" men with stocking masks pulled over their heads, came up behind him as he counted coffee shop receipts at about 9:45 p.m.

One of the bandits forced him to the floor, presssed a knee in his upper back and held the gun barrel to his head.

Reid said it seemed like an eternity.

"I was in the right position for saying my prayers."

City Building Up $20 Million

The value of building permits issued in Victoria so far this year is more than $65 million, an increase of about $20 million on the same period last year.

Of the 3,938 permits issued to date in 1976 — an increase of 850 on the 10-month period last year — 408 were issued last month for a total value of $10.3 million.

Residential starts in the city in October included nine projects providing 384 dwelling units valued at $8.3 million.

Among the larger projects was a $792,000 addition to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

LRB DECISION COULD BE TRIGGER

More School Strikes Seen

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The formation of a joint bargaining agency for Greater Victoria municipal employers raises the spectre of increased school shutdowns, a union spokesman warned today.

Bob Cunningham, chairman of the negotiating committee for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 382, which represents school board outside workers, was commenting on a decision by the Labor Relations Board to accredit the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association as bargaining agent for municipal employers.

The association will bargain for the Greater Victoria School Board as well as the Capital Region District, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Cunningham said the central bargaining system for employers could lead to more pickets going up around Greater Victoria schools.

If a dispute arises involving one of the employers during the next round of negotiations, the schools could be picketted because they belong to the association.

Schools would be the first to be struck, he added, because that is where the most pressure can be brought to bear.

Such school shutdowns could likely be avoided if the school board locals of CUPE bargained directly with the school district, he said.

Cunningham said there was a membership meeting of Local 382 Sunday night to explain the situation and the members "weren't too happy."

He said they feel there may be undue pressure on them to walk off the job whether they want to or not.

Cunningham said because of the effects the new bargaining system may have on the school system, area municipal leaders "were shirking their responsibility" in setting it up.

He referred particularly to Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, chairman of the association.

Smith said Friday the joint bargaining group will provide a more efficient bargaining system.

Cunningham said there is no need for all the expense of setting up the association because "a kindergarten kid could do it this year."

He said this year's negotiated contract will no doubt go to the federal Anti-Inflation Board for a ruling, so there is no need for any high-powered negotiating team.

He said the unions have been told that Carl Anshelm, the association's chief negotiator, has been given $100,000 to get set up and another $100,000 for future expenses.

CUNNINGHAM
. . . pressure on schools

Cunningham said the unions involved will meet next Sunday on whether to set up their own joint bargaining council for the next round of negotiations.

Both Local 382 and Local 947, the school board inside workers, opposed the accreditation of the association.

However, the LRB ruled that there is a substantial degree of similarity and a community of interest between the school board and the other employers in the association.

"Not only does a community of interest exist among its several members, but also among the employees of its members, who share many of the same terms and conditions of employment," the board said.

The board said it is concerned over the unions' anxiety about the formation of the association destroying the healthy relationship between the unions and the school district.

Demolition Threat, Dialogue Key Issues

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The demolition threat to established Victoria neighborhoods and the need for citizen groups to have a stronger voice in city hall decidion making have merged as the key issues in this year's civic election campaign.

The four aldermen to be elected Nov. 20 will serve abbreviated one-year terms before council switches to the biennial election system next year in a move designed to stimulate fresh interest in municipal politics.

Nine candidates are contesting the election, including three incumbents. The fourth incumbent, Ald. Alf Hood, retires this year after five years on city council.

Of the remaining six candidates, three have run unsuccessfully in previous elections.

A summary of the candidates and their platforms:

University of Victoria student Charles Ball, 338 Dallas, says city council's "incompentence and mismanagement" in a number of crucial areas is a significant issue in the election.

One area in which this is reflected, he says, is council's inability to come to grips with the issue of demolition of sound homes that are replaced by expensive apartments and condominiums.

Ball also promises to work for better labor-management relations at City Hall and more community involvement in decision making.

Increased protection against crime and vandalism and full, open debate on council are two major planks in the platform of businessman Frank Carson, 448 Beach Dr.

He says council must pursue additional sources of income from the provincial government.

He will work for strict control of highrise development, close co-operation with the province in Inner Harbor beautification and city encouragement for "worthwhile" community projects.

Incumbent and businessman Bob Ellis, 685 Beach Dr., says he is seeking a second term on council because he believes he can make a contribution to "sound city government."

"In spite of the promises and superficial issues of election time, the business of city management is largely the application of good sense and good practice to everyday decision making," he says.

Ellis is also seeking a seat on the regional board.

A complete review of the city's planning and zoning procedures, to include neighborhood hearings and citizen advisory committees, is proposed by incumbent Murry Glazier, 2532 Orchard.

Glazier, a professional engineer, also lists among his priorities disciplined financial management, efficient sewerage and solid waste disposal throughout the capital region, and the need for Victoria to have power to control demolitions.

Glazier has been one of the city's representatives on the Capital Region Board, and seeks that position again.

Incumbent John Hayes, elected to council nearly nine months ago in a byelection to fill former alderman Sam Bawlf's seat, says he is seeking re-election to "see through to fruition" various projects in which he is now involved.

Among these he lists the Crystal Garden restoration proposal, the heritage preservation program, provision of downtown rental housing and inter-governmental planning for transit improvements and car pooling.

Hayes, an appraiser who lives at 1-1759 Rockland, also urges the establishment of neighborhood advisory committees for zoning and development matters.

Bill McElory, 215 Linden, a research officer for the provincial housing department, is running for both council and the regional board.

He favors tighter control over demolition permits, evening council meetings and public hearings, establishement of a parks and recreation commission, stronger support for the Heritage Advisory Committee and more opportunities for citizens to make their views known at City Hall.

McElroy is endorsed by the Fairfield Community Association as a "suitably community-minded candidate."

Civil servant Joe Richards, 541 Dalton, repeats his call from earlier campaigns for better representation on council. He claims this would be achieved by expanding council to 11 members and having one alderman elected from each of eight districts, with the remaining two plus the mayor elected at large.

Richards says he would work for better police and fire protection, and holding all council meetings and public hearings in the evenings. He wants to see at least two north-south one-way streets in the downtown area.

He is also running for the regional board.

Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan, 70 Linden Avenue, believes the city must find a remedy for the "industrial erosion" it has recently been experiencing. Existing industrial activity must be preserved and if possible expanded, to strengthen the tax base and employment picture.

Ryan also says the tourist industry must be encouraged, the city's unique character preserved through an end to spot zoning and the policy of dumping raw sewage in the sea abandoned.

Another priority should be the provision of housing and activity centres for the elderly.

Seamstress Ann Tarasoff, of 902-701 Esquimalt Road, is president of the Capital Region Tenants' Association and says she is one of the few candidates who "place the interests of working people, pensioners, ratepayers and tenants before the real estate and big business interests."

She wants to see an end to the dumping of raw sewage in the sea, and advocates long-range planning toward other disposal alternatives.

Tarasoff has also offered herself as regional board candidate.

Although not up for re-election, Ald. Ron McKenzie is the sixth candidate seeking one of the two city seats on the regional board.

For a Doom-Crier, Plenty of Worries

IT IS TIME THIS COLUMN shifted its focus from still-Great Britain, which is not without its troubles, to a Canada lugging along from sea even unto sea in its usual state of snafu. Situation normal, all fouled up.

You can pick your worry from a list as long as your arm. Try unemployment. Or tough wage control versus tender price control. If those don't offer sufficient scope, have a go at rampant bureaucracy or national disunity.

I could fork any number of other dainties smoking-hot from the witchs' cauldron, but perhaps it would be more to the point to consider a singular fact.

The workaday Canadian, who is so often wiser than his political gurus and soothsayers, seems in no hurry to convert his nest-egg into West German marks or Swiss francs. Last time I dropped in at the bank that gets our trade, the girl who fills out orders for Canada Savings Bonds had used up one ballpoint and was hunting for another.

Life has taught me to be wary of runaway optimism. "I never loved a sweet gazelle," a tongue-in-cheek poet reminds us, "but what it turned and stung me well."

Still and all, that savings bond lineup can be construed as indicating a sturdy conviction at grass-roots level that Canada — which is to say Confederation — isn't about to go down the drain.

One positive and in this instance encouraging Canadian characteristic is that as a nation we aren't go-for-broke gamblers. When it comes to investment, we maintain a sobersided habit of weighing the odds. We don't fool around with our money by risking it on bonds which we feel are unlikely to pay off.

Expanding on this folk-instinct that all will yet be well with our 10-province, two-territory bag of cats, I suggest that the yet-unseparated brethren in Quebec share this practical-mindedness. Your Quebec opposite number knows on which side his bread is buttered.

He likes his politics dramatic, and his politicians full of spit and vinegar. He hasn't the slightest aversion, either, to basking in the anxious concern of an Ottawa which has dug deep in the national purse to give him more than he asked for or even wanted.

But to separate? To go it alone as one nation under one roof. Unless Quebec's not-so-silent majority has suffered a fantastic change of heart since I last spent time in that zestful province, Confederation faces no serious threat from that quarter.

In the final analysis, which is to say when or if the issue of separation comes to a head through a referendum, I offer it as an article of faith that Quebec will not secede.

She has too little to win and too much to lose, including the luxury of insisting upon certain extra-territorial language rights which her membership in our sorority of provinces protects.

As an independent, French-speaking republic isolated in an English-speaking North American bloc, she would retrograde into a storehouse of raw materials to be manufactured elsewhere, by trading partners who would dictate their own terms.

I told you that the Quebecois has received more from Ottawa than he asked for or wanted. Thanks largely to the arrogance and blundering ineptitude of the Trudeau federal-Liberal administration, bilingualism has been inflated into a bogey that has spread fear and resentment through the English-speaking provinces.

So, since worry is one of our chief national pastimes, worry about Ottawa by all means. Specifically, worry with former Liberal cabinet minister James Richardson about the spectre of a revamped British North America Act that would make us a house divided on the language issue as never before in the history of Confederation.

But don't, I urge you, hate Quebec, a province which is already entertaining second thoughts about its ill-advised provincial language act, and which is more Ottawa's victim than its beneficiary.

Separation? For what encouragement history offers, let me tell you a story.

Long before Confederation, when American General Benedict Arnold and his American troops menaced the existence of young Canada, it was not British arms alone that averted the threat. By denying aid and comfort to a common enemy, the shrewd Quebecois helped guarantee a Canadian future.

I could be wrong. My cautious flicker of optimism may well be unjustified. But I think when the chips are down, our union may prove to be of tougher fibre than the doom-criers would have us believe.

Realtor Dies Of Seizure

WHYTE

Donald G. Whyte, 48, president of Whyte and Gower Oak Bay Properties Ltd., died of a heart attack at his home Sunday.

He had been engaged in the real estate business in Victoria for 24 years and was vice-president of Victoria Real Estate Board this year.

According to a member of the family, Whyte was working with livestock in a field at his Saanich Peninsula home, 5895 Old East Saanich Road, when he suffered a seizure.

As a realtor, Whyte was a professional member of the Real Estate Institute of B.C., a fellow of the Real Estate Institute of Canada and a graduate of the University of B.C. diploma course in urban land economics.

Funeral arrangements by McCall's will be arranged for later this week.
